The Smartest Card is @ your library®: Get it, use it at Hayner Library

September is Library Card Sign-up Month, and the The Hayner Public Library District wants to make sure that your child is among the two-thirds of Americans who carry the smartest card of all – a library card.

Studies show that children who are read to in the home and who use the library perform better in school and are more likely to continue to use the library as a source of lifetime learning.

"A library card has always been the most important school supply of all," says Jeff Owen, the library's Executive Director "Kids can come to the library to get homework help and check out books, but they can also check out free music and DVDs and use the Internet to make after-school life a little more fun."

A recent study by the American Library Association also showed that families use libraries to spend time together. Forty-four percent of survey respondents report taking their children to the library for this reason.

Visit any location to sign up for a library card. The card is free to residents of Alton, Godfrey and Foster townships You just need a picture id, verifying your current address and an additional form of ID This year, anyone signing up for a new card will get a stadium seat cushion (great for the upcoming football season!), while supplies last. For more information, call the library at 618-462-0677 or visit our Web site at www.haynerlibrary.org.

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at wwwhaynerlibrary.org or at any library location.

In May 2008, shortly before the last day of school, the students of the Illinois House of the Alton Middle School were called to the auditorium for an assembly. They were surprised with a performance by Victor Pacini, the entertaining singer and powerful motivational speaker who has lent his time as spokesperson for Hayner Library's Mission: Recognition program. The kids loved Victor and strongly responded to his energy, music and message of "do the right thing."

The whole student body was being recognized for a very special project they had executed earlier in 2008. Called Teens for Jeans, it was a campaign in which the students worked throughout the community to collect gently used jeans to donate to homeless teens. The campaign was supported by Aeropostale, a mall-based specialty retailer of casual and active apparel for young men and women. The company charter is to provide customers a focused selection of high-quality, active-oriented fashions at compelling prices. For this project the donated jeans would be cleaned by Aeropostale and then distributed at no charge to teens at local homeless centers. The school collected more than 200 pairs of jeans, creating the secondary benefit of recycling good reusable clothing.

The students were obviously thrilled by Mission: Recognition; reaction to the program was a loud mixture of cheers, singing and excitement from students and school staff alike. The school received a trophy from Hayner Library as acknowledgment of their outstanding achievement, and a great time of recognition and appreciation was had by all.

In May, Sha'Doca Hearn, an eighth-grade student in Alton Middle School, was recognized by Mission: Recognition. In the past, Sha'Doca struggled with anger management. Through hard work, dedication and perseverance she developed new skills to cope with and express her emotions. She now passes on those skills to others, reaching out to students in a way that only a peer can.

When Sha'Doca sees a classmate become upset, she approaches the student to let him or her know that she sees what is happening. Her confidence and charisma allow her to attend to other students, and her genuine empathy and relationship skills enable her to give them real help. Sha'Doca uses good problem-solving ability to help students see and evaluate their choices regarding subsequent action. She guides them in setting goals for themselves and motivates them to avoid making the mistakes she made. Sha'Doca helps others view things from a broader perspective, i.e., how the choices they make now can impact their future. This past school year she was appointed student council president, and academically she has earned a place on the honor roll for several quarters. Through her own hard work, she has turned her life around and is helping others to do the same. She is a remarkable young woman.

Also recognized in May was Nigel Harris, a fifth-grader at East Elementary School. Nigel's nomination identified him as a hard-working, fantastic student, well organized and responsible—an overall great kid. Most impressively, Nigel's compassion for others is developed way beyond his years. He goes out of his way to befriend "special needs" kids and makes it his personal job to watch over them. He includes them in everything and makes them feel part of the group. Nigel also is a great help to his teacher, always willing to take on extra responsibilities. Nigel is extremely respectful to adults and peers alike. Additionally, he tutors younger kids and is involved in community organizations such as Redbird basketball, football and church activities, and this summer he joined the Boys and Girls Club. Nigel is a great role model for young and old alike.

In July, we were proud to recognize the heartwarming actions of brother and sister Matthew (grade 3) and Ole-Haze (grade 5) Moore. At the beginning of the children's summer vacation, their grandmother was recovering at home from major surgery. While other young children were out playing, enjoying the delights of a responsibility-free summer, the children willingly took over chores at their grandmother's house to aid in her recovery. Their volunteer services included cleaning house, cooking, doing the laundry, taking out the trash and caring for their grandmother for the first two weeks after her discharge from the hospital.

Before going to play with their friends, both Matthew and Ole-Haze always checked in to see if there was anything their grandmother needed and to make sure she was comfortable. Their grandmother knew that the children were disappointed that she could not attend their ball games or participate in other activities, but they never complained. In order to create a more peaceful environment for her, Matthew and Ole-Haze purposely worked hard to contain the bickering that commonly occurs between siblings.

Matthew and Ole-Haze made "welcome home" signs when their grandmother was discharged from the hospital and stopped in to smother her with hugs and kisses whenever they passed her room. Matthew and Ole-Haze's unselfish assistance, loving-kindness, understanding and prayers undoubtedly helped to speed their grandmother's recovery and will always be remembered in the hearts of their family.

Please Help Us To Serve You Better

Recently, we began asking you to take a few minutes to fill out a very simple survey. The purpose of this survey is to help us assess our services and collections to best address your changing needs, lifestyle, entertainment preferences and resource and information requirements. Please help us make the Hayner Public Library the best library – your library.

Mall Expansion Underway – Get A Preview of Your New Library Facility!

The Hayner Public Library District is very excited that the expansion project at the Alton Square Mall is now underway. As many of you are aware, the original plan to expand the library facility on the second floor of the mall had to be canceled due to weight load bearing constraints. The current location of the library will be at the Sears end of the mall, in spaces previously occupied by Walden Books, GNC Nutrition and four empty rental units on the northwest end of the mall near the Sears store. The new facility will include a teen area, a children's area and crafts room, study rooms, expanded computers, wireless computer access, automated checkout, and many state-of-the-art features and services. Currently, the opening date of the new library facility is scheduled for mid-January 2009. We have installed a 3D virtual fly-through of the new facility on the flat panel screen displays in the downtown and mall library locations. We thunk you will be as excited as we are after viewing YOUR new library facility!

Dog Days of Summer Were the Best!

Our summer Bow-wow Pow-wow reading sessions were great! Everyone made lots of new friends – both the four-legged and two-legged kind. Therapy dogs visit the Hayner Youth Library on the second Saturday of every month and kids read to the dogs or just play with them. It's a great way to strengthen a child's confidence and reading skills. Please join us at 10:00 a.m., on September 13, October 11, November 8 and December 13 – all ages are welcome. Bring cameras.

Food for Fines

In past years, we have waived current fines on Hayner material if you contributed a nonperishable food item for each fine during a holiday time amnesty period. The past couple of years we have decided to start spreading the holiday spirit a little early, sponsoring the program in October. It was very successful and we have decided to repeat the October scheduling of the program.

From October 1 through October 31, 2008, anyone who has an overdue item can pay their fine with a canned goods food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine and Hayner materials only. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

There are several reasons we decided to move up the fine amnesty program. During the holidays, many different organizations support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but as we get wrapped up in our everyday lives, we sometimes forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are hoping this amnesty calendar change can help people immediately without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

Perhaps you have some Hayner material that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center, but it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

EMPLOYEES OF THE MONTH

The Hayner Public Library District has initiated a program to recognize employees who are nominated by their colleagues for overall job performance, teamwork and positive attitude. Previously recognized in our last newsletter as our first award winner was Patty Stalcup. Patty is responsible for Acquisition and Media Processing. Our next three award recipients are John Daubman (May), Shannon Ballard (June) and Fred Buchanan (July).

John Daubman is a member of the Maintenance Services staff. Following high school, John served in the Army for eight years. Much of that service was overseas. He has worked for The Hayner Library District since 2004, and he and his wife are both members of The Friends of the Library. John and Grace just celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary. John is also Hayner's unofficial football fanatic.

Shannon Ballard is a full-time Library Assistant in the Hayner Youth library. She has been with the library district more than nine years, starting as a Page in the Hayner Branch Library. Shannon lives in Godfrey, and in addition to her job at Hayner, she attends Lewis & Clark Community College.

Fred Buchanan has been a member of Hayner's Maintenance Services staff for seventeen years. Prior to that he served in the Army for two years, spent 27 years working at Owens-Illinois Glass, from which he retired, and also worked eight years in home remodeling. Fred has one son and is a native of Alton.

Thank you to these great employees for their years of service and many contributions to the Hayner Public Library team.

Lucky Winners!

Each winner received a $50 gift certificate to Red Lobster and a $50 gift certificate to Tony's Restaurant.

The reading program, which ran from June 7 to July 19, drew hundreds of entries for the grand prize drawings. For each book read or audiobook listened to, contestants earned another chance to win. All program prizes were made possible through the generosity of private funding.

Hayner's next Adult Reading Program will be held this winter, so watch your newsletters for details—it could be you next time! Thank you to all the readers who participated in the program this summer and congratulations again to our lucky winners Marcella Waddell and Edna Sommars.

Poster Contest Winner

This summer, the Illinois Library Association and Illinois Reading Enrichment and Development (iREAD) sponsored a Poster Contest to promote Teen Reading. The contest was open to middle and high school aged artists. The kids were asked to illustrate the theme "SCARE UP A GOOD BOOK". The winning poster will be the basis for the YA (Young Adult) iREAD Summer Reading Program in 2010. Libraries throughout Illinois are participating in the contest, and the design of each library's individual winner will be submitted to the Illinois Library Association (ILA). ILA staff will then pick a statewide winner from the winning entries in October, 2008. The winner will receive $1000 in prize money and his or her poster will be reproduced and distributed throughout the state to promote the 2010 Summer Reading initiative.

The first-place winner for the Hayner Public Library District is 16-year-old Brigid Vaughn, the daughter of Mary and Jeff Vaughn, who reside in Alton. Congratulations, Brigid, on your very clever illustration of the theme "Scare up a good book." We certainly will be rooting for you this October!

Judging the artwork was, as you might expect, not an easy process. Library staff decided to recognize additional poster entries second and third place winner. Second place was awarded to Eric'el Johnson, age 14, of Alton. There was a tie for third place between Katelin Richie, age 11, of Godfrey and Christopher Plunkett, age 14, also of Godfrey.

Youth Summer Reading Party

Jailen

Ma'Shay

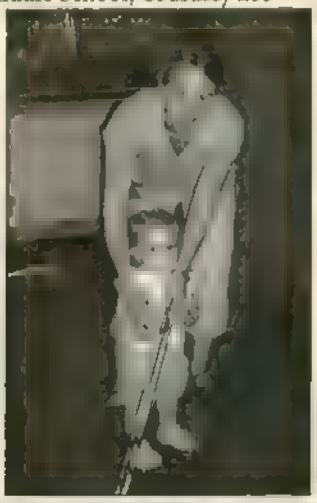
Melena

The summer reading program, GET IN THE GAME! READ came to end on July 24th. The end of the summer party was held at the Commons Building on the Lewis and Clark Community College campus. There were 350 people in attendance at the party. We had wonderful participation this summer from our children. 460 children signed contracts and out of that number we had 250 children complete their contracts. Of that number we had 68 children who read 30 hours or more. Their names are posted on our wall of fame at the Hayner Youth Division. These names will be displayed throughout the month of August; also if you did not attend the party, all the children who completed their contracts can pick up their certificates and free award book at the Hayner Youth Division.

For the 2008 Reading Champions, the children who read the greatest number of hours in their age group were as follows: In the 0-3 age group the winner was Ma'Shay Steward (42 hours). In the 4-6 age group the winner was Jailen Sie-Orlovski (42 hours). In the 7-9 age group the winner was Margaret McCarthy (98 hours). And in the 10-12 age group the winner was Melena Tandy (210 hours).

The Traveling Summer Reading Trophy, awarded annually to the school with the highest percentage of students completing the reading program at Hayner, was won this year by Gilson Brown Elementary School. In second place was St. Mary's, and in third place was Evangelical.

Ten volunteers (shown in the photo at right) were recognized for their summer service to the Youth Library and donated more than 400 hours to help our summer run as smoothly as it did. They were Maggie Aery – St. Mary's; Olivia Farmer – St. Mary's; Jackson Frosch – North Elementary; Paisley Harper – Alton Middle School; Ryan Haynes – West Elementary; Breaunna Jackson – Alton Middle School; Courtney Lee – Sts Peter and Paul, Eli Parker – Alton Middle School; DeAnna Pope – Mary Institute and Country Day School and Denver Smith – Cold Spring Middle School.



The entertainment for the evening was provided by the 62 Sports Group. They had fun and exciting activities for the children to do which included Hockey Slap Shot, Air Brush Tattoos, and the popular Slam Dunk Combo. The 62 Sports Group by Shanta the Storyteller was very enlightening. Shanta is a nationally known storyteller who blends traditional folktales, contemporary stories and world instruments in exciting and inspiring presentations.

Some of the different organizations that donated great prizes for our Hayner readers were, Waldenbooks – The Magic House – Gateway Fun Park – Red Lobster – Culvers – Chicago White Sox – Olga's Kitchen – and the St. Louis Rams.

Hayner Youth Library is looking forward to next year's 2009 summer reading program, "READ on the WILD SIDE" and we hope it will be just as successful.

Banned Books Week

September 29 – October 6

Celebrating the Freedom to Read is observed during the last week of September each year. Observed since 1982, the annual event reminds Americans not to take this precious democratic freedom for granted.

Banned Book Week celebrates the freedom to choose or the freedom to express one's opinion even if that opinion might be considered unorthodox or unpopular and stresses the importance of ensuring the availability of those unorthodox or unpopular viewpoints to all who wish to read them. After all, intellectual freedom can exist only where these two essential conditions are met.

Reflect on your freedom to read, cherish it, and, by all means, read what you want to read. As the author of Fahrenheit 451, Ray Bradbury, said "You don't have to burn books to destroy a culture. Just get people to stop reading them"

To see what books were challenged this past year or for more information, go to www.ala.org/books. Help spread the word! Encourage your friends and colleagues to celebrate their freedom to read. It's one of our most important democratic freedoms!

Patron Profile Charlotte Johnson

It was a delight to meet and chat with Charlotte Kenniebrew Johnson as the subject of this month's patron profile. Charlotte was born in Evanston, Illinois, and spent most of her childhood in Jacksonville and Springfield, Illinois. Charlotte's father was a highly skilled and respected surgeon who, during World War I, was commissioned to train military doctors and nurses. Dr. Kenniebrew opened a clinic in Jacksonville that grew from 6 to 67 beds. Charlotte remembers her father always encouraging her to be continually learning. When she was a little girl, he would reward her with a nickel for each book she read and reported on. By the second grade, he upped the ante to six cents a book. Charlotte didn't need the encouragement, because she always loved to read and loved visiting her local library every Saturday. Charlotte's mother was a talented musician, a music teacher and a 50-year employee of the State of Illinois.

Upon completing high school, Charlotte attended Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee. She earned her degrees in voice, piano composition and music education. She also attended Roosevelt University in Chicago and the University of Minnesota. After graduating from college, she married native Altonian Cyrus Johnson, and they settled in Champaign, Illinois. Cyrus worked for Illinois Bell Telephone and General Mills. Charlotte taught in the Chicago public school system until 1973. They moved to Minnesota when Cyrus accepted a position in Minneapolis, a city that Charlotte says she absolutely loved. Charlotte worked for Minneapolis Special School District #1, preparing a wide variety of curriculum guides and teaching aids in music and the arts. She also taught choir, strings, and humanities projects at the Ramsey Fine Arts Elementary Center. Charlotte and Cyrus raised two daughters, Judie, who today lives in Minnesota, and Renee, who lives in Alton. Charlotte has a granddaughter, Jennie, who is a junior at William Woods University in Fulton, Missouri.

In 1991 Cyrus retired from his position as a Corporate Vice President for General Mills, and the Johnsons moved back to Alton, where they purchased a farm. Cyrus was from a large family that owned a farm in Wood Station, Alton. Established in 1850, it is among the oldest working family farms in Illinois. Cyrus' brother, Lloyd, and his wife Minnie now own the family farm. Many members of the Johnson family reside in the Riverbend area.

Once settled in Alton, Charlotte spent seven years volunteering at Jennie's schools. During this time she did substitute teaching for one year for the Alton School District but decided to devote her time to her numerous volunteer activities, researching local histories and doing genealogical research.

Genealogy has fascinated Charlotte since her teenage years. When Charlotte was a girl, her maternal Aunt Marie documented Charlotte's grandfather's stories in shorthand. Several years later this document was transcribed and published as a small book by Charlotte's brother. Titled He Must Have Been a Prince, the booklet tells the stories of George Schultz, patriarch of the family, who died in 1899, and stories of other family members and of living conditions in the late 1800s. The booklet is based on the recollections of his son, James Sherman Schultz.

James was Charlotte's "Grandpap" and the tie binding the family. During World War II, nine young members of the Johnson family were in the armed forces simultaneously. In fact, they all met up in Africa. Fortunately, all came home safely. As each went to visit Grandpap, he would make them stand close enough that he could touch their faces to make sure they were really with him.

Grandpap sensed when his days were soon to be over and, unbeknownst to family members, except Charlotte, rode his bike to the hospital. Upon his admittance, the hospital contacted the family to let them know that Grandpap was there. He communicated that he knew it would be too upsetting to Charlotte if he passed in the family home, and he wanted to spare her that memory. The family visited him that evening and took his Bible to him. He told them they did not need to come back tomorrow. The next day, before the family could get to the hospital, he was gone. More fascinating anecdotes are recorded in the booklet, which you can find in the Illinois Room of the Hayner Downtown Library.

In 1993, Charlotte, Renee and Jennie went to Alabama to visit distant relatives of Charlotte's father's. It was during this visit that Charlotte learned the story of Winnie, her paternal great-grandmother. Grandmother Winnie was a native of Ghana, Africa. She carried a medicine bag of herbs in her village and ministered to the sick. One evening some men from a nearby village came and said their chief was sick and Winnie must come with her brothers and bring her medicine bag. The men led them onto a ship, and that was the last they saw of their village in Ghana. It was a slave ship. In America, she and her brothers initially worked together on the same plantation. Then Winnie was sent to Alabama. One brother went to Arkansas and the other to Oklahoma. She never saw them again.

Through her genealogical research, Charlotte was able to identify five different branches of the family descended from Grandmother Winnie and her brothers, widely dispersed throughout the country. She also determined that she had a cousin living in South Africa. He has visited the tribe and area where Winnie was originally born. Winnie's medicine bag was passed on to her grandson (Charlotte's father) when he graduated from Meharry Medical School in 1897.

Charlotte has spent many hours chronicling the genealogy of both her husband's family and her own, but she is also a well-known author and historian of African-American families, culture and events. In 1991 she participated on a task force established by the Illinois State Library to produce the Illinois African-American Resource Guide. The Guide was designed to encourage further research in African- American history and culture in Illinois. It includes information on historical societies, museums, libraries, archives, historical sites, prominent people and organizations that have helped define the African-American experience in Illinois. She also prepared a nomination, and was accepted, to the "Network for Freedom Underground Railroad Program" of the National Park Service, which offers detailed information regarding the Rocky Fork Area in Godfrey, one of the first free-state stops for slaves escaping from Missouri.

Charlotte has contributed articles to the Illinois Department of Tourism, the Missouri Historical Society, The Ralph Bunche Museum, and the St. Louis Post Dispatch—to name just a few. She is a frequent speaker at various civic organizations, schools and museums. She has received numerous awards, including the 1999 YWCA Woman of Distinction award, the 2003 Lovejoy Human Rights Award and the 2004 National Council of Negro Women, Alton Section, Unsung Hero Award.

Charlotte is a board member of the Madison County Historical Society and a member of St. James Baptist Church.

Charlotte has completed most of the research for her many and varied projects using the resources of the Hayner Downtown Library Illinois Room. Charlotte has become a great friend of the Hayner genealogy staff and is always willing to help fellow researchers.

Lincoln-Douglas Debates Traveling Exhibit Coming to Alton Oct. 1-30, 2008

Marks the 150th anniversary of the nation's most famous political speeches

The 150th anniversary of the greatest political discourse in American history will be commemorated in Alton as The Hayner Public Library District hosts a traveling exhibit on the Lincoln-Douglas Debates October 1 through October 30. This free exhibit is sponsored by the Looking for Lincoln Heritage Coalition on behalf of the Lincoln-Douglas Debate Communities.

The exhibit is one of eight identical exhibits visiting libraries in the state through November 2008 to raise awareness of the Debates and why their words and topics still resonate with Americans today. Each exhibit is 20 feet wide by seven feet tall and contains a wealth of information about the Debates, the political climate of the time, and the 1858 election results. Douglas, the incumbent U.S. Senator, defeated Lincoln in 1858, but the notoriety that Lincoln gained during the Debates helped propel him to the White House when he again faced Douglas in the 1860 election.

Historians from the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum helped to develop the exhibit's content, text and graphics.

The traveling exhibits were funded in part by a grant from the Illinois Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission. For more information about the exhibits or scheduling one for your local library, visit www.lookingforlincoln.com.

The Hayner Library District is proud to be one of eight libraries to showcase the traveling exhibit and we are especially excited that we will have the display during the month of October to complement the Lincoln-Douglas Sesquicentennial Event taking place in downtown Alton on October 18 and 19.

The display will be set up at the Sears end of the Alton Square Mall in front of the future location of the Hayner Mall Library. Don't miss a great opportunity to educate yourself and your family prior to the debate reenactments on October 18!

Federal Literacy Grant Develops Local Preschoolers' Reading Habits

In 2007, the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) recommended level funding for the federal literacy program Reading is Fundamental, Inc. (RIF) that provides free books to underserved children. In November of that year, the NEA published a report on reading habits of youth that revealed "recent declines in voluntary reading and test scores alike, exposing trends that have severe consequences for American society," according to its Web site.

Locally, the result of the recommendation is a $5,352 grant to Riverbend Head Start & Family Services that will put 3,753 free books in the hands of 913 underserved children in Madison County. In the Alton area, 306 children will be impacted.

The children are enrolled in Head Start, a national school readiness program for qualifying families. Family literacy is at the heart of the program's goal to teach children and strengthen families so they can better succeed in life. Riverbend Head Start & Family Services has operated the Madison County area Head Start program since 1985.

Family reading events for Head Start kids and their parents will be planned throughout the year, many in partnership with The Hayner Public Library District.

TheBANK of Edwardsville donated $1,784 to provide the required local match. This is the ninth year Riverbend Head Start & Family Services has received an RIF grant.

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services is a non-profit organization that strengthens families in Madison County, Illinois, through child development and counseling programs that enable children and families to discover positive solutions to life's challenges. The Hayner Public Library District looks forward to continuing our partnership with this community-critical organization. For additional information about Riverbend Head Start, visit www.riverbendfamilies.org

This is so sweet....

A true anecdote: A few weeks ago, as I was leaving work on my way to lunch, I observed a car stopped near the outside book return drop The car had stopped so a little girl could hop out to drop her library books in the return slot. She was dropping her many books, one at a time, into the book return Before putting in her very last book, she hugged it tightly to her chest and then kissed it twice. She then moved to drop it in the box but pulled back and kissed it twice more before finally dropping it in. I didn't ask her, but I think it is safe to say she loves her public library. – Ed.

Expansion Project

The facility expansion project at the Alton Square Mall continues to make progress. All demolition of the existing storefronts is complete. The six stores which combine to create the new library space have lost their dividing walls and now comprise one grand space. Interior work is beginning and the target date for project completion is mid February.

One of the changes you will see is the implementation of RFID technology. Radio Frequency Identification provides new ways to enhance self service, optimize staff efficiency, lower the risk of repetitive motion injuries, reduce material losses and increase service capacity. All library materials will have an RFID tag. Using your current library card, you can scan books under the RFID reader and they will be immediately checked out to you. If you have a stack of books, you can scan the whole stack at one time and the RFID reader will record the ID number of each individual book. The reader will also take books off your record when you bring them back to the library. There will be security gates at the libraries' entrances that will set off a mild alarm if you leave the facility with a book that has not been checked out. This is a greatly needed security function that will ensure protection of library assets. Use of RFID technology for self checkout is strictly voluntary as library staff will also be available to facilitate circulation, as we do today. This technology will be installed both at the mall library and the library downtown.

Get Through Tough Times @ Your Library

All this talk of recession and economic downturn is a bit scary isn't it? However, there are many ways the Hayner Public Library District can help you and your family during these tough economic times through the "free" services we offer.

In some ways, this brief list oversimplifies all the things the library can offer, but that is kind of the point...to provide a reminder of the basic but important services libraries offer at little or no cost. So, without further adieu, there are eight ways libraries can help you get through our country's economic slowdown:

1. Try it before you buy it. Money is tight. Don't buy a CD, DVD, or book without "test-driving" it first. Come to the library and borrow it to see if it's a purchase that is right for you. If we don't have it, we'll try our hardest to get it for you.

2. Two words: FREE INTERNET.

3. Bolster your business. We have access to databases and research tools that will help you reach new and different markets, even during tough times.

4. Get the skills you need. Attend a computer class. Learn a new language. We have extensive materials for self-help, self-improvement and independent learning on thousands of topics.

5. Find entertainment. Hayner Library offers great programs, events and activities for ALL ages at no cost; Great musical and cultural programs, family game nights, movie nights and game nights for teens -- and so much more. A fun night out doesn't need to be an expensive night out.

6 Be a well-informed investor. The library has up-to-date stock market information that will help you get through tough times. Make smarter investment decisions with the most current financial information.

7. Find a new job, a better job, or a different job. Use computers, books, newspapers, and more to find employment, build a resume and compose cover letters.

8. Regain a sense of community. Feeling a bit disconnected during tough times? Libraries are places where communities come together. Stop in and take a moment to take in the action... you'll find it abuzz with information, people, and possibilities!

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location.

Recognized in August by Mission Recognition was Deanna Rhoads. Deanna is a 7th grader at Alton Middle School. This past summer, Deanna gave up summer vacation time to volunteer as the Assistant Camp Director for the Village of Godfrey Parks and Recreation Department summer Ed-Venture Camp at Glazebrook Park. The camp took place June 9-13 and lasted 3.5 hours each day. Deanna was an outstanding addition to the program by assisting the Camp Director with each of the twelve campers every day. She helped with archeological digs and the discovery and creation of dinosaur fossils. Without Deanna's help, the camp would not have been possible.

Also recognized in August was Jonathan North. Members of the Trinity African Methodist Episcopal Church were attending a retirement banquet for the Presiding Elder of the District. The banquet was to take place in Springfield, IL. To ensure that his 93 year old Grandmother was able to attend the banquet, Jonathon accompanied her. He filled her plate at the dinner as well as other seniors at the table and made sure they had everything they needed, leaving them to enjoy the event. Jonathan also was the one who went to his grandmother's rescue went she fell in her home He was the only one to assist her Jonathan plays drums at his church and is a member of the Young People's Department (YPD) which is part of the Sarah Allen Women's Missionary Society.

Aranxta Salvador, a 7th grader in Alton Middle School is bilingual in English and Spanish. A new student arrived, Valeria, who has very limited English language skills. Aranxta has assisted her in her classes and in communicating to others. Aranxta has been very willing to assist adults and students in breaking through the language barrier. This assistance has helped Valeria transition to the middle school and also has been a huge help in advancing Valeria's education and socialization with school mates.

Also recognized in October was Zach Livingston. Zach is friends with Austin Manka, a student with a visual disability. Zach helps Austin with daily tasks that Austin has difficulty in achieving alone. Austin has several technological devices that he uses to assist him with his studies. Zach helps Austin with his locker, his studies and helps him transport his vision equipment from place to place. The teachers request that Austin and Zach be placed in classes together because Zach does such a great job helping Austin.

In November, 10th grader Victoria Rothe was recognized by Mission Recognition. Victoria attends Alton High School. Victoria was leaving school one day and noticed an expensive cell phone lying in the parking lot There was no one to turn it into at the time, so she took it home and turned it into the Assistant Principal first thing the next morning. They were able to determine the owner of the phone and returned the phone before classes started.

Book Woes – Sarah Brandt, The Repertory Theatre of St. Louis

Whether burning the midnight oil to finish J.K. Rowlings latest Harry Potter adventure or curling up to turn the pages of a favorite classic, many are familiar with the joys of reading. Discovering new information and embarking on imaginative journeys are two of the numerous reasons to indulge in a good book. However, while reading literature does remain one of America's most popular cultural pursuits, it is disturbing to discover that over the past several years the number of readers has been declining at an alarming rate. Results of a study conducted by the National Endowment for the Arts have shown that year by year fewer Americans are recognizing the valuable knowledge and entertainment that can be found in a book.

Countless studies have illustrated the importance of literacy to a child's development and also to the continuing intellectual benefit of adults. Beginning in childhood, literacy becomes an essential skill. According to the U.S. Department of Education, the single most important activity for building knowledge is reading aloud to children. The National Research Council suggests that the best time to start sharing books with children is during infancy, even when babies are as young as six weeks old. Reading aloud to children has been shown to develop and strengthen learning pathways in the brain, better preparing them for school and social interaction. Children who read have also been shown to score higher on achievement tests than children who do not read often. For children who fail to attain adequate reading skills, future school subjects become difficult and sometimes impossible to master.

Still, today's kids seem to find reading less and less a worthwhile pastime. Even with the incredible popularity of books like the Magic Tree House Series and the Series of Unfortunate Events, few children elect to read for entertainment. A simple book has begun to pale in comparison to the ready availability of technology at home and at school. A recent study showed that the average American child lives in a home with 3 televisions, 2 DVD players, 3 radios, 2 CD players, 1 video game system and 1 computer. Add to that 100 CDs, 40 DVDs and 16 video games and there is little space for books.

Adults too have had a large share of their attention diverted from reading. While still ranking as a favorite cultural activity, the number of readers in the United States has remained steady in recent years despite a population increase of nearly 400 million. Though this trend is troubling, it is not altogether surprising. The declining number of active readers in America reflects a larger social shift toward electronic media entertainment and information. Indeed, the instant availability of internet and television news reports makes the time required to read newspapers seem almost a waste. This cultural transformation has resulted in a preference for instant gratification. While reading a book requires a degree of active attention and engagement, electronic media require no more than passive participation. Even interactive media such as video games and the internet foster shorter attention spans.

While the problem of illiteracy in America has been recognized, it remains as prevalent as ever. Recent studies have shown that an estimated 21 million Americans simply cannot read, and the costs of illiteracy are estimated to be $225 billion a year in lost productivity. Functional illiteracy renders an individual unable to use reading, writing and computational skills in everyday life. Filling out a job application, reading traffic signs, figuring out an election ballot, reading a newspaper or understanding a bus schedule becomes almost impossible. In the richest country on earth, 23 percent of adult Americans - 44 million men and women - cannot do these everyday things.

It is not only reading, however, that is at stake. As recent studies have demonstrated, readers play a more active role in their communities. When compared to non-readers, people who enjoy books have been found to nurture a more active role in arts, sports and political organizations. There is also a direct correlation found in the pursuit of reading to larger incomes and higher education levels. The current decline of reading, therefore, reflects a larger retreat from civic and cultural life- a change that is certainly not for the better.

Hayner Library Gets Out the Vote

Mary Cordes of the Hayner Public Library District spoke to Kylie Voss and other young mothers about voting at a recent group meeting. After Mary explained how parents can register to vote and described the early voting opportunity in Madison County, Illinois, they watched Iron Jawed Angels, an inspiring movie about women's suffrage starring Hillary Swank.

The meeting was the first of four in a series entitled Empowerment - Steps to Building Self Esteem & Confidence. The three remaining meetings covered Education Beyond High School, Family Budgeting, Victim Prevention and Domestic Violence.

The parents are enrolled in Family Foundations, a program of Riverbend Head Start & Family Services that strengthens families with birth to five-years-olds. Many of the parents don't have access to other means of socialization or parenting advice and voluntarily enrolled in Family Foundations for extra parenting support.

The meetings are conducted in a comfortable peer group setting at the program's resource center located at 1802 E. Broadway, next door to the Essic Robinson Head Start Center. Transportation and childcare is provided to promote participation.

Families That Read Together Succeed Together

Over 900 babies, toddlers and preschoolers chose a free book to take home and keep in November at Family Reading Night events across Madison County. In Alton, 200 children and their families enjoyed a meal and an educational activity as well as choosing a free book.

At the Essic Robinson Head Start center located at 1802 E. Broadway in Alton, 200 families celebrated a "Go for the Gold" themed Family Reading Night on November 20. After enjoying a warm, nutritious meal, children and their parents, grandparents, caregivers, and siblings read a book together then did a fun activity. The event provided an opportunity for families to enjoy being out in the world together. Some families are isolated due to lack of transportation or low income.

Promoted by Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White, Family Reading Night encourages families to spend quality time reading together. Head Start strongly believes that the whole family must value reading in order for a child to excel in school and life. It emphasizes parent involvement in their child's preschool reading education by celebrating Family Reading Night and giving free books to children to take home and keep.

Head Start is a national school readiness program administered locally by Riverbend Head Start & Family Services. www.riverbend-families.org Created in 1965, Head Start is the most successful, longest-running, national school readiness program in the United States. It provides comprehensive education, health, nutrition, and parent involvement services to qualifying children and their families.

Throughout the year, events and activities that encourage families to read together take place at Head Start. Research shows that children from families who read together are more likely to succeed in school.

The free books are thanks to a grant from Reading is Fundamental (RIF), a 42-year-old national literacy organization. RIF places books in the hands of children who likely do not have any, through grants to local organizations for the purchase of books. Nationally, RIF provides 4.5 million children with 16 million new, free books each year. In Madison County, RIF gives over 900 Head Start children more than 3,000 free books. In the Hayner Public Library District, over 300 children will receive 900 books thanks to RIF and TheBANK of Edwardsville, who provided the required local cash match for the RIF grant. www.rif.org

Set an Example

"Last summer an Associated Press Ipsos poll found the typical American had read only four books in the past year and one in four adults read no books at all (not even for work or school). Among those who did feast upon the written word, the median number of books read for women was nine: for men, five." Extracted from The Issue at Hand by Jennifer Bardi, The Humanist, July- August 2008.

These are scary numbers – more frightening when you think of how children's habits are so influenced by what they observe from the behavior of adults around them. If their parents aren't reading, what will inspire the child to discover the value and wonders of books and reading.

Beware of the example you set. Turn off the TV or DVD player and open a book, magazine or newspaper. Do research on do-it–yourself projects, political issues, financial/market matters. Take "reading vacations". Read aloud to your partner or with your family. Try different types of reading materials or new and different authors Most importantly, enjoy reading and be an adventurist.

More Bookworm notes

During World War I Agatha Christie worked in a hospital dispensary and it was there she acquired her extensive knowledge of poisons.

Dylan Thomas once unkindly pointed out that except for one misplaced letter, T.S.Eliot's name spelled backwards is "toilets."

Mike Jagger turned down almost $7,000,000 advance offer on his memoirs from a publisher because he said he "couldn't remember" enough significant details from his own life.

Arthur Conan Doyle was awarded a knighthood for his defense of the British concentration camps during the Boer Wars and not because of his Sherlock Holmes stories.

Haley's comet came into view in 1835 when Mark Twain was born and was again in view in 1910 when he died.

The letters of the word SHAZAM, which was shouted to conjure up comic-book hero Captain Marvel, stood for Solomon's Wisdom, Hercules's Strength, Atlas's Stamina, Zeus's Power, Achilles's Courage, and Mercury's Speed.

The single dot over the lower-case letter "i" is called a tipple.

The English syllable "ough" can be pronounced nine different ways. One sentence that contains them all is: "rough-coated, dough –faced thoughtful ploughman strode through the streets of Scarborough and after falling onto his slough he coughed and hiccoughed."

Left-handed people cannot write Mandarin Chinese.

Spoon River Reprise

Last year, the Genealogy team of The Hayner Public Library District and members of the Alton Little Theater teamed up to present "Spoon River Reveries", a short playlet based on the classic "Spoon River Anthology" by Edgar Lee Masters.

On April 2, Hayner Library staff and Alton Little Theater will reunite to present "Spoon River Reprise". This program will present a new look at ancestors and their fascinating reminiscences from the grave.

Adaptions from Spoon River Anthology have been coalesced into a moving experience which enables the viewer to hear from the residents of Spoon River themselves, and has been shaped by Hayner Genealogist, Midge Hallett, into a moving and nostalgic theme that has been interwoven into a fascinating exercise of contemplation.

Performed by actors and actresses from the Alton Little Theater, the performance will be accompanied by a guitarist playing the music of the Civil War. The program will be held at the Alton Little Theater at 2456 Henry Street on Thursday, April 2 at 6:30 pm. The program will be free of charge but does require registration. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

The October 2008 Employee of the Month was Jan Harnetiaux. Jan originally hails from Minnesota but has lived much of her adult life in Alton. Jan has worked for The Hayner Public Library District for twenty four years. She has worked in all three library locations but spent much of the time working in cataloguing. Today, she works part time as a jack-of- all-trades, helping out wherever she is needed. Jan and her husband, Rex, have two grown sons.

HAYNER LIBRARY OFFERS IMPORTANT NEW RESEARCH AIDS

Allgemeiner Handatlas & Cram's Atlas

Handatlas maps of both local, national, and international design can be most effective in genealogical research. Hayner Public Library now offers the Andees Allgemeiner Handatlas and the Cram's Atlas for just such in-depth analysis of location of ancestors, and the examination of written records of these predecessors. Both of these Atlases have been digitized, indexed, and made fully searchable. They are alive with color execution, definitive in detail and easy to access.

The Andrees Allgemeiner Handatlas was recognized as the finest detailed Atlas of the late 19th century, and its accuracy and definitive detail of Europe and Northern Asia is unsurpassed. Due to wars and land redistribution, many name-places were changed through time making it most difficult to locate specific towns and villages that our ancestors called home. These maps can aid in location and can even illustrate the nature of such changes.

Cram's Atlas is a fully indexed database for every locale mentioned in the 1880 United States Census, along with every 1887 United States Post Office. The Atlas includes more than 4,000 U.S. & Canadian county histories. An added feature is the U.S.A. place-name index with more than 58,000 entries of towns no longer in existence. This feature is a necessity for one looking for an area no longer in existence, and unavailable on a more modern and updated map.

We urge that you visit the Illinois Room at the Main Library downtown, and to access and search these colorfully illustrated and historically reliable maps

Guess What This is…

Show your age and guess what this is-something no teenager in the 1950-1960s would be without!

Answer: It is a plastic piece that gets inserted into the middle of a 45 RPM record so it can play on a 33 1/3 record player. And if you didn't know what it was, you probably don't understand any of the explanation. Have someone over 30 explain it to you.

Patron Profile
Ann Bromaghim

This issue's patron profile will take you around the world – for that is where Ann Bromaghim has lived for 16 years.

An Alton native, Ann attended Alton High School and received her undergraduate degree in Park Administration and Conservation from Western Illinois University. She went on to earn a Master's degree in elementary education with an emphasis in environmental education. While getting her Master's she also worked as an educator at White Pines Ranch Outdoor Education Center in Oregon, Ill. There she taught Chicago area students about ecosystems and biomes and learned such skills as horse training, mountain climbing, rappeling and survival skills. Shortly after completing these studies, Ann spent her summers as Director of the Youth Conservation Corps at Pere Marquette, and upon graduation, began classroom teaching in Spring Bluff, Mo. One day, while flipping through a magazine, Ann saw a small advertisement for candidates wishing to live and work overseas, no other details included. On a whim, Ann answered the ad. She received an application to fill out that she says was the size of the yellow pages. She completed the application, sent it back and promptly forgot about it. This was in the fall of 1982. In April 1983 Ann received an unexpected phone call. Her job application had been accepted and she was being offered a job to commence that August – just a few months away. The job? Teaching elementary school in Brussels, Belgium. Ann had to get out her atlas to locate Belgium (much to her dismay). She researched the city of Brussels, the capital of Belgium and found that the city was bilingual: natives spoke either French or Flemish. Ann knew neither language, nor did she know anyone who lived overseas. Ann told her hairdresser that she was thinking of moving to Brussels. Her hairdresser was less than impressed and asked Ann why she was moving to Calhoun County!

And so, within a few short weeks, Ann was on a plane heading eastward to teach fourth graders in an American school in Belgium. She arrived in Belgium with little more than her suitcase. She did not even have the address of the school she was to report to and remembers her frustration in the airport in Brussels when she could not find a listing for the school in the yellow pages. Unfortunately, Ann was looking up the listing under the category "schools," forgetting that English was no longer the primary language- her address was found under the listing "ecole" (French for school). Ann realized she might have a lot to learn!

Well, of course, Ann found her school She rented a house and enrolled in Alliance Francais – the renowned French-language-speaking center. At Alliance Francais, Ann enrolled in an immersion course to learn the French language. There she and students from all over the world, including Turkey, Iraq, and countries in Africa and Eastern Europe, were allowed to communicate from day one only in French. Ann said within half a year she was reasonably fluent. Ann does remember a particular language gaffe when she went to a hairdresser and asked her if she "voullez vous coupez moi cheveaux?" rather than "coupez moi chavoo." She had asked the hairdresser to cut her horse instead of her hair!

Ann found Brussels to be a great assignment and the kids easy to teach. They were the children of NATO delegates and United States embassy staff and, out of the 24 students she taught, 21 had IQs of 125 or higher

After a year in Brussels, Ann heard of a teaching opportunity in Holland that was available. Anxious to experience living in another country and looking forward to the opportunity to learn Dutch, Ann took the job in Holland teaching third graders on an American Air Force base called Kamp Van Zeist. It was Kamp Van Zeist that served as the trial location for the convicted terrorists connected with the air disaster of Pan Am flight 103 in Scotland

Concluding her assignment in Holland, Ann returned to the states initially to get married and then – not. Anxious to return overseas, she took a teaching opportunity that took her back to the Netherlands, to a small town called Coevorden, (literally, cow crossing). There she taught 5, 6, 7 and 8th grades in one room to 11 boys and 4 girls. She mastered Dutch well enough to sing in the local choir, join the local pool and take tennis lessons. She gave cooking lessons to her American students so they could learn Dutch. Her sole source of transportation was her bicycle, which taught her never to buy heavy objects at the grocery store and that Christmas trees don't transport well via a two-wheeler

In Coevorden, Ann went to dine in a castle that had been converted to a restaurant. There she saw her family coat of arms on the wall. Her research determined that her ancestors had once been occupants of the castle!

Ann's next opportunity turned out to be one that came with major culture shock. She went to live in Korea. She left a town with a population of approximately 30,000 and customs similar to her heritage to live in a city of 20 million with a completely different culture. Ann arrived in Korea the year before the 1988 Olympics and made fast friends with a fellow high school instructor, Nancy Lee Hill. It turned out that Nancy was the great-great-granddaughter of Robert E. Lee and was very involved politically, particularly with the Olympics. She got Ann involved in many wonderful Olympic activities, and Ann had the opportunity to interact with national newscasters and Olympic judges during the events.

Ann took language classes in a woman's university (Ewha) and today can write or sound out the language but has forgotten most of the vocabulary. She taught 1st, 5th and 6th grades in a school of 1,200 students.

Leaving Korea after four years, Ann transferred to Germany, where she would live for the next eight years. In Germany, she taught 4th, then 2nd grade. She lived in Hanau, Germany, about a half- hour east of Frankfurt. While in Germany, she lived with the Fischer family, with whom she still keeps in touch and sees on visits. Herr Fischer taught Ann German, minding the counsel of his wife, "don't teach her any bad words." Herr Fischer was 10 years old during World War II and showed Ann many examples of living history, including evidence of a Nazi encampment not far from the family home. Ann recalls there was a forest behind the house that was incredibly dense and deep. One day she rode her bike into the forest which, after two hours, showed no signs of thinning. Ann loved her time in Germany and loved her adopted family and many great friends. She has many wonderful memories of traveling adventures and holiday celebrations. Sadly, in 2000, Ann's mother became extremely ill, so Ann immediately flew home to care for her. Her mother is now doing well, and Ann has settled back into life in Alton. That is not to imply that her life is settled, because she is as busy as ever. She has served on the boards of the YWCA and the Alton Museum of Art and History and is very active at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. She also participated in this year's Vintage Voices, portraying Mary Todd Lincoln.

When Ann first returned to Alton, she worked at St. Mary's School as the computer coordinator. Then she learned about an enterprising idea that captured her fancy: mobile dog grooming. After formal training and certification with a facilitator in San Diego, Ann started her business, "Groomer Van Gogh." Behind her truck, she carts a trailer that has all the bathing, drying and grooming tools that you would find at a groomer's shop, all powered by a generator. Ann provides bathing, basic clipping, styling, nail and ear care for most dog breeds, right in your own driveway. Groomer Van Gogh services are available Tuesday through Saturday, 9:00 am to 5:00 pm. For an appointment or more information, call 530-7716. Ann fills out her days as church administrator for Main Street United Methodist Church and by providing computer training classes for the Hayner Public Library District as well as for Senior Services Plus. She also is available for private individual computer training. For more information regarding Ann's training availability, you can contact the library at 462-0677. We are glad to have Ann back home, but we are sure it won't be long until she embarks on more exciting adventures!

Staff Picks—What We're Reading

Paper Towns by John Green. Fiction
Spunky Margo Roth Spiegelman is going to get even (dressed as a ninja in the middle of the night, armed with catfish, Veet, and Vaseline,) and she's chosen you as her accomplice. Do you go? If you're Quentin Jacobsen and hopelessly infatuated, you do. Margo takes us on a whirlwind adventure that includes eye-brow stealing (the ultimate choice for those who have wronged: shave off Lefty or paint on Righty?), tip-toeing around the complexity of adolescence with comedic banter and pop-culture. That is, until she disappears the following morning leaving Walt Whitman to do her bidding and Quentin to follow the clues. Where is Margo? But better yet, who is Margo? The more Quentin searches, the less he knows about the Margo he thought he knew. In the place of a bubbly socialite, he finds an introverted music lover with such a penchant for mysteries that she became one. Perhaps the best explanation is that "nothing ever happens like you imagine it will." John Green recently announced that the rights to Paper Towns have been bought by the makers of Juno.—Emily I.

The Longest Trip Home by John Grogan. Biography
For those of you who enjoyed Marley and Me, you'll find that Grogan (born 1957) applies the same humor and writing style to his own autobiography. He describes funny details about growing up in a strong Catholic upbringing during the 1960s-1970s. Surprisingly his mother had quite an influence on him. He has a skill for taking ordinary, everyday events and turning them into something worth talking about. Having grown up outside of Detroit, Grogan explains social issues that affected him, such as race riots. He helps the reader remember personal long-forgotten memories. Grogan's story could easily become an interesting movie such as My Girl.—Sharon S.

We're Almost There!

On Saturday, March 21, the Hayner Public Library staff, board, friends, patrons and local dignitaries will celebrate the Grand Opening of the new mall facility with a 12:00 noon ribbon cutting and a week of special events hosted by the library.

The new facility is located at 132 Alton Square Mall by Sears and the J. C. Penney Court. The space was previously occupied by six retailers and has been refitted into one large facility, effectively tripling the current space Hayner occupies at the mall. All Hayner library locations have been extremely overcrowded, housing growing collections of print and nonprint materials, computers and varying services for the public. Working with Coyote Management, the mall owners, since August, 2007 and Burnidge Cassell Associates, architects, the library developed a strategy to allow youth, teen and adult collections and activities, large print, reference and small business collections all in one facility. New features include a multipurpose room, a teen center, increased seating for reading, three computer centers by age, study rooms, a beautiful new reference center, local art displays and more. The library is also instituting a more user-friendly way of organizing its nonfiction collections using subject area signage. Self-checkout will be available as well as help from our staff with any library needs. Security of library materials will be greatly enhanced. New services, programs and activities will be available for all the community and for all ages.

Illinois Secretary of State/State Librarian Jesse White, who also serves as State Librarian, will be at the noon, March 21 Grand Opening and ribbon cutting. Following the ribbon cutting, the Jesse White Tumbling Team will perform at 1:00 pm in the J. C. Penney Court. The Jesse White Tumbling Team has been thrilling audiences since 1959. Their acrobatic performances can frequently be seen during half-time major league shows for the NBA, the NFL and major league baseball games. Team members can qualify as young as six years old and have attracted national and international attention. They have performed extensively on national television, in commercials and movies, several Presidential inaugural parades, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus and with the Harlem Globetrotters. They make more than 1,000 public appearances each year. The Jesse White Tumbling Team has been a highly successful initiative designed to address juvenile delinquency, helping more than 10,000 boys and girls from inner city communities to stay away from gangs and drugs.

On Sunday, March 29, at 2:00 p.m. another special treat awaits you and your family. The terrifically popular musical ensemble Bach to the Future will perform in the J. C. Penney Court. # MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location.

The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during the fourth quarter of 2008.

In October, Jordan Pfeifer, now a 10th grader at Alton High, was recognized for the great help he voluntarily provided to a church's vacation bible school during his summer vacation. The school was caught short staffed at the last minute and Jordan unhesitatingly agreed to help out. He was at the church program every morning at 8 am to prepare for the daily puppet show. The kids loved him and couldn't wait to see his puppet character every morning. After the puppet show, Jordan remained at the camp to help out wherever he could. Kids and counselors both loved Jordon for his warmth, character and willingness to serve.

Michael Overstreet is in the 4th grade in North Elementary and was a Mission Recognition recipient in November. While on a school field trip, Michael found money that belonged to another student. He could easily have kept the money himself but he immediately brought it to his teacher and together they were able to find the rightful owner. Michael's teacher was very proud of Michael's display of honesty and integrity.

In January, Mission Recognition was awarded to the student council representatives of West Elementary School. Ranging in grades from 3rd to 5th, the council reps did a remarkable job motivating their fellow classmates to bring items for the Community Christmas drive. During the fall, they ran a two week contest among the West classrooms to collect donations for needy families. They made posters to display and announcements over the PA system soliciting donations. The reps visited all the classrooms daily to collect and count the goods and graph the results. These graphs were displayed at the school, encouraging "friendly competition" between classes. In just two short weeks, the representatives collected over 4400 items such as coats, toys, gloves, and food. The representatives poured enthusiasm, hard work and high energy into this effort resulting in a brighter Christmas for many families in our community.

Celebrating a Year of Worthy Recognition

Hayner Library's Mission Recognition program is funded through private endowment and to celebrate our second year of the program, the endowment sponsored a celebratory luncheon for the great kids who had been recognized in 2008. There was a great turnout at the luncheon including family, friends, school administrators, teachers, library staff and endowment members. Victor Pacini, the inspirational speaker who has partnered with Hayner library to promote the Mission Recognition program, acknowledged each individual recognition recipient. During 2008, thirty three young people received Mission Recognition acclaim for activities displaying compassion, thoughtfulness, and high moral standards. These kids, along with so many other young people in our community, certainly deserve to be recognized for the positive contributions they make to all of us. We need to make sure we take time every day to thank a young person for their positive impact on all our lives. Please participate in the Mission Recognition program- it DOES make a difference.

A Lesson in Friendship

Contributed by a reader David M. Vassos, Edmonton Alberta Canada to Bits and Pieces Magazine, Sept. 2008

This story illustrates what can happen when we take a friendship for granted.

When I was six, my older brother and I were followed home by a stray dog who'd been hanging around a livery stable. I took some meat from the house and fed it to him. And from that moment on, I had a new best friend. I called him Butch.

Butch accompanied me every morning on my paper route. He even helped me with the contest I entered to sign up new subscribers. While I spun a tale of how I hoped to sell extra papers to earn the money to buy my dog a license, Butch would sit nearby looking sad. It worked like a charm.

That winter, a friend gave me an old dog harness that I used to hook up Butch to the sleigh. By now, he knew the paper route by heart. Butch pulled me around the neighborhood as I threw the papers from the sleigh. We were inseparable.

But things changed after I went to high school. When I discovered girls, I spent less time with Butch. And he didn't like that.

Once, we visited my friend George whose dad was a blacksmith and worked out of a barn on their property. I don't know if it was the horses or the hay that evoked memories of the stables, but Butch immediately took a liking to the place

George made a big fuss over Butch. He fed him and played with him. And when it was time to go home, Butch didn't want to leave.

There were times after that when Butch would go off and not return for days. I soon learned that Butch was hanging out at George's place and sleeping over.

One day, I was coming out of my dad's coffee shop with Butch. George walked by and called to him. Was George trying to steal my dog? I called out to Butch, too. For a few moments, Butch just sat there looking between us. Then he got up and went to George. I was heartbroken.

That day, I learned that the best way to keep a friend is to be a friend.

Bow-wow Pow-wow

Everyone feels extra energy as the weather gets nicer and plants and trees start to "green up". Our therapy dogs are more anxious than ever to make new friends- both the four legged and two legged kind. Therapy dogs visit the Hayner Youth library on the second Saturday of every month and kids read to the dogs or just play with them. It's a great way to strengthen a child's confidence and reading skills. Please join us from 10:00 am to 11 am on March 14, April 11, May 9 and June 13 – all ages are welcome. Bring cameras.

Food For Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month and in commemoration of this, all three locations of The Hayner Library District will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you can pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner material only Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation for each fine.

Please remember that 5 A's also has a thrift shop at 632 Wood River Ave., Wood River, IL. It is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10.00 am – 3 00 pm. They have a large collection of used books (hardcover for $1.00, paperback $.25-$.50), puzzles, clothes, collectibles, household goods, furniture, toys and seasonal items. Donations are accepted during regular store hours For questions regarding the shop, call 254-0635 (shop) or 466-3702(shelter)

Please help our friends at the 5 A's they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected or abused animals brought to the shelter. Remember, the new shelter is now open at 4530 N. Alby Rd., Godfrey. Stop by and visit this wonderful new facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever) and, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome

Internet Safety
Tuesday, April 7, 6:30 p.m.

To this end, Detectives Bazzell and Vucich have been working with members of the Alton School District staff technology trainees to develop a curriculum to deliver to both staff and students in the coming school year. This is an incredibly important topic, as Internet crimes against children continue to rise at an alarming rate with increasingly sophisticated methods of execution. Parents, attend this program with your children to see the latest techniques predators are implementing against your children and observe online, real-time examples of predator activities. ## Spoon River Reprise

Last year, the Genealogy team of The Hayner Public Library District and members of the Alton Little Theater teamed up to present "Spoon River Reveries", a short playlet based on the classic "Spoon River Anthology" by Edgar Lee Masters.

On April 2, Hayner Library staff and Alton Little Theater will reunite to present "Spoon River Reprise". This program will present a new look at ancestors and their fascinating reminiscences from the grave.

Adaptions from Spoon River Anthology have been coalesced into a moving experience which enables the viewer to hear from the residents of Spoon River themselves, and has been shaped by Hayner Genealogist, Midge Hallett, into a moving and nostalgic theme that has been interwoven into a fascinating exercise of contemplation.

Performed by actors and actresses from the Alton Little Theater, the performance will be accompanied by a guitarist playing the music of the Civil War. The program will be held at the Alton Little Theater at 2456 Henry Street on Thursday, April 2 at 6:30 pm. The program will be free of charge but does require registration. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Ed and Nancy Ryrie to Receive Circle of Care Award from Riverbend Head Start & Family Services

Award Dinner is May 21, 2009

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services has named Edward and Nancy Ryrie of Alton the recipients of its 2009 Circle of Care community service award. The couple will receive the award at a dinner held in their honor on May 21, 2009, at Lewis & Clark Community College. Guests will learn about the Ryrie's unwavering commitment to strong families, accessible healthcare, literacy and community service and how they have impacted Riverbend Head Start & Family Services' mission to enable children and families to develop positive skills to meet life's challenges.

Nancy Ryrie co-chaired the first Circle of Care event in 1994 that honored Dr. Paul Pierce, her family's pediatrician. Since moving to Alton from Aurora, Illinois in 1979, she has immersed herself in the Alton Memorial Hospital White Cross Auxiliary, health literacy activities, and myriad community service organizations. A heart attack survivor, Mrs. Ryrie is resolute in her commitment to educating the community, especially its women, about heart disease, the nation's leading cause of death in women.

Edward Ryrie, an Alton native, grew up in a family committed to quality healthcare for all. For generations the Ryrie family has embraced Alton Memorial Hospital's mission to improve the health of the people and communities it serves. That has included thousands of at-risk children and families that this agency has served since it began in 1916. Both were instrumental in achieving Alton Memorial Hospital's recent capital campaign goal that will meet a fast-emerging need for expanded healthcare services in the community.

General Tips for Preserving Library Books (and Your Books):

1. Please do not leave library books in a car, shed, barn or other location without climate control for extended periods of time. A general rule of thumb is, if you wouldn't want to stay there, neither do your books!
2. Do not read any book that you value, or have to return, in the bath.
3. As much as is possible, keep books away from pets and small children.
4. Keep books away from open flames, excessive heat or chemicals.
5. Use care when keeping books in a bag. What else is in the bag that could damage the book?
6. Pay attention to the weather! Will your bag protect any books you are transporting from moisture? Some books, literally, become bricks when exposed to excessive moisture. (Liner notes on CDs and DVDs are especially bad.)

Tips for your home library:

1. Some books have a limited shelf life Mass market (small) paper backs are almost always made with poor quality paper and bindings and will have a limited shelf life. Feel free to read these in the bath, by the pool etc. If you have to store some of your books in a less than desirable location, these are the books.
2. Pets and small children love to play with, and sometimes chew on books. Keep out of date materials and books with a limited shelf life on the shelves they can reach.
3. Make sure the books you value most are kept away from direct sunlight and in an indoor climate that is comfortable to you. (A temperature of 70° F and 40% relative humidity is just about ideal for home libraries.)
4. Never use tape on any book! Better repair materials are not at all expensive, and some are nearly as easy to use.
5. Prioritize your books. Know which books are most valuable both to you and in real terms, and treat your collection accordingly. Chances are you will not be able to save every book you've ever owned. Decide which ones are important and which are more disposable.
6. If you have any questions about the care of your books, contact the Special Collections Librarian.

DAR at the Library

The Ninian Edwards Chapter of the DAR recently replaced our outdated Patriot Index with the newest 3-volume edition. They have also donated a copy of A century of service the story of the DAR by Ann Arnold Hunter and a copy of History of Illinois, from 1778-1833 A book on the life and times of Ninian Edwards authored by his son, Ninian W. Edwards was also entrusted to the library for the historic Illinois Room. Their kindness and generosity is greatly appreciated This organization does so many good things in our community. All of these volumes will be available in our Illinois Room.

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy and Local History Department is happy to feature the acquisition of the Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps. These maps were executed in 1867 by D.A. Sanborn who became the primary American publisher of fire and architectural maps for nearly one hundred years.

The maps include information such as the architectural outline of a building, the size, shape, and construction materials used, heights, function of structures, and locations of windows and doors. The maps also give street names, street and sidewalk widths, property boundaries, building use, and house and block number They give textual information on construction details such as steel beams and reinforced walls. The maps also give generic symbols to denote stable, garage, maids' quarters, and warehouses. The maps have also been updated into eight different editions, showing both urban growth and a fair amount of migration trends

The maps are useful to urban specialists, social historians, architects, genealogists, local historians, community planners, and environmentalists. Visit the Illinois Room and see what you can learn from the Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps.

Marquette High School Yearbooks

The Hayner Library Genealogy and Local History Department would like to invite patrons and friends of the library to be aware of the ever present need to expand our Marquette High School Yearbook Collection.

At present we have some yearbooks from the sixties through the current timeframe, but would be most appreciative of any earlier editions of the Explorer for the use of our patrons. So if any of you are becoming minimalists and scaling back at home, please consider a donation that will be of great use and enjoyment to others who have the same regard for Explorer pictures, lore, and other statistical activity information.

Patron Profile: Cyrus Brown

Cyrus Brown is a seven-year-old charmer. He loves to talk to people, making friends everywhere he goes. The library staff looks forward to his weekly library visits to stock up on books, video games, movies and, of course, lots of attention. Over Halloween, he insisted his mother, Katrina, take him to the library so he could show off his costume to library staff.

Cyrus had a rough path at the beginning. Born prematurely, he was a mere one pound, seven ounces at birth. He spent the first three months of his life in the hospital before he was big enough to go home. Due to the prematurity of his birth, Cyrus developed cerebral palsy, and doctors direly predicted he would never read or walk. However, the unfailing love and support of his mother and grandmother, occupational and physical therapy at school, and a very supportive church community helped Cyrus conquer the doctors' prognosis. Cyrus was determined to overcome significant physical challenges and has become a very adventurous, active and outgoing little boy.

Today, Cyrus is a second grader at Eunice Smith School and is an avid reader, sounding words out with his mom when he occasionally gets stumped. He participates in the school's "Ocean of Fame" program in which students commit to read for 100 minutes on their own time each term of the school year. His mom also credits the support and attention from his teachers Mrs. Scheiter and Mrs. Stubis for his wonderful reading achievements. His mom describes Cyrus as a happy guy who loves to play the drums at his grandmother's house, loves music in general and particularly singing in church. He is always making friends and helping others.

Cyrus's mother works full time at the Boeing Leadership Center in Missouri and studies occupational therapy part time at Lewis & Clark Community College. Cyrus is in school during the day and in the evening, if his mother can't be home, he stays with his grandmother, Jeannie Bradshaw.

Cyrus's mother calls him her "miracle baby." He certainly is a very special little boy!

Poetry Reading

Mellaney Gray is a native of Alton and has enjoyed a career as a Speech-Language Therapist. At a very young age, she started writing and also enjoyed other creative passions including painting, antique collecting and gardening. In August of 2008, she published her debut collection of poetry titled Chasing Lovers. Mellaney's poems take the reader through a "transformation process" in her own search for fulfillment. Her writing reveals the heartfelt expressions of a woman who has embarked on a personal odyssey and wishes to share her experiences through verse.

Mellaney enjoyed working as a page in the Hayner Youth Library during her youth. She also found the library to be a wonderful personal haven. To celebrate the publishing of Chasing Lovers, Mellaney will be reading examples of her work in the Youth library on Sunday, March 15 from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. Join us for poetry and light refreshments to welcome a refreshing new voice to the literary world

Grand Opening of Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall is a Great Success!

We thought it would never get done in time!

In the last weeks before the Grand Opening of the library in Alton Square Mall, every pair of hands was working, setting up shelving, cleaning, arranging furniture and shelving books, books and more books! The place was a beehive of constant and frenetic activity—construction workers, plumbers, electricians, architects, interior designers, delivery people, carpet layers, furniture movers and every available Hayner Library staff member, plus a large group of community volunteers, all working like mad to get everything in place for the big day. Boxing, moving, and shelving (in correct Dewey order, of course) over 200,000 books is not a job for the faint of heart…or the weak of back!

The target date, March 21, arrived as a beautiful bright spring day—perfect for a Grand Opening. Hayner staff, the Board of Trustees and honored guests met in the new library in preparation for the ribbon cutting. The public gathered outside the library to participate in the opening. The outpouring of community support and interest was beyond all expectations. Hundreds of people gathered for their first visit to the beautiful new library facility.

At precisely 12:00 noon, the ribbon cutting ceremony commenced, with a presentation of the colors and singing of the national anthem by the Alton High School Air Force ROTC under direction of Master Sergeant Rich Dansizen. Jeff Owen, Executive Director of the library district, then welcomed all to the event and introduced Susan Huber, President of the Hayner Library Board of Trustees. Susan introduced the other attending board members, thanked the public for their patience during the renovation process and thanked the staff for all their hard work.

Senator William Haine spoke next, describing his own love of libraries and his fond memories of working as a page in the Hayner Library when he was a boy. Senator Haine turned the program over to our special guest, Jesse White, Illinois Secretary of State and State Librarian. Secretary White complimented the new library facility particularly for the innovation of locating in a mall environment.

Also sharing words of appreciation and congratulations were Mike Campion, the mayor of Godfrey; Dorothy Nagy, Foster Township Supervisor; and Alton Square Mall General Manager Lori Ehlers. Senator Haine then cut the ribbon, and the crowd was showered with balloons dropped from the mall's second level. The library doors were opened and people poured in, eager to check out their new library.

The crowd was delighted with what they found. Through the beautiful entryway is the main customer service desk where you can have a library staff member help you check out your materials; or, you can use the new self-checkout station.

Near the desk is the Bob Graul Gallery where you can access copies of the thousands of photographs Mr. Graul published over his career working for The Telegraph. Also, directly in front of you at the west side of the library is the colorful children's library with books, games, DVDs, computers with age-appropriate software and lots of space for story times and activities.Passing through the children's library, you enter a multi-purpose room that can be used for activities and programs for all ages.

Back in the main body of the library, the first set of stacks includes CDs, DVDs, magazines, newspapers and comfortable seating arrangements for reading the morning paper or other materials. The rest of the stacks are dedicated to fiction, nonfiction, mysteries, large print and reference materials, including a specific section for the small business owner.

There are 34 computers for public use (sign-up no longer required) and a Wi-Fi bar where you can use our wireless connection to go online with your own computer. At the north end of the library, you will find the reference desk staffed by two full-time reference librarians. Also in this area are two enclosed study rooms to accommodate students, home schoolers, exam takers and proctors, or anyone needing a quiet, private work space.

Adjoining the study rooms is our TeenSpace. This part of the library is set aside for teen/young adult materials, computers and seating. The collection of materials includes fiction and nonfiction, graphic novels, magazines, CDs and DVDs, all geared to the interests and needs of our teenage patrons. There is also a bank of computers set aside specifically for teen use.

Throughout the facility are a number of tables for independent study, lots of comfortable seating for reading and study, and computers with direct access to our online catalogues to find the location of specific materials. Signage throughout the library is more like that in a retail store than cryptic library coding.

At 1:00 p m., attendees of the Grand Opening were treated to a performance by the Jesse White Tumblers— a remarkable group of young men and women from Chicago who performs tumbling feats and acrobatics that take your breath away.

Special events continued throughout the week, including a Bounce House for kids, visiting staff and programs from the St. Louis Science Center, the St. Louis Zoo and the Butterfly House. Puppets, jugglers, clowns, and Izzy the Grizzly delighted youngsters and adults alike. The week of events concluded with a live performance by the musical group Bach to the Future performing classical music in contemporary arrangements on technically advanced electrical instruments and synthesizers. It was a great week of activities and drew crowds beyond our wildest hopes.

We are happy to report that the crowds keep coming. We have signed up hundreds of new library card holders. Foot traffic on a single day is surpassing the previous traffic counts of a whole month of activity.

The library is bright and inviting, and people are finding they can spend hours exploring the new facility and services. Besides self-checkout, patrons can retrieve special hold items themselves if they don't want to wait for staff assistance. We also are now offering laptop computers that you can check out for personal use on the library premises. Bow wow Pow wow (our therapy dog reading program) and computer training classes are offered in the multipurpose room. Come visit us often— you'll love it as much as we do!

A Poet's Legacy

Marlin Thomas was an extremely talented and artistic young man. He was also an activist, a passionate leader and a mentor to many Marlin Thomas was disabled

Marlin never regretted his disability—for it was that which defined the purpose of his life. Marlin accomplished so much during his life and touched so many people that those who knew him were truly blessed. For those of us who did not know Marlin, he left his poetry.

Marlin was an active, happy child. At the age of six, he was attending YMCA Camp in Pasadena, CA, when a counselor noted that he seemed to be having some difficulty keeping up while playing with the other children. A Phys. Ed. teacher also noticed that Marlin's motor skills seemed to be slowing down. Marlin's mother, Cynthia, immediately took him for medical care, which revealed upsetting news. Marlin was diagnosed with Duchenne muscular dystrophy, a progressive disease that was expected to diminish his life expectancy to a mere seventeen years.

Marlin and his mother shortly moved back to Alton so Marlin could receive medical treatment at Barnes-Jewish Hospital while living as normal a life as possible, which is exactly what Marlin did. He attended elementary schools in Alton where he excelled in his studies. At North Middle School, he played the drums in band and was an enthusiastic member of chorus.

By 14, Marlin had stopped walking and began to use a wheelchair full time; this slowed him down not at all Marlin had a motorized wheelchair that would get him all over town. Worried friends would call Marlin's mother and say, "We just saw Marlin up on the beltway." To which Cynthia would respond, "Is he upright?" "Yes." "Then he is doing fine!" Cynthia was determined that Marlin would have the freedom and independence to live his life as fully as possible; and with the love and support of Cynthia, his step-dad and surrounding family, this is exactly what Marlin was able to do. Because Alton High School at the time was not ADA compliant, Marlin could not matriculate with his friends. He was badly disappointed but accepted his reality, attending Civic Memorial in Bethalto. There, Marlin thrived. He discovered acting and was active in many clubs and activities.

Upon graduation from high school, Marlin attended LCCC, then SIUE as an English major. At SIUE, Marlin served as the president of New Horizons, a school-sponsored disability support group. In 1997, Marlin left school to work at IMPACT, where he was hired and mentored by Dick Goodwin, IMPACT'S founding Executive Director. IMPACT is a self-help advocacy organization formed to help people with disabilities live independently, free from physical and attitudinal barriers.

Marlin became a leader in the disability rights movement and facilitated remarkable achievements. He was a founding member of KASA (Kids as Self Advocates) an organization of teens and young adults with disabilities and also NDSU (National Disabled Student Union) a national, cross-disability student organization. He was an active member of CCDI (Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities in Illinois), which established The Marlin Thomas CCDI Conference Scholarship to benefit young people with disabilities who live in the Alton area, honoring Marlin's work as an advocate and a mentor. He was also an active member of SILC (Statewide Independent Living Council of Illinois) which established the Marlin Thomas Mentor of the Year Award presented at the annual IL Youth with Disabilities Leadership Summit

Marlin's goal was to allow people with disabilities to live as independently as possible; to not be forced due to environmental, economical or governmental constraints to live a life dependent on the care of others. Marlin himself was immensely proud of the day he moved into his own apartment—that day represented a personal achievement as well as an example to all people with disabilities that a disability does not have to equate to dependency.

Knowing Marlin's career accomplishments, however, is knowing only half the man Marlin also had the soul of an artist, to which he gave expression through writing poetry. He wrote his first poem as a child of seven years and from that day forward, poetry was a constant in his life. His writing filled notebook after notebook chronicling the course of his disease, his career and his life experiences.

Following his death, his mother Cynthia began reading through Marlin's notebooks. She was familiar with many of the poems, since Marlin would often read them to her after he finished writing, but she was amazed at the volume of work he had produced. She found it very therapeutic to read Marlin's poetry. She says, "The words evoked memories like he was still here with me."

Marlin had always talked about writing and publishing a book some day, and it occurred to Cynthia what a fitting tribute to her son it would be to publish a book of selected poems. She pored over his work, making the difficult decisions about what pieces to include. She recognized that Marlin's works generally fell into one of three categories: those depicting love, frequently unrequited, those dealing with disabled rights/issues; and those that defined how it felt to be disabled. Each of the three categories is represented in the final collection of his work.

In 2008 Marlin's poetry was published posthumously. The title of the collection is "Special Ed Is Down the Hall," a moving line from his poem "Welcome to CM." Marlin's poetry, which provided an emotional outlet for him, provides us great insight into the world of the disabled. His works are beautiful, moving and at times disturbing.

Marlin died on October 20, 2005, at the age of 30. He was a remarkable man who will always be remembered for his achievements in promoting rights for the disabled and as a man who fulfilled his purpose in life. He will also be remembered for the love and friendship he provided all who were a part of that life. Read Marlin's poems and you will be moved by the beauty and depth of his work.

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location.

The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during the first quarter of 2009.

In March, Jaquesz Sanders found $40 on the floor of his classroom. Rather than keep the money, which he easily could have done, he told his teacher and turned the money in to the assistant principal Jaquesz showed excellent judgment and certainly deserves to be recognized for doing the right thing.

When Blake Unterbrink, now 9 years old, received stitches in the Emergency Room of Alton Memorial four years ago, he was given a teddy bear to take home and help Blake to feel better. This past January, Blake's little brother Braden had to go to the emergency room also for stitches, but there were no bears for him to take home. Blake knew how disappointed his little brother was (they stopped on the way home and found one for him at Dollar General) and he felt badly that other children may be disappointed also. He emptied his piggy bank and raised enough money from family and friends to allow him to purchase 60 more bears for the hospital. He plans to raise more "bear money" by selling baked goods at a yard sale over the summer. Blake's efforts have helped many kids find their visit to the emergency room to be more bearable- Great job, Blake!

Men Make School More Fun at Head Start

Nets were swooshing, bodies were flying, the buzzer was buzzing, and fans were cheering at the first Head Start Dads Basketball Championship this spring. Riverbend Head Start & Family Services created the county-wide basketball tournament to promote positive male involvement in childrens' preschool education.

The Essie Robinson Head Start Center in Alton had so many men sign up to play that they had to have their own tournament at East Elementary School in March to see which of the two teams would represent the center in the county-wide tournament in April at Madison Middle School Over 200 family, friends and folks from the community showed up to watch and cheer

In the end, the Edwardsville Head Start Center and Venice Head Start Center teams faced off in the championship game. Venice took home the traveling trophy by winning 58-32.

More than 60 dads and father figures of Head Start preschoolers in Madison County played basketball for bragging rights this spring. Hundreds of friends, family and community members showed up to cheer for their favorite team, dad or father figure at East Elementary and again at Madison Middle School. At Madison, students ran a concession stand and the school's Coach McFarland served as the referee.

The tournament also give families a chance to socialize with one another at a high spirited event, a rare occasion for many due to low-income, lack of transportation, or an inability to access free, safe family-friendly activities in their communities. Even more rare is for families to travel from the northern end of the county to the southern end for an event.

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services enrolls over 1,300 qualifying babies, toddlers and preschoolers in its child development programs each year. Head Start is one of those programs with over 800 children enrolled Parent Involvement is a cornerstone of the program which strives to teach children and strengthen the whole family in order to prepare kids for success in kindergarten and life.

The Championship game may not have been quite like The Final Four of the NCAA or the NBA Championship Series, but it sure had a positive impact on little kids and their families all over Madison County.

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services is a non-profit organization that provides child development and counseling services to thousands of children and families in Madison County Through its programs like Head Start the agency enables children and families to develop positive skills to meet life's challenges Created in 1965, Head Start is the most successful, longest-running, national school readiness program in the United States. It provides comprehensive education, health, nutrition, and parent involvement services to qualifying children and their families. The Hayner Public Library District is proud to partner with Head Start on many of their literacy progams.

Patron Profile: Karen McAtee

It seems as if everyone knows Karen McAtee and Karen knows everyone! Well, maybe not everyone…it just seems that way.

It is immediately apparent that the warm and outgoing Karen is a people person, and this is reflected in her career success, volunteerism and close family relationships.

Karen, a native of the Alton area, attended East Alton Wood River High School, after which she worked at Germania Savings and Loan. Karen remained at Germania for 16 years, rising from teller to Chief Accountant

While working at Germania, Karen attended industry classes to grow her knowledge. She completed a degree that gained her a teaching position at Lewis and Clark Community College for 11 years. At the college she taught "Savings and Loan Principles" and "Principles of Banking" while simultaneously advancing through the ranks at Germania.

Karen accepted a position at Home Savings and Loan as Vice President and Treasurer. She was at Home Savings and Loan for seven years. After marrying, she moved to Kirksville, Missouri where she lived for one year before returning to the Alton area. At that time, she took a temporary job with Jim Schrempf, Alton City Attorney.

Anxious for full-time employment, Karen hired into MIPCO, First National Bank of Alton's processing center, as a part of their business development group. However, Karen missed the banking business and accepted a position with MidAmerica Bank (now Regions) and became Vice President/Center Manager in 1984. In 2004, Karen accepted a position as Vice President/Center Manager at TheBANK of Edwardsville at their Alton Center. The locally owned bank gave her the opportunity to serve her customers with a more personal touch.

Karen notes that the banking industry has changed dramatically for women since she entered the industry in 1963. There were very few women in banking positions, other than tellers, and Karen recalls multiple instances of discrimination as she was moving forward in her career. Today, however, the banking industry is much more evenly balanced in the workforce and women now have equal career opportunities

Karen says that the banking industry has come full circle in defining industry objectives. When Karen first started at Germania, the number one priority of every bank employee was customer service. Over time, the industry focus changed and volume sales of specific products became the critical performance evaluation criteria. Today, most banks have returned to a customer service focus, tailoring financial products and solutions to the customer's very specific needs.

Karen has always conducted business based on the premise that the bank's bottom line will be fine if you can provide financial proposals that fit the individual customer's specific needs. When Karen first started, a bank's business revenue was based on sales of three components: checking accounts, savings accounts and loans. Today, there is a wide variety of options and services a bank can offer to its customers, facilitating Karen's goal to provide her customers with a truly personal banking experience.

Besides her job, Karen also stays busy with her community involvement. She has been a member of the Riverbend Growth Association for 20 years. She serves on several committees for the Growth Association including the Women's Conference Committee, the Young Adults Committee and acting as a Growth Association Ambassador. She has served previously on the Association's Board of Directors. Karen has found working with the Young Adults Committee to be very satisfying and rewarding. This committee consists of two students from six local high schools who are mentored for community service, learning the value of giving back to their communities. Karen occasionally runs into past students she has mentored and finds that they did retain many of the skills that were practiced when they were on the committee. One student is an attorney, one a banker and one runs a large hotel.

Karen has received several Chairman Awards from the Growth Association. She has been recognized as Volunteer of the Year and Ambassador of the Year by the Growth Association and received several awards for her work with the Young Adults Committee.

Karen volunteers with the Community Hope Center (a crisis help center for people in need.) Her involvement with the Community Hope Center is planning a "Reflections of Style" (a women's fair) on July 30 at the Holiday Inn in Alton. She is involved with SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) and Saints Peter and Paul Church where she is a greeter, Eucharistic minister and Treasurer of the Altar Society.

Karen was recognized as a Women of Distinction by the Soroptimists International in 1996 and recognized again in 2001 by the YWCA as a Woman of Distinction.

Karen loves her volunteer work and plans to continue it even after retirement. Not only is it rewarding and of great value to the community, but Karen says it keeps her young to stay involved with people.

Karen's husband, Frank McAtee, is a real estate appraiser and consultant. She credits him as a constant source of encouragement in the early years of her career, but now he would be happy if she would slow down a little – something she is just not quite ready to do. Married 26 years, Frank and Karen raised a blended family of six children, 12 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

Family is most important in Karen's life, and with all the kids living in the area (except one daughter) "family holidays are crazy- and so much fun" she says. Karen's mother still lives in the area and they enjoy vacations at the Lake of the Ozarks and Florida every year.

Karen is an avid reader (and she LOVES the new Hayner Library at the Alton Square Mall) and rarely misses her weekly visits to the library with one or more of her grandchildren.

Thank you, Karen, for your many contributions to our community – the Riverbend is certainly lucky to have you!

World Class Show

Compliments of The Hayner Public Library District

Earlier in 2009, The Hayner Public Library was awarded a grant by the Illinois States Attorney General. The grant, among other activities, will allow the library to sponsor the Jabali Acrobats for a free public appearance on Thursday, October 29th at Hatheway Hall on the campus of Lewis and Clark Community College. The performance will begin at 7:00 p.m.

Jabali African Acrobats

Originating in Mombasa, Kenya, these talented acrobats/artists have thrilled audiences of all ages with their unique display of athleticism, art, movement, and acrobatic majesty.

This breathtaking performance exemplifies the link between athletics and the arts as incredible acrobatics, contortions, tumbling, human pyramids, and chair balancing turn to dance with the Congo Snake Dance, the Flamingo Limbo Bar Dance and Skip Rope Footwork techniques, as well as comedy all to electrifying music. Audience participation is always included.

These extraordinary athletes provide positive role models as they explain the dedication and discipline needed to develop the skill and excellence they have reached in their careers.

With in-your-face excitement, the Jabali Acrobats guarantee a motivational and high-energy performance accenting youth and positive thinking.

Performances include "Late Night with David Letterman", Toronto Children's Festival, Universoul Circus, numerous NBA and college half-time performances, and a special invitation to perform for President Clinton in the White House. Jabali also tours regularly with the Harlem Globetrotters.

Meet a World-Famous Author and Humanitarian

The Hayner Public Library District, in partnership with The Alton Regional Convention and Visitor's Bureau, ConocoPhillips, Junior League of Greater Alton, Lewis & Clark Community College, Principia College, and the Simmons Law Firm, will sponsor a book signing and author discussion with Greg Mortenson on Friday, October 9, 2009. Mr. Mortenson's book Three Cups of Tea: One Man's Mission to Promote Peace…One School at a Time, has been nominated for the 2009 Nobel Peace Prize. This book details Mortenson's journey in Pakistan, beginning with his becoming sick and lost while climbing a mountain and continuing with his building first a school, and then an institute, all with the goals of educating children and paying back the kindness he was shown.

Mortenson is a living hero to rural communities of Afghanistan and Pakistan, where he has gained the trust of Islamic leaders, military commanders, government officials and tribal chiefs from his tireless efforts to champion education, especially for girls. As of 2009, Mortenson has established more than 90 schools in volatile regions of Pakistan and Afghanistan that provide education and promote peace to 34,000 children.

Excerpts of the letter nominating Mortenson to the Norwegian Nobel Committee, written by Congressman Mary Bono Mack (R-Ca.), include "Mr. Mortenson's life work is remarkable. He has overcome great adversity, escaping brutality and death, to continue his commitment to providing educational opportunities to children, especially girls, living in Pakistan and Afghanistan. As we well know, educating females in these countries remains controversial. Mr. Mortenson understands the tremendous positive, peaceful impacts that educated girls and women have on societies around the world. He advocates girls' education as the key to economic development and peace and he continues to fight to make this possible where it otherwise may not be achieved .He brings with him the courage and compassion few others have to bridge cultural differences and help countries build better societies."

The book's central theme, derived from a Baltistan proverb, rings loud and clear. "The first time you share tea with a Balti, you are a stranger," a villager tells Mortenson. "The second time, you are an honored guest. The third time, you become family." An inspirational story of one man's efforts to address poverty, educate children and overcome cultural divides reveals the enormous obstacles inherent in becoming such "family". The book has been on the New York Times best seller list for more than 130 weeks

Participating sponsors of this event will provide copies of Three Cups of Tea, Young Readers edition, to all fourth-grade students from Alton public and private schools. On October 9 the students will be bused to the Alton Amphitheatre to be addressed by Mr. Mortenson at 12 45 p.m. At 2:00 p.m., October 9, Mr. Mortenson will address the general public and will be available for book signings. Do not miss this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to meet a Nobel Prize nominee, best-selling author and world-renowned humanitarian. This program is free to the public.

Major funding for the Greg Mortenson visit is provided by the Principia College's Annenberg Visiting Scholar Program

She continued working at the library on a full-time basis, and, for several years, she worked as the manager of the former Branch facility in Alton Square Mall. She is now manager of the Hayner Downtown Library.

Food for Fines

In past years, we have waived current fines on Hayner material if you contributed a nonperishable food item for each fine during a holiday time amnesty period. The past couple of years we have decided to start spreading the holiday spirit a little early, sponsoring the program in October. It was very successful, and we have decided to repeat the October scheduling of the program.

From October 1 through October 31, 2009, anyone who has an overdue item can pay their fine with a canned goods food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine and Hayner materials only. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community

There are several reasons we decided to move up the fine amnesty program. During the holidays, many different organizations support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but as we get wrapped up in our everyday lives, we sometimes forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are hoping this amnesty calendar change can help people immediately without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity". It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

Perhaps you have some Hayner material that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center, but it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

New Procedures for Computer Use Sign-up

With the renovations of the library facility at Alton Square Mall, the library has included several new technologies. One is a CASSIE system to electronically manage sign up and use of the public computers.

CASSIE is an automated system that will manage public computer use and printing throughout the Hayner Public Library District. CASSIE relieves the patron of having to sign up for the computers at the circulation desk and of having to wait for staff to retrieve and collect payment of printed materials.

To use the public computers you need a valid library card and a PIN number. The library card can be issued by any library in the Lewis and Clark library system. If your library is not a member of the Lewis and Clark Library System, you can sign in as a guest to use the computers. This requires showing a driver's license or photo ID to the staff at the circulation desk, and staff will provide you with a guest ID. Select an open computer and sign in with your library card barcode number and PIN number. For first-time users, PIN numbers can be obtained from circulation desk staff. If all the computers are in use, you can reserve the next available computer with your library card. Computer usage will be allotted in one-hour sessions. Your computer will let you know when you are nearing the end of your session so that you can save your work. If there are no reservations from other users, you can continue working.

To print your work, at the public use printer/copier, enter your barcode and PIN number. Printing and copies are $.15 per page for black and white and $.30 per page for color. Library staff at the circulation desk will be happy to help you if you have any questions.

You can also bring in your own laptop (Windows, Mac OS, Linux) or PDA and access the Hayner Library wireless network.

Bring Us Your Computer Questions

Although the computer classes offered through Hayner Library have already filled for the fall session, we already know that we will be offering classes again, beginning in March of 2010. The topics we are prepared to offer next spring include Microsoft Office applications (Word and Excel 2007); computer maintenance (installing memory; swapping out drives, etc.); and social networking (Internet and email). Throughout the year, we will be offering computer help on a one-on-one basis for beginning users. These sessions will be held the first Friday of every month, from 9 a.m. through noon. A patron can drop by the Mall library at any time between those hours, look for the person wearing a button with a red rose (representing our own House of 'Tutor'), and get answers to almost any question they may have about using computers.

If you already know that you would like to enroll in one of the classes we'll be offering in the spring, please call 462-0677, Ext. 2830 to be put on our waiting list. In the meantime, may I suggest two online sites that are good for self-help with computers and computer programs:

1. www.gcflearnfree.org is a site that offers a variety of classes. It is totally free, and, if you register with them, even more lessons become available to you. Look for the button over on the right that will link you specifically to computers.

2. www.office.microsoft.com did a fairly nice job of putting help out on the Internet for their products. Look at the top of the website for the "Help and How To" tab, click on it, and then, in the next window, type in a keyword for that topic. (That search box is near the top of the website, on the left.)

We look forward to hearing from you and especially to seeing you enrolled in our classes!

Washington, D.C. -- For the first time in more than 25 years, American adults are reading more literature, according to a new study by the National Endowment for the Arts. Reading on the Rise documents a definitive increase in rates and numbers of American adults who read literature, with the biggest increases among young adults, ages 18-24. This new growth reverses two decades of downward trends cited previously in NEA reports such as Reading at Risk and To Read or Not To Read.

"At a time of immense cultural pessimism, the NEA is pleased to announce some important good news. Literary reading has risen in the U.S. for the first time in a quarter century," said NEA Chairman Dana Gioia. "This dramatic turnaround shows that the many programs now focused on reading are working. Cultural decline is not inevitable."

Among the key findings:

Literary reading increases

- For the first time in the history of the survey - conducted five times since 1982 - the overall rate at which adults read literature (novels and short stories, plays, or poems) rose by seven percent.
- The absolute number of literary readers has grown significantly. There were 16.6 million more adult readers of literature in 2008. The growth in new readers reflects higher adult reading rates combined with overall population growth.
- The 2008 increases followed significant declines in reading rates for the two most recent ten-year survey periods (1982-1992 and 1992-2002).

Demographics of literature readers

- Young adults show the most rapid increases in literary reading. Since 2002, 18-24 year olds have seen the biggest increase (nine percent) in literary reading, and the most rapid rate of increase (21 percent). This jump reversed a 20 percent rate of decline in the 2002 survey, the steepest rate of decline since the NEA survey began.
- Since 2002, reading has increased at the sharpest rate (+20 percent) among Hispanic Americans, Reading rates have increased among African Americans by 15 percent, and among Whites at an eight percent rate of increase.
- For the first time in the survey's history, literary reading has increased among both men and women. Literary reading rates have grown or held steady for adults of all education levels.

Trends in media and literary preferences

- Fiction (novels and short stories) accounts for the new growth in adult literary readers.
- Reading poetry and drama continues to decline, especially poetry-reading among women.
- Online readers also report reading books. Eighty-four percent of adults who read literature (fiction, poetry, or drama) on or downloaded from the Internet also read books, whether print or online.
- Nearly 15 percent of all U.S. adults read literature online in 2008.

A tale of two Americas

- The U.S. population now breaks into two almost equally sized groups – readers and non-readers.
- A slight majority of American adults now read literature (113 million) or books (119 million) in any format.
- Reading is an important indicator of positive individual and social behavior patterns. Previous NEA research has shown that literary readers volunteer, attend arts and sports events, do outdoor activities, and exercise at higher rates than non-readers.

NEA literature initiatives

The issue of declining reading rates has been addressed by a number of public and private initiatives. The Arts Endowment has embraced the challenge with a range of programs to promote reading among young audiences. Obviously, these programs are working. We encourage you to demonstrate your support of National Endowment of the Arts through legislative initiatives, sponsorship opportunities and donations and gifts. # MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during this past summer.

Whitney White recently graduated from Alton High School and received a Mission Recognition award in May 2009. She was nominated by her teacher who recognized Whitney as "one of the top students I have worked with in my 21 years of teaching. Whitney is in Honors English and is editor of the student newspaper, The Red Bird Word. She brings a fresh approach and an enthusiastic attitude to her work as editor She is one of my all-time best editors." Whitney was selected for the challenging job as editor because her peers recognize her strong leadership skills. Whitney is an active member of the school's student body. She participates in the National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, the French Club, Power of Peers and is a Good Friend Mentor for at-risk students. She is also very involved in her church as a mentor and is active in both Minority Excellence and Educational Talent Search. Whitney constantly sets a great example for her fellow students and peer journalists with her calm and unassuming dedication to her challenging job as editor. She is a talented and caring young woman who also is the primary caretaker of her grandmother with whom she lives. Congratulations, Whitney, and best wishes in all your future endeavors.

Also recognized in May was fifth grader Lyrica Williams. Lyrica attends the STARS After School program at her school, Lewis and Clark Elementary. One day, at the end of the program, Whitney found a purse in the gym where the STARS students meet. The purse contained cash, credit cards and other important items. Lyrica immediately took the purse to the staff office to find the rightful owner. Lyrica is a very good student and has many friends. She is a hard worker and very respectful to others. We are proud to recognize Lyrica for "doing the right thing"!

In June, recognition was awarded to Daniel Parham who had just completed his junior year at Alton High School. In May, the school had to be evacuated due to an unfortunate incident. Students and teachers went to a nearby church. The return path to school was on a muddy, rocky incline that was hard to walk on. One of the teachers was having difficulty with the path and Daniel, walking behind her, took her arm to help her back to school. He was very gentle and took his time with her (even with all his peers around) guiding her to campus. This was a notable act of maturity and kindness that was observed by many and set a wonderful example.

Kaitlyn Braham and Alyssa Weidler both attend Alton High School. Together, they found an envelope filled with cash – money that had been collected to buy a gift for a teacher. They easily could have kept the money for themselves but they turned it into the office. School staff members were extremely grateful and impressed, and both girls are certainly due recognition for their honesty and integrity in making the right choice.

Thomas (Tommy) Reese is a fourth-year Spanish student and he is also an extremely gifted computer programmer. Tommy independently designed and installed a program on his Spanish teacher's computer that aids in the study of the formation of frequently used verbs. It is simple to use and an excellent tool for a practicing Spanish student at any level. Tommy used his knowledge of multiple disciplines to help other students, exercising creativity and independent thinking.

LeEssence Evans recently completed third grade at North Elementary school. She found an expensive digital camera lost by another student. Rather than keep it, she immediately turned it in to the Assistant Principal. LeEssence demonstrated honesty and good judgment, making her teachers and family proud.

Apostrophical Musings

It was my worst fear while teaching. I actively avoided teaching it for as long as I could, but, inevitably, at some point during the second grade curricula, it had to be taught. I knew that, as soon as I taught it, things would spin inexorably out of control and I would no longer be able to contain its force. It would take on a personality of its own and would soon have a ruinous impact on much of what it touched. What was it, you ask, that caused me such angst? What was it that could wreak havoc and destruction within the context of what was being learned? What single piece of instruction was it that would so often go astray?

You can probably guess. I've used it only once during the course of this essay. In fact, it's been used twice just in these past three sentences. Can you guess what it is? It is probably the most overused article of punctuation in the English language. Yep. You're right! It's the dreaded apostrophe!

Apostrophes (notice that I didn't use one in that word, even though it did end in an "s") are much like single drops of water. By themselves, they don't do much harm and, at times, may even be useful; however, like drops of water that have accumulated, there's always that one drop that will send the rest of the drops that have gathered together tumbling over the dam, rushing over the lip of the cup, spilling down the curbs of the street. Apostrophes unleashed can soon become like those drops of water: ubiquitous marks peppered liberally throughout all kinds of writing, with no purpose behind them whatsoever.

Once discovered, apostrophes start appearing at the end of any word ending in an "s". No matter that the word following that apostrophe-ed word is not owned by that word; no matter that the apostrophe-ed word is not a contraction signifying "something IS" or "something HAS": The apostrophe is there to be used, and the anxious learner begins to use it at will. You begin to see them in every word that ends in an "s". To take it to the extreme, I give you an example: "This' person's ideas' about apostrophes' is' that they all should never be taught in the first place." How horrible it would be to see them used even more than they're used now!

I say it's time to declare war on the apostrophe. It's time to declare war on contractions and ownership. We must start writing in complete sentences along the lines of this: "I say it is time to declare war on the apostrophe. It is time…" Other sentences might have to be longer and more awkwardly constructed, like "The dog of Janet and Jim wore a backpack on his back;" or, "The yard that is so beautifully trimmed belongs to the Scott family;" instead of "Janet and Jim's dog wore a backpack on its back;" or "The Scotts' yard is beautifully trimmed."

It will be difficult to make the adjustment, I'm sure. We'd have to (oops… I mean, We would have to….) eradicate that key on all of our keyboards, remove the mention of its existence from our English instruction books, and be very careful about how we wrote from here on out; but, in the long run, we would not have to suffer through the ill-constructed signs, newspaper articles, flyers, and advertisements that are written by over-eager apostrophe-ed people.

My heart goes out to those who are over-anxious about using this particular piece of punctuation: I know that you are well-meaning and only wanting to make sure that it is getting its due. I understand that you only want to make those cute little flying commas feel needed and appreciated; but will you not feel much more relaxed the next time you write, knowing that you never have to use the apostrophe at all? It will whittle down the number of punctuation marks that you will have to use and life will be much easier in years to come. Who knows what will result from this bold move? Maybe our next step could be the elimination of the word "irregardless" from our vocabulary… but, I digress.

-Ann Bromaghim

Books Banned and Challenged in 2008 – 2009

Banned Books Week 2009 is the twenty-eighth annual celebration of the freedom to read. This freedom, not only to choose what we read, but also to select from a full array of possibilities, is firmly rooted in the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Even if well intentioned, censors try to limit the freedom of others to choose what they read, see or hear. Frequently, challenges are motivated by the desire to protect children. Individuals may restrict what they themselves or their children read, but they must not call on government or public agencies to prevent others from reading or seeing material.

Challenging a book represents a request to remove materials from schools or libraries, thus restricting access to them by others. Even when the eventual outcome allows the book to stay on library shelves, the censorship attempt is real. Challenges are as important to document as are actual bannings, in which the material is removed from the shelves of libraries or bookstores. Attempts to censor can lead to voluntary restriction of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy. Due to the commitment of parents, students, librarians, teachers and concerned citizens, more and more challenges are unsuccessful and the material remains available.

Many prohibitions against free speech and expression remain undocumented. Surveys indicate approximately 85 percent of the challenges to library materials receive no media attention and remain unreported. Moreover, the yearly identification of challenged titles documented by the American Library Association is limited to books and does not include challenges to magazines, newspapers, films, broadcasts, plays, performances, electronic publications or exhibits. The ALA recorded 513 challenges in 2008, up from 420 in 2007. Seventy-four books were actually removed from shelves following challenges last year. The top ten most frequently challenged books of 2008 include:

1. And Tango Makes Three, by Justin Richardson and Peter Parnell
2. His Dark Materials trilogy, by Philip Pullman
3. TTYL; TTFN; L8R, G8R (series), by Lauren Myracle
4. Scary Stories (series), by Alvin Schwartz
5. Bless Me, Ultima, by Rudolfo Anaya
6. The Perks of Being a Wallflower, by Stephen Chbosky
7. Gossip Girl (series), by Cecily von Ziegesar
8. Uncle Bobby's Wedding, by Sarah S. Brannen
9. The Kite Runner, by Khaled Hosseini
10. Flashcards of My Life, by Charise Mericle Harper

Barb Schubert Hinson

Barb Hinson is a delightful person who obviously has a zest for life and a great love and commitment to family, friends and community. Born and raised in Alton, she attended St. Peter and Paul Elementary School. She completed several years at Marquette High School before transferring to St Mary's Catholic Academy for girls in South Bend, Indiana.

As a young girl, Barb remembers taking a bus to her grandmother's house in North Alton every Friday night. The two would head to downtown Alton for dinner and to visit the many shops that stayed open Friday evenings. Barb recalls how busy and active downtown Alton was on Friday evenings. Everyone came down to visit, socialize and shop. She also remembers how proud she was to be the winning Jacks champion for the YWCA Girl's Club, the Junior Susies.

Barb has fond memories of playing with the other kids in her neighborhood and how important it was to keep up with the boys climbing in and around the bluffs and hidden caves. One afternoon the boys took the girls to see Blue Pool, the (supposedly) bottomless pool at the base of the bluffs on the river road. As a joke, the boys "ditched" the girls. The girls weren't sure of their way home and it was getting dark, so they all took out their rosaries and said prayers as they walked down the river road. Barb can't remember why they had rosary beads with them but laughs, thinking of the sight the girls must have provided to passing traffic.

Another memorable afternoon, Barb's brother Bob was actually "buried alive" while playing King of the Hill in a sand pile, also on the River Road. Bob was completely buried in the sand and required artificial respiration to be revived. Barb was at home washing dishes when one of Bob's pals came to the house and handed her a familiar looking shoe. He said to Barb, "Here's Bob's shoe. He's been buried alive." Barb practically fainted!

After high school, Barb attended Marymount College in Tarrytown, New York. Barb remembers the day she left home to fly to New York to attend college. Her flight was booked almost exclusively with men traveling for business—and Barb. It was Barb's first flight and the farthest she had ever been away from home alone. Overwhelmed by homesickness, she cried during the entire flight to NY. When she arrived in NY, she had no plan on how to get to Tarrytown, approximately a 45-minute-drive from the airport. Upon landing, feeling sorry for the poor distraught young woman, every businessman on the flight offered to drive Barb to Tarrytown. Barb, of course, had been raised to never get in a car with a stranger and ended up taking a taxi to her new college. That must have been some cab fare!

Following her education at Marymount, Barb attended Western Illinois University to earn a teaching degree. Barb's parents felt it was extremely important that all their children go to college. Barb's two brothers both attended Brown University for their undergraduate degrees. One received his masters from the University of Chicago and another went on to Harvard Divinity School and the University of Michigan, earning several doctoral degrees.

Barb's father and mother, Ralph and Helen Luken, owned the Luken Insurance Agency, a real estate firm and several other business ventures, so, after college, Barb worked for a short time in the family business until she received a teaching position with Irving Elementary School There, she taught third grade for five years. Barb raised her three children while working in the family business, teaching and finally opening the Strawberry Patch Gift Shop in Mineral Springs Mall

During this period of operating her gift shop, Barb became a single mom and determined that she needed a more consistent income stream Foxes Grove Retirement Community in Wood River had been courting Barb for some time to take a job in marketing and public relations. Finally, her future boss promised Barb two things if she took the position: 1) eventually she would be making over $5 an hour and 2) she would meet her future husband. Barb liked the sound of $5.00/hour but was rather disbelieving (and uninterested) in the idea of finding a husband.

She liked her job immediately and soon was promoted to Director—a job that required that Barb be involved in all facets of operation of the retirement community and on call 24/7.

Barb recalls one time when the chef did not come to work one afternoon and the residents were waiting for their lunch. Barb has many talents, but she freely admits that she does not, under any circumstances, cook. However, the situation left no choice but for Barb to pitch in and prepare lunch. After many tries to turn the oven on, Barb finally called for help from her cousin, Linda. It turned out that Barb did not know how to turn on a gas stove with a pilot light—she had only used an electric stove. During her 16 years of working at Foxes Grove, Barb met many wonderful people and developed a great love of working with seniors.

One of the residents at the retirement community was "a very young" 72-year-old-gentleman. He confessed to Barb that he did not have enough to do, so she offered to introduce him to some of the other ladies in the residence. He declined her offer and said, "No, I'll take you out." They dated quietly for a year and then got married. This November, Barb and her husband Elmo will celebrate 19 very happy years of marriage. Elmo was a musician in the late 1930s and early 1940s, playing trombone with the Orrin Tucker Band. They were the regular band on the CBS radio show for "Your Hit Parade" and also played at such venues as the Palmer House, the Mark Hopkins and Casa Loma Ballroom. The band made many popular recordings and was even featured in a movie. The band broke up right before the war and Elmo went to work for American Steel as a cost accountant.

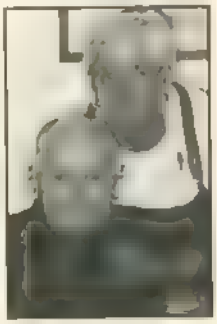
While Barb no longer works at Foxes Grove, she still remains incredibly busy, doing charitable community work and enjoying family and friends. Barb and Elmo raised their family in their home on Bluff Street, a neighborhood that Barb loves. Two of their children live in St. Louis, and they have a son who is earning his doctorate in Primatology from Ohio State University and lives in the jungles of Ghana, studying a specific breed of monkey. Barb and Elmo also have two grandchildren, one who calls visiting Barb and Elmo "going to Grandma Camp."

This past summer, parts of State Street, going into Christian Hill and to 9th Street, were lined with American flags It is lovely, a touch of Americana spearheaded by Barb, Elmo and several of their neighbors, the Novotnys, Nilsons and Hovens. During the holidays, Barb hopes they will accomplish a similar project setting out luminaries on Christmas Eve, lighting Christian Hill from the river to State Street

Barb has been very involved in the Relay for Life. When she was working at Foxes Grove, their relay team raised the most money for the charity in the East Alton/Wood River areas. For years, she served on the board of the Alton YWCA, and the American Cancer Society. She has volunteered with the Junior League of Greater Alton, Alton Community Service League, Alton Children's Theater, Easter Seal Society and the Christian Hill Association. In 2008, she was recognized as one of twelve Women of Distinction by the YWCA. She is currently co-chairing the St. Vincent de Paul Christmas Bazaar, raising over $10,000 for the charity, and she continues to participate in the production of Vintage Voices, the Alton City Cemetery tour held in October.

Barb feels very strongly about giving back to the community following the philosophy "it is up to us to make the community what we are and what we want it to be. We each must be responsible in making a difference."

Barb says she doesn't know what she would do without the Hayner Library. As a child, she frequently walked down the State Street hill to use the library. All three of her children, Becky, Andrew and Rob, worked as library pages while they were in high school. She attends many of the special library programs, and she was particularly pleased to take Elmo to a program featuring The Boneheads, a trombone quartet. Barb lunches monthly with her library friends and visits the downtown library almost weekly to check out books. Barb says, "There is no friendlier place to be when you need help finding a book, learning about your family or doing research."



Barb also loves spending time with family, friends and neighbors. She says she still sees friends from kindergarten and her years at Marquette but enjoys making new friends every day possible. As one member of the library staff says, "She has touched so many lives. She is a gem."

Partners in Education

Reading and learning are two things to which everyone should have access. Riverbend Head Start & Family Services partners with The Hayner Public Library District to ensure that is the case for the community at large. Here are some of the latest activities.

Parents Are Teachers

It is crucial that children be introduced to reading at an early age. This introduces the idea of education and its importance before a child is even enrolled in school. Riverbend Head Start & Family Services has applied for a grant to expand its Early Head Start Program. If successful, it will serve an additional 100 qualifying infants and toddlers. The goal is to prepare children for success in kindergarten, especially those already at–risk of academic failure, and literacy – for both parent and child is a key part of its efforts. EHS is a home visiting program that helps parents be their child's very best teacher. It uses the nationally acclaimed Parents as Teachers curriculum

Pre-K Literacy

Preschool is a chance for children to become familiar with the education process and to prepare for kindergarten. For the 10th year in a row Reading Is Fundamental (RIF), a federal literacy program, has granted over $5,000 to Riverbend Head Start & Family Services to help preschoolers learn to love reading. Head Start will put 3,000 free books in the hands of over 900 preschoolers in Madison County. This year, TheBANK of Edwardsville donated $1,784 to RHSFS for the RIF grant's required local match.

Head Start is the most successful, longest-running national school readiness program in the United States. It provides comprehensive education, health, nutrition, and parental involvement services to qualifying children and their families. Hayner Library is pleased to partner with Head Start in many of their literacy activities, and Hayner staff regularly participate in activities at the various Head Start centers.

Literacy is a community concern. Partnerships like this help resolve it.

Watt Solutions – Plug into Savings

In an effort to help you learn how to spend less on electricity by using less, the Ameren Illinois Utilities announced the WATT Solutions program, a new partnership with downstate Illinois public libraries, Through a grant awarded to the Lewis and Clark Library System, The Hayner Public Library District will be participating in this initiative.

The Ameren Illinois Utilities have donated WATT Solution kits with Kill A Watt EZ power meters to Hayner. Library patrons will be able to borrow the kits from either Hayner Library location at no cost.

"I am pleased to join the Ameren Illinois Utilities in giving Illinois citizens the tools they need to make their home a greener place," said Gov. Quinn. "Making these power meters available at local libraries will empower Illinois families to save money on their electric bill and make their home more energy efficient."

"Using the Kill A Watt EZ power use measuring device, our WATT Solutions initiative shows you how much it costs to operate electrical appliances and devices. You also can learn how much it costs to leave appliances and devices on, such as computers, printers and modems," said Stan Ogden, Ameren Illinois Utilities vice president of Customer Service and Public Relations

With WATT Solutions, a consumer simply plugs in an appliance or device and the meter shows the electric usage by the kilowatt-hour (kWh). With the power use measuring device, you may calculate cumulative electrical expenses which you can project by the day, week, month or even the year.

In many cases, you may be surprised to learn just how much electricity some common electrical appliances use. WATT Solutions allows you to obtain the information you need to make decisions regarding the replacement of older energy hungry appliances with new ENERGY STAR rated appliances. For example, an ENERGY STAR rated refrigerator can save about $70 a year in electricity costs as compared to an older refrigerator

The WATT Solutions kit also contains detailed information on reducing electric usage, covering such categories as heating, cooling, lighting, home entertainment and appliances. There also is a glossary of commonly used electrical terms.

The WATT Solutions kits are available to check out, as you would check out other library materials The kits will be kept at the circulation desks of both the downtown library and the library at Alton Square Mall.

Why English Teachers Die Young

Every year, English teachers from across the country can submit their collections of actual analogies and metaphors found in high school essays. These excerpts are published each year to the amusement of teachers across the country. Here are some previous winners .

1. She grew on him like she was a colony of E. Coli, and he was room-temperature Canadian beef.
2. She had a deep, throaty, genuine laugh, like that sound a dog makes just before it throws up.
3. Her vocabulary was as bad as, like, whatever.
4. He was as tall as a six-foot, three-inch tree.

7. Her hair glistened in the rain like a nose hair after a sneeze.
8. The hailstones leaped from the pavement, just like maggots when you fry them in hot grease
9. Long separated by cruel fate, the star-crossed lovers raced across the grassy field toward each other like two freight trains, one having left Cleveland at 6:36 p.m traveling at 55 mph, the other from Topeka at 4:19 p.m. at a speed of 35 mph.

11. John and Mary had never met. They were like two hummingbirds who had also never met.
12. He fell for her like his heart was a mob informant, and she was the East River.
13. He was as lame as a duck. Not the metaphorical lame duck, either, but a real duck that was actually lame, maybe from stepping on a land mine or something.
14. He was deeply in love. When she spoke, he thought he heard bells, as if she were a garbage truck backing up.
15. She walked into my office like a centipede with 98 missing legs.

Folding the Flag

As an Army and Navy custom, the flag is lowered daily at the last note of retreat. Special care should be taken that no part of the flag touches the ground. The flag is then carefully folded into the shape of a tri-cornered hat, emblematic of the hats worn by colonial soldiers during the war for Independence. In the folding, the red and white stripes are finally wrapped into the blue, as the light of day vanishes into the darkness of night. This custom of special folding is reserved for the United States flag alone.

1. The first fold of our flag is a symbol of life.
2. The second fold is a symbol of our belief in the eternal life.
3. The third fold is made in honor and remembrance of the veteran departing our ranks who gave a portion of life for the defense of our country to attain a peace throughout the world.
4. The fourth fold represents our weaker nature, for as American citizens trusting in God, it is to Him we turn in times of peace as well as in times of war for His divine guidance.
5. The fifth fold is a tribute to our country, for in the words of Stephen Decatur, "Our country, in dealing with other countries, may she always be right; but it is still our country, right or wrong."
6. The sixth fold is for where our hearts lie. It is with our heart that we pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the republic for which it stands, one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

7. The seventh fold is a tribute to our Armed Forces, for it is through the Armed Forces that we protect our country and our flag against all her enemies, whether they be found within or without the boundaries of our republic.

8. The eighth fold is a tribute to the one who entered into the valley of the shadow of death, that we might see the light of day, and to honor mother, for whom it flies on Mother's Day.

9. The ninth fold is a tribute to womanhood; for it has been through their faith, love, loyalty and devotion that the characters of the men and women who have made this country great have been molded.

10. The tenth fold is a tribute to father, for he, too, has given his sons and daughters for the defense of our country since they were first born.

11. The eleventh fold, in the eyes of a Hebrew citizen, represents the lower portion of the seal of King David and King Solomon, and glorifies, in their eyes, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

12. The twelfth fold, in the eyes of a Christian citizen, represents an emblem of eternity and glorifies, in their eyes, God the Father, the Son, and Holy Ghost.

When the flag is completely folded, the stars are uppermost, reminding us of our national motto, "In God We Trust."

After the flag is completely folded and tucked in, it takes on the appearance of a cocked hat, ever reminding us of the soldiers who served under General George Washington and the sailors and marines who served under Captain John Paul Jones who were followed by their comrades and shipmates in the Armed Forces of the United States, preserving for us the rights, privileges, and freedoms we enjoy today.

Where to Go When Google Doesn't Know

Library says tapping into the "Hidden Web" reveals a wealth of answers

With the help of Web engines such as Google and ask.com, Americans have become savvy online searchers. But even the most agile Internet searchers find that some questions just don't produce the right results, leaving them to feel as if the answer just isn't out there.

The problem may not be that the answer isn't out there, but that the usual search engines just can't get at it. General search engines search what's free on the Web, but often the most accurate (and verified) information resides in what insiders call the "Hidden Web"— expensive password-protected databases typically consulted by professional researchers. More important is that general search engines don't distinguish between sources, so you don't know what you're getting.

Free search engines are great for finding simple answers to simple questions, but when the answers really matter — your child's homework, or business information or health issues — you want to use something more authoritative. When you search the free Web you have no idea whether you're getting accurate information or not.

Consulting more authoritative resources doesn't mean leaving your computer or pulling out your credit card; you just need to add the library's homepage (www.haynerlibrary.org) to your "Favorites" list. The library has dozens of professional researchers' most sought-after Internet resources — information sources that would typically cost thousands — available free to anyone with a Hayner library card. Tapping in through the library's website (just click on Online Resources on the home page) means finding information that can help with homework at any grade level (including college), health issues, and access to leading business sources — the ones where Harvard, Stanford and dozens of other top-tier business schools do their research. These are a few additional online resources Hayner has to help you on your way: Sorkins Directory of Business & Government (in-depth profiles for companies in the St. Louis region); Auto Repair Reference Center (auto repair information on over 31,000 vehicles from 1945 to present); p4A Antiques Reference (pictures and values for antiques); LearningExpress Library (academic and career practice tests); Issues & Controversies (current events, ideal for papers and debate preparation); and Smarthinking Online Tutoring (homework help 24/7 from qualified E-instructors).

A good way to get started is to add the home page (www.haynerlibrary.org) to your "Favorites" and tape your library card number to the edge of your computer screen so you have it handy when you need to do some research. Once on the home page, click on Online Resources and then follow the directions to log in. Each of the resources will be listed and will have a brief description of what you can do there. Short tutorials are also available if you want some guidance, or contact a Hayner librarian for further assistance.

While used by professional researchers, these Internet sources are easy to use, but it may take a visit or two to learn the ropes. One librarian says, "It's like going to a grocery store if you've only shopped at the gas station's food mart. It might take a few minutes to understand the layout, but once you do, you find the selection and quality knock the socks off gas station's convenience. You wouldn't entrust the gas station with your dinner party, so don't entrust your child's homework to the free Web."

Changes in Store for the Original Hayner Library Building

The original Hayner Library building on the corner of 4th Street and State Street in Alton was built by Alton entrepreneur John E. Hayner as a memorial to his late wife, Jane Clark Drury Hayner (Jennie). Hayner hired a leading St. Louis architect, Theodore C. Link, to design the building. Link, born in Hanover, Germany, was a distant cousin of prominent Alton architect Lucas Pfeiffenberger. Among numerous other outstanding commissions awarded Link was the design of the Union Station Railroad Depot in St. Louis, Mo., for which he was the unanimous choice of judges. His "Grand Hall" has been meticulously restored and today is the showpiece of the Hyatt Regency Hotel in the revitalized Union Station.

For the Hayner Memorial Library, Link designed a building in the "Old English" Gothic style. It was constructed of dark red brick and Alton limestone, with trimmings of Alton and Bedford stone. There was a deep porch under a stone archway at the entrance and a small turret at the corner, off the room designated as the librarian's office. The arches were repeated in the window treatment throughout the building. The interior woodwork, including a soaring timbered vaulted roof in the best English Gothic style, was oak and natural pine. There were two fireplaces with beautiful wooden mantelpieces and tiled facing. All of the materials and the workmen for the project were obtained locally. The Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library opened for business on June 1, 1891.

In the mid-1960s the library had outgrown its building and badly needed more space. To that end, the library board voted to rent the Tri-City Grocery building on Belle Street to house the adult services division of the library. The facility at 326 Belle Street was to become known as the Main Library, housing adult services and the Illinois Room local history collection. The children's room in the original library building was moved upstairs from its cramped quarters on the lower level. Thus, the original library on State Street became the Hayner Children's Library.

In January 1972, Alton voters approved a referendum to establish the independent Hayner Public Library District. The Alton Square Branch Library opened in November 1985 in Alton Square Mall. It was one of the very first full-service branch libraries to operate in a shopping mall in the entire United States and proved to be a huge success from the first day it opened. In the elections of 1986, voters passed by a whopping 79% a referendum on Godfrey and Foster-burg township joining in the library district.

Many of you attended the grand opening of the new Hayner Library facility at 132 Alton Square Mall in February 2009. This 18,000-square-foot space now houses a print collection of fiction/nonfiction, large print items, magazines and newspapers, as well as DVDs, CDs, reference services, multiple banks of public computers, a beautiful children's library, a teen space collection and services, study rooms and a Multipurpose Room. The Downtown Library on Belle Street still offers adult lending collections (including DVDs and CDs), youth library services and public computers.

And what is to become of the original library on State Street? The board and library staff are very excited to announce that this facility will become a local history and genealogy library with display facilities for local history artifacts and artwork. This building will also provide working space for the cataloging staff and administrative services. The Illinois Room collections will all be housed here with rare and/or fragile items housed securely, yet available for public use. Genealogy staff and services will be working from this facility.

The firm Lefferson and Associates, Inc., based in Alton, Ill., has been chosen to design the interior of the 401 State Street library facility. Mike Lefferson, president, and his team have developed a plan that showcases the beauty of the original building while incorporating modern design concepts, technology and functionality.

The concept will include lighting that supports the functional needs of a library and enhances the interior architectural beauty of the building. Large, glass-enclosed, internally lit displays will be designed and constructed to showcase the library's collections of local historical artifacts. The main library hall will include study tables with computer access and period

Save Illinois Libraries!

In the latest Illinois state budget, the General Assembly cut general revenue funding for all state library and literacy grants by 50%!

THE LIBRARY COMMUNITY THANKS SECRETARY OF STATE JESSE WHITE, who was able to restore much of the cut funding by re-deploying the competitive grant portion of the federal Library Services and Technology (LSTA) grant money. But the fight is far from over.

At a time when library usage is at its highest ever, ILLINOIS LIBRARIES ARE BEING ASKED TO FACE TOMORROW'S NEEDS WITH YESTERDAY'S RESOURCES! Grant funding is vital to help libraries throughout the state keep up with the public's information needs and provide 21st century service to the community. Grant cuts ultimately mean fewer new programs and initiatives and a decrease in technological advancement.

LIBRARY SYSTEM FUNDING IS AT ITS LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1993. Systems provide invaluable service to libraries across the state, returning $10 in service for every dollar they receive in state funding. System budget cuts mean higher costs for services, fewer professional training opportunities, and less support for your library.

PUBLIC LIBRARY PER CAPITA GRANTS ARE AT THEIR LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1993 and PUBLIC SCHOOL PER CAPITA GRANTS ARE AT THEIR LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1997. Public institutions use per capita grants to support a range of programs, from day-to-day operations at their library to special projects. Per capita grant cuts mean fewer materials available to library users, less assistance to patrons even as usage increases, reduction in staff and hours, and fewer learning opportunities for students.

Libraries are instrumental in teaching Illinois's children and preparing Illinois's citizens for the jobs of tomorrow. Let members of the Illinois General Assembly know that without their assistance, libraries in Illinois can't survive. The state's future is at stake!

Take Action!

Interlibrary Loan Business Is Booming!

The Interlibrary Loan Department for the Hayner Public Library District helps many of you every day and you don't even know it! This department consists of two full- time employees—Julie Belk, Department Manager and Sue McConnell, and two part-time employees—Tammy Dykeman and Juliana Harrison. They are responsible for routing in and out of all Hayner locations, literally hundreds of books every day.

The Hayner Public Library District is a member of the Lewis and Clark Library System—an interconnected system of 134 independently governed and administered academic and public libraries, approximately half of which participate in the Local Library System Automation Project. This project supports a shared integrated library system such that all member libraries may share circulating material. Thus, if you request a copy of a book that is not on the shelf in a Hayner library location, we have over 60 other libraries that we have online access to and from which we can immediately request your material. Often, your request should arrive for your pickup in 2–3 days. Library staff can make a request for you, or you can make these requests yourself through our online catalogue at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Julie and her staff start their morning at the Hayner library in the mall. They run the daily requests list, which details material requested by other libraries throughout the system. They pull the material from our shelves, mark them in route on the computer and label for the requesting library. These items get put into large tubs that are picked up by a Lewis and Clark courier, taken to a central distribution site and sorted to arrive via courier at the current requesting location. Each day approximately 150 items are routed from the Hayner Alton Square Library to other library locations. About mid-morning a courier delivery arrives at the mall library. These are the materials that Hayner patrons have requested from non–Hayner Library locations. These materials need to be electronically routed-in and labeled, and the requesting patrons then are notified by phone that their material is ready for pickup. The mall library averages about 250 requests per day. In the afternoon, this process is repeated in the library downtown. The Hayner Downtown location averages 100 items routed out each day and 125 items routed in to fill requests, daily.

There is also a function called "paper requests." If there are no libraries in the LCLS that hold the item you need, we can check libraries throughout the country to fill your requests. These requests require a hardcopy request order as entered by specific members of the library staff. The requests are routed to Julie's department and these items are sent/received through the U.S. mail. This process takes one dedicated person half a day to complete, each day.

Young Hayner patrons learn about fire safety from the friendly firefighters of the Alton Fire Department.

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during this past summer:

Bradley Cox is a student at Alton High School who has been very active in sports and school programs since elementary school. He is passionate about school and willingly supports his fellow classmates whenever he can. He serves as sophomore class student council president for the 2009–2010 term. He willingly assumed the role of mentor for a student in East Elementary school—a wonderful experience for both Bradley and the student. Bradley is a member of the college prep program Upward Bound and serves as an ambassador for the Principal of Alton High. He also has been chosen to address new students attending the Minority Excellence program.

Josh Gaither, also a student at Alton High School, found a graphics calculator in his class. As it was the last class of the day, he made sure to turn it in to the Assistant Principal first thing next morning. The owning student was greatly relieved to have his calculator returned. He thought it was lost for good.

A staff member of Alton Middle School had lost his wallet, in which he had his Social Security card, credit/debit cards, insurance cards—everything critically important. Maurice Gray, a student at the school, found the wallet and returned it intact to the owner.

Natalie and Caroline Lauschke attend the sixth grade at Alton Middle School. The twins are always volunteering and making the extra effort, whether it's assisting with the school store or helping their teachers with special projects and activities. This fall, the girls found $15 in a ziplock bag in the gym and promptly took the money to the Assistant Principal, who found the appreciative owner. Several months later, a fellow student injured her foot. The girls immediately volunteered to assist her with her books and help her get to classes. They gave up their lunchtime in the cafeteria with their friends and stayed upstairs to eat with the injured student so she wouldn't have to eat by herself

Sophie Smith is a student at Evangelical Elementary School. Sophie is eight years old This past May Sophie started her own business, selling handmade jewelry involving recycled Scrabble® tiles. From her jewelry sales over the summer, she has donated more than $100 to Alton's Five A's Humane Society. Sophie has continued to sell her jewelry and donates 10 percent of her sales to the nonprofit organization to help animals find a home.

Emily Selby, 9, attends St. Ambrose Catholic School and Caleigh Bryan, 11, attends Meadowbrook Intermediate School. Together, the friends cut and hand-tied 45 blankets, which they donated to the OASIS Women's Center in Alton. The girls worked on the blankets together while they sat in the stands watching their brothers' hockey games. Tying the finished blankets with a ribbon, the girls presented them to the OASIS Center so that, when children visit there, they receive a warm gift with which they can snuggle.

Katelin Richie attends the eighth grade in Alton Middle School. In class she has proven herself to be a wonderful student whom teachers know they can depend on. One of her teachers had to be out of town for three days. The teacher was concerned that a substitute teacher might not know how to set up the computer class, so he showed Katelin how to do it. For three days during the teacher's absence, Katelin set up everything to prepare the classroom and ensure that the substitute teacher and students would have a good, productive day. Without Katelin's help, the classes would have been a shambles.

Christopher Runion is a first grader at East Middle School. He found an expensive pair of glasses on his school bus and determinedly sought out the school principal to make sure they were returned to the child who owned them.

Tamera Caruthers, a fifth grader at West Elementary School, regularly attends the Boys and Girls Club in Alton after school. Often while at the club, the kids get time to work on their homework. A friend told Tamera that she was upset because she forgot her spelling packet that was to be completed and turned in the next day. Tamera had already completed her spelling work. Tamera erased all the answers on her homework and copied the sheet so her friend could use a blank sheet to complete the homework assignment. Tamera then redid her own assignment. They both turned in the assignment the next day and learned their words well, too!

Congratulations to each one of these kids for choosing to "do the right thing," going the extra distance to help others and unselfishly making a difference in another person's life.

Special Events at Hayner

Free Public Computer Classes

Hayner Library is once again pleased to be offering computer classes for the public throughout the months of February and March. Beginning on January 29 (a Friday) every Friday for four weeks (ending February 19) from 9 – 11 a.m., participants will learn the basics of computers. Questions you've always wondered about, but didn't know who to ask will be explored, like "Just what is a thumb drive, anyway?," or, "What the heck is an operating system?"

We'll start the first week with just learning how to set up a computer, turning it on/off, and looking at the control panel. The next three weeks will largely be dictated by answering the questions of the participants, but will generally focus on where to store files, how to retrieve them, and how to access the Internet. This class is an overview, designed for the raw beginner.

The second class, held on every Wednesday (with one exception) throughout March from 6–8 p.m., is one in which the participant will learn how to install RAM; switch out a hard drive or CD drive; install a printer, scanner, or any other kind of peripheral; and, even learn how to type using the touch key method. The first class will begin on Wednesday, March 3rd, the second class on Thursday, March 11th and the last two classes on Wednesdays, March 17th and March 24th.

Call 462-0677, Ext. 2830, if you're interested in either of these classes to get enrolled or to be put on the waiting list. Classes will be held at Hayner Library in the Alton Square Mall in the Multipurpose Room.

Tuesday, February 16, 6:30 p.m.

Spook Handy graduated from college a Phi Beta Kappa with a B.A. in math and business. Upon graduation, he turned down several lucrative job offers in the actuarial field and bought his first guitar. For his appearance at Hayner, Scoop will perform "The Works of Pete Seeger." This original performance is a heartwarming, fun and educational program that looks at the legacy, struggles, songs and stories of one of America's most beloved folk singers—the man who gave us "If I Had a Hammer," "Turn, Turn, Turn," and "Waist Deep in the Big Muddy." The program includes songs from the Almanac Singers (Pete, Woody Guthrie and others), the Weavers, the 1960s and the past few years. It traces the songs Pete has made famous, songs he wrote himself and songs he sings that have not become famous. It also includes a few of Spook's own compositions—songs that Pete has sung or that have been influenced by Pete's writing. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Mark Twain Quotes

Mark Twain is widely recognized as one of America's greatest writers and humorists. The following is just a small sample of Mr. Twain's bon mots. Be sure to join us on February 23, when Mr. Twain will discuss the "History of Science" (see "Special Events at Hayner," this newsletter).

Clothes make the man. Naked people have little or no influence on society.

If you tell the truth you don't have to remember anything.

I don't give a damn for a man that can only spell a word one way.

I have never let my schooling interfere with my education. —Attributed

I have never taken any exercise except sleeping & resting.

There are several good protections against temptations, but the surest is cowardice.

It is easier to stay out than get out.

The report of my death was an exaggeration.

It is noble to teach oneself; it is nobler to teach others - and less trouble.

It is better to keep your mouth shut and look like a fool, than to open it and remove all doubt. —Attributed

Few things are harder to put up with than the annoyance of a good example.

A lie can travel halfway around the world while the truth is putting on its shoes.

Familiarity breeds contempt —and children.

Get your facts first; then you can distort them as much as you please.

You cannot depend on your eyes when your imagination is out of focus.

Under certain circumstances, profanity provides a relief denied even to prayer.

Water taken in moderation cannot hurt anybody.

It usually takes more than three weeks to prepare an impromptu speech.

The man who doesn't read good books has no advantage over the man who can't read them. —Attributed

When you cannot get a compliment any other way, pay yourself one.

Don't go around saying the world owes you a living; the world owes you nothing. It was here first.

Truth is more of a stranger than fiction.

Never put off until tomorrow what you can do the day after tomorrow.

Often it does seem a pity that Noah and his party did not miss the boat.

Man is the only animal that blushes, or needs to.

I didn't attend the funeral, but I sent a nice letter saying that I approved of it.

Let us so live that when we die even the undertaker will be sorry.

Be careful about reading health books. You may die of a misprint.

- Project Next Generation

It's coming. It will be here soon. Before you know it, in just a couple of years, you will be the one people will seek when looking for that one person whom they can trust to get the job done. Are you ready? Have you started thinking about what you'll need to be able to do to convince them that they've found the right person? And that experience part: How can you get some of that if you have to have it first before they'll hire you?

You've found the right place. In today's world, nearly anything that's done is touched, in some way, by technology; specifically, computers and computer-assisted technology. You want to have that cutting edge; the one that gives your profile the kind of attention it needs to land you wherever it is that you want to be: in a great job that you love, with lots of potential; at the top of the list of people that the college you want to attend is considering for admission; or, in a position to start your own business, where you'll be in charge. The Hayner Public Library District has resources available to give you experience, skills in using current cutting-edge technology, and the poise and presence to be able to sell your talents to others.

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its third year of implementation at Hayner. We are excited to be able to offer this twice-a-week, after-school program to emerging sixth graders through exiting eighth graders to give them a special opportunity to learn new skills while having fun. Meeting on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3:30–4:45 in the multi-purpose room at our Mall location, the program has room for 10-12 teenagers. They will learn about using current computer applications like Office Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Publisher; research diverse topics like the life of Abraham Lincoln or world-renowned explorers; learn how to make a presentation with digital photography or videography, and discover the fun of using SMART Boards to make those presentations. In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our six-week sessions! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information, or to sign up for our next session!

Keep Healthy this Winter

The Hayner Public Library District provides you many resources to stay healthy this winter and all year long. New issues of magazines such as Prevention, Body & Soul, Health and more are available to you each month. The library also carries subscriptions to fitness periodicals for all exercise interests. In our circulating collection, find information on topics including nutrition and diet, healthy cooking, stress relief, exercise, homeopathy, disease, healthy lifestyles, smoking cessation, addiction, psychology and self-help, therapy techniques, medicine and drug guides and much more. Computers are available for your Internet research and of course, the best search engine of all, your reference librarians are ready to help you find the information you need.

Of course, one of the easiest and most important ways to beat a winter bug is to wash your hands frequently. All library locations now have hand sanitizers installed throughout the Downtown and Alton Square libraries. So, no more sick days—just work, work, work...(I think I feel a headache coming on).

Introducing: USA.gov

The government wears many hats when it comes to services and benefits. Trying to find information on the complex network of government agencies can certainly be daunting. The Federal Citizen Information Center (part of the U.S. General Services Administration) has provided us with a wonderful resource to find the information you need: USA.gov. USA.gov is the official portal for all federal, state and local government information. From Social Security benefits to government jobs to tips on stretching your dollars, it's government made easy. And remember, the best search engine of all is the Reference Services staff of the Hayner Public Library—reference personnel is available on site at the Hayner mall location or by phone, 433-2864 or e-mail: reference@haynerlibrary.org

News From the Genealogy Department

Are your file cabinets bulging with old documents of the history of your organization? Do those papers tell the story of how your group began and how it has progressed through the years? As an ongoing project of the Genealogy/Local History Department of The Hayner Public Library District, we are hard at work developing an archival collection of service organizations, educational institutions, social organizations, local utilities, and local industry, as well as theatrical and musical groups well known to the local area. We have also extended the collection to healthcare organizations, environmental policy groups, land preservationist groups, public park advocates, and professional membership groups, e.g., Madison County Bar Association, Madison County Dentistry Group, Alton Education Association, etc. We have many such groups and organizations that will be important assets to our archival collection. Many thanks to those of you who have already donated your organization's history to our Illinois Room collection.

We are certain that there are many more such organizations that qualify and would like at this time to invite any group or organization that holds this type of historical information and would like to see it included in our archival collection to contact the Genealogy/Local History Department at The Hayner Public Library District at 462-0677, or you can contact us by e-mail at genealogy@haynerlibrary.org

Join us on Wednesday, Jauary 20, 2010 for an evening with Mr. Tom Pearson of the St. Louis Public Library. We will discuss Internet link guides, finding aids, indexes, databases, and photo galleries that contain information about Prairie State ancestors. Meet us in the Children's/Reading Room of the Hayner Library Belle Street location.

The Elusive Ancestor

I went searching for an ancestor.
I cannot find him still
He moved around from place to place and did not leave a will.
He married where a courthouse burned.
He mended all his fences.
He avoided any man who came to take the U.S. Census.
He always kept his luggage packed,
this man who had no fame.
And every 20 years or so, this rascal changed his name.

No one else in this world is searching for this man.
So, I play geneasolitaire to find him if I can.
I'm told he's buried in a plot,
with tombstone he was blessed,
but the weather took engraving,
and some vandals took the rest.
He died before the county clerks decided to keep records.
No Family Bible has emerged, in spite of all my efforts.
To top it off this ancestor,
who caused me many groans,
Just to give me one more pain,
betrothed a girl named JONES.

The Bald Eagle

Ole friend,
Who sits so far above
With head so white and ne're a feather move
The beauty and serenity
Yet fiercely to behold
A steady gleam from serious eyes

To watch and wait with grace
And power
I seem to feel this anxious bird
With passion and desire,
Admiring his ability
To live a glorious life.

O watch and watch and watch,
And then

He spreads his wings, amazingly so wide
And peers into the wild blue sky.
He moves and looks – then he is off
And finds the current of the wind.

He sets his wings with energy
And flows along the ancient bluffs
With eagle eyes he scans the mighty channel
To see a ripple, for his hungry tongue.

He soars and tips
And glides along, Oh faithful one, whom I admire.

All winter he will grace my mind
And when the time is right, he goes
Beyond my wildest dreams, I cannot follow
But when the snow again begins,
He will return
To feed and build his eager life
With others of his clan.

My winter now
Is quite fulfilled

Hayner Sponsors Successful "Operation Soldiers"

Operation Paperback is a national movement that was started in 1999 by the family of Chief Master Sergeant Rick Honeywell. Sergeant Honeywell was deployed on a four-month stint to Kuwait and while there was dismayed that the soldiers were not provided any means of recreation – no gym, no movies, and no library. Sgt. Honeywell's family and other Air Force families started sending books overseas, specifically to Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. This effort quickly grew, joined by volunteers around the nation. Individual citizens, American families and community groups have sent more than 950,000 books since this grassroots movement was initiated by the Honeywells. Today, Operation Paperback has shipped books to more than 30 countries in addition to providing books to wounded troops and veterans here at home.

In October 2009, The Hayner Public Library District developed its own effort to support the Operation Paperback initiative. Hayner's program is titled "Operation Soldiers" and has been a great success. Hayner Library volunteers boxed up library books that are no longer in public circulation to be mailed to our service people overseas. There is a minimal shipping cost per box of $9.79. We hoped that the community would adopt this program by adopting boxes. A contribution to mailing costs constituted the adoption fee. Once we mailed the Hayner boxes of books, Operation Paperback would ensure the books got routed to the many "tent" libraries established in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The October mailing effort was enthusiastically supported by individual community members. An extremely generous corporate donation was received from Simmons Law Firm, which sent 100 boxes of books overseas. At Bethalto West Intermediate School, all eight grades participated in a competition to raise money for the cause, resulting in a shipment of 25 boxes. At Eunice Smith Grade School, all 15 classes worked to raise enough money to send 2 boxes per class. Eunice Smith students handily achieved their objective and shipped off 30 boxes of books. Thank you to everyone who participated in Operation Soldier—a special thanks to our wonderful Hayner Library volunteers who did so much work, packing up the boxes of books. We couldn't have done it without you!

For information about this program and other volunteer opportunities at Hayner Library, call Stephanie Munson, Volunteer Services Coordinator, at 618-462-0677 or check our website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Best Wishes to Retiring Employees

In October 2009, Midge Hallett retired from The Hayner Public Library District. Midge worked in the Genealogy Department when she retired and had been employed with the library for 13 years.

Also retiring in October 2009 was Gloria Mitchell. Gloria had been employed by the library district for 32 years and retired from her position as Hayner Downtown Library Youth Services Manager.

Best wishes to both Midge and Gloria from all the library staff and the Hayner Library Board of Trustees. You will be greatly missed by your colleagues and the many library patrons whose lives you have touched.

Patron Profile
Midge Hallett

Midge Hallett has touched a multitude of lives in our community through her 34-year teaching career at Alton High School and her subsequent activities. Midge also performed volunteer work with a number of local service organizations and, upon retirement from teaching, was employed by The Hayner Public Library District for 13 years. Understandably, Midge finds it hard to go anywhere without meeting someone she knows.

Midge was born and raised in Alton. Her father, Kenneth Thomasson, was the founder and owner of Alton Memorial Sales on Henry Street. Her grandfather was Director of the Bauer & Hoehn Funeral Home on Langdon. Bauer & Hoehn was the funeral home that provided an "intermediate" resting place for Deaf Bill for so many years. (If you don't know the story of Deaf Bill, see page 8 of this newsletter.) Midge remembers, growing up, she and her family would have dinner at her grandfather's house every Sunday. Without fail, as soon as they sat down to eat, a bell would ring signaling the arrival of "incoming guest" (as in the supine kind). Midge also attended many of her grandfather's funeral events and to this day cannot stand the smell of cigars or the sight of pink carnations (both integral to funerals at the time).

Midge and her late sister, Jean, had many wonderful memories of growing up in Alton. In the summertime, on hot summer nights Midge and her sister, along with many of the neighborhood kids, would pack blankets and pillows and sleep in Rock Spring Park or Riverview Park to beat the heat. Dad and Mother would join them, after work, for the night.

Luer Brothers Meat Packing was a well-known business that operated out of downtown. One day, as a result of a traffic accident, a Luer truck let loose a bull that it was transporting. Midge and a friend, June, were riding bikes in the area of the accident. All of a sudden Midge and June were staring wide-eyed at a bull charging down the street, straight for them. Pumping their little legs for all they were worth, they barely kept ahead of the incensed beast. They dropped their bikes and catapulted onto the porch of a house, the bull following as far as the first porch steps! Ultimately, animal rescue workers retrieved the animal, but Midge and June remained ever-vigilant thereafter for charging wildlife while biking the seemingly quiet streets of Alton.

Upon graduation from Alton High School, Midge obtained her B.A. degree from Shurtleff College. She continued her studies at SIUE, obtaining a master's degree in Behavioral Sciences. She also completed postgraduate work at the University of North Carolina and Washington University. Her graduate thesis, "Measuring Cognitive Dissonance by Computer," was utilized by her advisor, Dr. Glaser, in teaching his graduate students at the University of Taiwan. Upon graduation, Midge was employed at Alton High, teaching College Prep English and Honors American Literature. She remarks that as a 21-year-old new teacher, many of her students, at 16 and 17, were barely younger than she; and later many became friends and associates. Midge also coached the Optimist Speech Team. This team included junior and senior high school students who competed locally in proficiency of writing and presenting a speech on an arbitrarily assigned topic. Under Midge's coaching, five students of Alton High went on to compete at state levels

Midge married Hillary H. Hallett shortly after college graduation. She and Hillary had three sons: Mark, now residing in Alton; Matthew, a Brighton resident; and Hugh, who lives and works for the federal government in Springfield, Illinois

Though Midge was working full-time, pursuing her graduate degree during nights and weekends, and raising three sons as a single mother, she also found time to support various community organizations. She worked with Alton Junior League in Public Relations, the Alton League of Women Voters (for which she conducted a weekly radio show), Alton Children's Theater (president), Alton Children's Home and Aid, Illinois Women's Political Coalition, the Women's Volunteer League, The United Way, the Anna D. Sparks Alliance (president for four years and Board of Trustees for four years) and was on the board of the Hayner Public Library District (four years). She has always been extremely active in her church, the First Unitarian Church, and for ten years served as the church historical archivist.

Occasionally, Midge weathered a few bumps in the road of her volunteer work. She remembers as the chairman for a Nixon/Lodge campaign effort, she agreed to organize a style show and benefit. Midge organized the whole event without any funding. She did prevail on her fellow Junior Leaguers to bring refreshments. Someone brought peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, which caused Midge to comment, "What schlemiel brought these kinds of sandwiches?" It turned out that schlemiel was standing right next to Midge and proceeded to make herself known. Midge later found out she was the wife of an executive in the upper echelons of Olin Corporation. Midge did not get over her embarrassment until she heard that the couple had been transferred to the East Coast

Upon retiring from teaching, Midge took employment with The Hayner Public Library District working on The Telegraph Indexing Project. This project required reading all the preserved copies of The Telegraph, dating from 1836 to the present, and encapsulating the daily articles into indexed versions by topic (government, birth, death, social news, and so forth). These handwritten indexes were printed and bound and used by patrons researching various topics or names that had been reported on by The Telegraph over the many years. Time-consuming and exacting, the project employed a staff of five women who spent hour upon hour poring over issues of the paper, hand-writing and proofing indexed entries, after which the Telegraph issue would be microfilmed. The indexes would identify where, on a specific microfilm reel, one would find the replica of the news item the person was researching.

In 2007, Hayner staff entered a project using Heritage Microfilm to digitize the individual issues of The Telegraph, from 1836 to the present. This allowed one to access news items online–research no longer required the use of cumbersome indexes or microfilm. Today, historical researchers, authors, genealogists and interested patrons love this service. It has made research fast, accurate and simple. Hayner is one of the few libraries in Southern Illinois to offer digitized copies of the community's local paper. Due to copyright considerations, this service is available in the Hayner library facilities only.

Following the completion of the digitization project, Midge devoted herself to patron genealogy research and historical archive work.

Midge is a voracious reader and a great patron of the arts. She is an active supporter of the Alton Symphony, the Alton Concert Series, and the Jacoby Center for the Arts. She developed her love and knowledge of music in her childhood home and has nurtured her passion for the arts all her life. We will greatly miss seeing Midge at work at the Library. She is an amazing woman with a ready smile who came to work singing in the morning. (How many of you can say that!) Midge is a true Renaissance woman, possessing a passion for knowledge, culture, people and the world around her.

The Mummy of "Deaf Bill" Lee

Excerpted from Troy Taylor,* Weird Illinois, *New York: Sterling Publishing, 2005, p. 104.

One of the greatest odd characters in the history of Alton was a figure known as "Deaf Bill" Lee, a man who spent more than eight decades as a mummy in a local funeral home.

Bill Lee, or Deaf Bill as he was nicknamed since he was hard of hearing, was born in 1863 and made his living fishing the Mississippi River. … Bill got to know a man named Bill Bauer, owner of Bauer Funeral Home . … Bill died on [a] farm in November 1915. … There were rumors that Bill might have relatives . … Bauer decided to hold on to Bill's body until he could find them.

While Bauer was searching for Deaf Bill's relatives he was also experimenting with an embalming procedure that he had devised to see how long a person's body would remain preserved. Deaf Bill was embalmed with the new fluid, but the plan was to keep him only as long as it took for his family to come forward. Unfortunately, no one ever came.

As the years passed, Bill remained unclaimed and new owners took over the funeral home …. They realized they could get all kinds of free publicity by exhibiting (Bill) in the funeral home, so they (the owners) put him on display. … Eventually the body was moved to a closet. … [finally] Bill was buried … on June 25, 1996 (in Immaculate Conception Cemetery in West Alton).

Now, read the complete story of "Deaf Bill" and other local oddities in Weird Illinois, library call number: 133.129773TAY.

The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township — Spring 2010 — Vol. XVIII, No. 1

From Yesterday to Today…

In our last issue of the newsletter (Winter 2010, Vol. XVII, No. 4) we reported on the changes planned for the Hayner Youth Library at 401 State Street. Most currently, the building served as the Youth Library for the District. Since the renovation of the library in Alton Square Mall, the Youth Library collections have found their home in a beautiful, bright and contemporary setting in the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

The exciting future of the Hayner Library on State Street will be to serve as a local history and genealogy library. We thought you might enjoy a short pictorial tour of our library's history … past to present.

Happy 1-Year Anniversary

This March marks the first anniversary of the opening of the expanded Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. There have been many indications that the new mall library has been a great success. It was a featured library in the February 2010 volume of the ILA Reporter, the bi-monthly periodical of the Illinois Library Association. The introduction to the article, which is titled "New Library Buildings," reads, "This is the thirteenth in a series of articles highlighting new library buildings or additions. Each year we feature noteworthy academic, school, special, or public libraries whose innovative concepts merit attention." (ILA Reporter, February 2010, p. 11.) A copy of the article can be accessed online at www.ila.org/pub/reporter/vol28no1.pdf.

The library also has been wonderfully received by the community. Since March 2009, the mall library has shown an increase in circulation of materials of 46 percent. The number of patrons walking through the door has increased by 17 percent, and new library card registrations are up by 50 percent.

Don't forget that the library is a great money saver. Borrow books, magazines, newspapers, DVDs, CDs, great age-specific materials for kids and teens, games, audiobooks, and large-print materials; access reference materials, employment information, and our small business reference collection; and take advantage of study rooms, public computers, Wi Fi café, educational programs and entertainment events for all ages—all free—and we're open seven days a week.

Headed to downtown Alton? Visit the Hayner Downtown Library at 326 Belle Street, and watch for the reopening of the original Hayner Public Library at 401 State Street. For more information, visit our website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Mike and Cindy Lefferson to Be Honored for Community Building

Mike and Cindy Lefferson will receive the community's 2010 Circle of Care award at a dinner held in their honor on May 6, 2010.

The Leffersons have made a positive and permanent impact on families and communities through their professions, volunteerism and philanthropy, earning them a prestigious honor from Riverbend Head Start & Family Services, the Circle of Care award. The family name is perhaps best recognized from the Alton-based architecture and interior design firm Lefferson & Associates LLC, founded in 1993. The firm is currently redesigning the original Hayner Library building at 401 State Street in Alton.

The Leffersons raised their three children in Alton after moving to the community of St. Louis. They immersed themselves in work and caring for those in need in myriad ways. Cindy Lefferson is a well-respected teacher of children with very special needs at the local William Bedell Achievement & Resource Center, an organization dedicated to improving the lives of people with developmental disabilities. Her work helps children and families develop skills that improve their quality of life.

By contrast, Mike Lefferson's work as President of Lefferson & Associates LLC has had an immediate impact on the landscape of communities. The firm has a wealth of public, residential, commercial, financial institution and healthcare facility experience.

Their latest achievement is the Greek Revival Parethenon-style house in Alton built in 1838 by steamboat captain William Post. Breathing new life into this historic home that was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1980 was a labor of love.

"We considered this renovation to be a commitment to the long-term history of Alton," Lefferson told a Telegraph newspaper reporter. "It's a very important piece of that heritage."

Mike and Cindy Lefferson are active members of the United Methodist Church, which led to their key role in the development of the United Methodist Village retirement community in Godfrey, as well as a contribution to the building of the Lefferson Memorial Chapel at the Village. It also led to their longtime sponsorship of Encounter, the young Christian performance group, and an impact on ethnic churches through United Methodist Conference committee service.

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services, McKendree University, Alton Marketplace, and the United Way of Greater St. Louis, Alton Marketplace, and Alton Appearance Review Board are other benefactors of the Leffersons' wisdom and business acumen.

This annual tribute by Riverbend Head Start & Family Services places them on a short but prestigious list of leaders who have received the award for community building.

For an invitation or more information about the Circle of Care award dinner for the Leffersons, call 463-5946 or e-mail info@riverbendfamilies.org, or visit www.riverbendfamilies.org.

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services is a non-profit organization that provides unduplicated child development and counseling services to families in Madison County. Riverbend Head Start and The Hayner Public Library District partner in many activities supporting literacy in our community, enabling children and families to develop positive skills in meeting life's challenges.

Well-known Deputy Forest Bevineau (a.k.a. The Singing Sheriff) has a huge following throughout the area. His incomparable singing voice and incredible repertoire of all types of music has brought him fans of all ages. Also a king of karaoke (he has won first prize on three different cruise vacations), his performances are often a mix of musical styles and can run the gamut from gospel to country western, popular to R & B and more. He says sometimes he just looks at the audience to decide what to sing. He loves to have the audience sing along. Join us for what promises to be a great evening of song and surprises. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Peter Fletcher
Classical Guitar
Tuesday, May 4, 6:30 p.m.
Classical guitarist Peter Fletcher made his New York City Carnegie Hall debut in 2007 and has returned to perform in the great Hall each year since, while also touring nationally and internationally. Fanfare magazine reported, "Fletcher plays it all with a gracious virtuosity that makes for a very pleasing [performance] of unaffected musical poetry." Fletcher's concert for Hayner Library will feature selections from his 2008 CD release on Tower Hill Records, Music of the Baroque. Other repertoire will include Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring from Cantata No. 147 as well as the E minor Lute Suite of J. S. Bach. The program will conclude with Koyunbaba, by composer/guitarist Carlo Domeniconi. This is one of the most exciting works in the classical guitar repertoire.

This is the program Fletcher will also be performing at his 2010 Carnegie Hall recital on March 27. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Switchback
American Roots/Celtic Soul
Sunday, May 9, 2:00 p.m.
Looking for an exceptional way to treat Mom on her special day? Bring her to hear Switchback, truly two of our favorite artists on the circuit.

"A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian Fitzgerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive and it's coming at you a little harder because we're coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." Fitzgerald and Martin McCormick showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots. They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to hear these amazing performers! Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Recently returned from a smash tour in the U.K., they are garnering awards and accolades with their latest CD. "Many songwriters have been heralded as modern day Woody Guthrie's or keepers of the American rural spirit, but that mantle might be better entrusted to musicians like Dana Robinson who embody both the heart and soul of folk music." —Dirty Linen Magazine. Learn more about Dana and Sue at http://www.robinsongs.com. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Special Events

• Project Next Generation

It's coming. It will be here soon. Before you know it, in just a couple of years, you will be the one people will seek when looking for that person they can trust to get the job done. Are you ready? Have you started thinking about what you'll need to be able to do to convince them that they've found the right person? And that experience part: How can you get some of that if you have to have it first before they'll hire you?

You've found the right place. In today's world, nearly anything that's done is touched, in some way, by technology; specifically, computers and computer-assisted technology. You want to have that cutting edge, the one that gives your profile the kind of attention it needs to land you wherever you want to be: in a great job that you love, with lots of potential; at the top of the list of people that the college you want to attend is considering for admission; or in a position to start your own business, where you'll be in charge.

The Hayner Public Library District has resources available to give you experience, skills in using current cutting-edge technology, and the poise and presence to be able to sell your talents to others.

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its third year of implementation at Hayner. We are excited to be able to offer this twice-a-week, after-school program to emerging sixth graders through exiting eighth graders to give them a special opportunity to learn new skills while having fun. Scheduled on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3:30–4:45 in the Multipurpose Room at our Alton Square Mall location, the program has room for 10–12 teenagers. You will learn about using current computer applications like Office Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Publisher; research diverse topics like the life of Abraham Lincoln or world-renowned explorers; learn how to make a presentation with digital photography or videography; and discover the fun of using SMART Boards to make those presentations. In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our six-week sessions! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information, or to sign up for our spring session

• Teen Tech Week

"Learn, Create, Share @ your library"
March 8–13, 2010

Come join us for an evening of Technology Talk with guest speakers from local businesses. These guests will have the latest knowledge about what is hot in the technology world. For more information or to register for this event call 433-2872.

• Teen 2010 Summer Reading Program

"SCARE UP A GOOD BOOK"

This year teens will be invited to explore the scary side of reading. All participants will have the opportunity to read for some great prizes and attend some awesome events at our Alton Square facility. Registration will kick off in early June for this four-week program. Dates and times coming soon! For more information please call 433-2872.

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission:Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized at the start of 2010

Shane Reese is a first grader at North Elementary School. Shane was visiting with his great-grandmother, who is on oxygen, when she started having trouble breathing. Shane kept calling her name to keep her alert. Suddenly, Shane noticed she had passed out, and he quickly summoned his stepfather for help. Paramedics arrived shortly thereafter and, thanks to Shane's quick thinking, his great-grandmother was immediately revived and on her way to the hospital for medical care. Shane's quick thinking may very well have saved his great-grandmother's life. Shane's actions have made him a hero in the eyes of his family and friends.

Angelina Dailey is in second grade in West Elementary School. Due to bad weather, Angelina was home from school being cared for by her grandfather. Deciding to make a short trip to the market, Angelina and her grandfather went to the garage and got in their car. Her grandfather decided to make a last-minute adjustment to the car vents and jumped out of the running car. However, the parking brake was not on and the car started to slide, which resulted in the grandfather's being pinned between the car door and the garage doorframe. He was able to apply the emergency brake with one foot but otherwise was unable to move a leg or his head, and the pressure exerted by the car was becoming progressively more painful. Understandably, Angelina was scared and upset, but she composed herself and ran across the street to a neighbor's house to get help. A young boy was asleep in the house, but Angelina persisted in knocking until she woke him up. Together Angelina and the boy ran to yet another neighbor's house and found an adult to come help. The neighbor was able to free Angelina's grandfather, and everyone was fine. Thanks to Angela's brave actions and persistence, she was able to bring help to her grandfather's frightening situation, avoiding more serious injuries.

This past January, a luncheon was held to recognize 2009 Mission:Recognition honorees. Honorees, their parents and community guests attended the luncheon, which was hosted by motivational speaker Victor Pacini. Also recognizing the children for their contributions to their community was Godfrey Mayor Mike McCormick and Alton School District Supervisor David Elson.

The following kids were recognized for making good decisions and taking actions that positively affected friends, family and/or community. For more information on Mission:Recognition, go to our website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Brooklynn and Martha Luther the King

Brooklynn is 4 years old and goes to pre-school. The day after Martin Luther King's birthday, her daddy picked her up at school. They were riding along quietly, when Brooklynn asked her daddy did he ever hear of Martha Luther the King? He said that yes, he thought he had heard of him. She asked her daddy if he knew about the laws Martha Luther the King changed. He said that he knew some of them. He asked Brooklynn what laws she was talking about. She said, "Why, the Play Law." Her daddy said, "I don't think I know that law. What kind of law is that?" Excitedly, she told him that before Martha Luther the King's new Play Law, she could play with Cindy, Tommy and Tad, but not Clayton. Her daddy said, "But why couldn't you play with Clayton?" She said, "Because, Daddy, Clayton has dark skin. But I don't have to worry about that anymore, because Martha Luther the King changed that Play Law and now I can play with everybody! Isn't that wonderful, Daddy?"

Patron Profile
Erwin A. Thompson

Over the weekend I spent two luxurious days reading several of the wonderful novels and volumes of verse by the very prolific author and poet Erwin A. Thompson.

In 2005, Erwin Thompson was named a "Folk Treasure" by Arts Across Illinois (a prime-time art magazine TV series produced by WTTW11 in Chicago) and in 2009, his 94th year, he won a Gold Medal literary award for his book Worth Remembering: The Poetry of Our Heritage. He certainly is recognized as a Riverbend Treasure by the many people whose lives he has touched. Mr. Thompson is a historian, poet, novelist, philosopher, whittler and fiddler. He resides at Evergreen Heights, the family homestead originally founded by his grandfather, E. A. Riehl. Except for several years when he was in the service, Mr. Thompson has lived in the house his grandfather built in 1864 since he was 9 months old. Here he and his wife, Ruth Johnston Thompson, raised three children: Julia, Gary and Janet.

Erwin Thompson's great-grandfather, Nicholas Riehl, emigrated to the United States from the Alsace-Lorrain region in early 1800. Nicholas was a naturalist, specializing in ornithology and botany. He settled in Carondelette, Missouri, where he started a floral and horticultural nursery. Nicholas had five children, one of whom was a son, Emile (known most of his life only by his initials, E. A.)

Family legend has it that Riehl was working as a steamboat pilot when he discovered and fell in love with the bluffs along the Mississippi near Alton. He bought 140 acres of land a mile above Clifton Terrace and established the Riehl family homestead, Evergreen Heights. E. A. Riehl spent several years clearing the land and cultivating marketable crops to support his family. Mr. Riehl also had an avid interest in horticulture and was responsible for developing new enhanced varieties of fruits and vegetables. He also perfected a process of grafting nut trees that revolutionized the science of grafting. Riehl was recognized as one of the eight most important horticulturalists in the country. His work is well known at the Department of Agriculture in Washington and leading agricultural universities in America.

E. A. Riehl married Mathilde Roesch in 1866, and they had nine children: Frank, Edwin, Helen, Julia, Emma, Alice, Amelia (Mim), Anna, and Walter. Anna married J. Arthur Thompson, and they had five children, including a son, Erwin Arthur Thompson. At birth both mother and baby were weak. Their doctor thought both would die if the mother had the strain of caring for her infant. He thought she had a greater chance of surviving if Erwin were sent down to the Riehl farm. He was not expected to live—but he did! Because of the Great Depression and the demands on the Thompson family, Erwin was raised by his grandparents and three aunts: Emma, Judy, and Amelia (Mim).

Erwin graduated from Alton High School with honors and as a charter member of the school's Creative Writing Club. Erwin met his future wife, Ruth Johnston, when he sat behind her in study hall (Room 217) and pulled her hair to get her attention. They married 10 years later in June 1942. Their union would last 64 years until Ruth's passing in 2006. Erwin says, "It was the most intelligent thing I ever did when I married that particular girl at that particular time."

Drafted into the army in 1942, Erwin did his basic training in Camp Robinson, Arkansas. He then became part of the training cadre in the same company. In June 1943 the unit was transferred to Camp Fannin, Texas.

In July 1944, Erwin, now Sergeant Thompson, was shipped overseas, leaving Ruth and their one-year-old daughter, Julia, behind. That November of '44, Erwin and two comrades were sent on a reconnaissance mission near Stolberg, Germany. Their job actually was to act as bait to draw out enemy troops. One man was killed, and Erwin and his other comrade were severely wounded, barely escaping with their lives.

Due to the severity of his injuries, Erwin subsequently spent three months recovering in a British hospital. Confined to a wheelchair during his recovery in England, Erwin read voraciously to fill his time. The more he read, the more he started to hear his internal muse encouraging him to put his own stories to paper. He soon found that writing his own stories was preferable to reading many of the printed ones available.

He wrote of the adventures, challenges, joys and sorrows of the world he knew—eking out a living on a Midwest farm during the Depression. This world became the stage for his stories. Erwin let the other hospitalized servicemen read each new story as it was completed. The more he wrote, the more the men hounded him to complete additional chapters. He remembers a point at which eight servicemen were in line waiting to read pages as fast as he could write. During his involvement in the European Theater of Operations, Erwin says, his writing helped him keep his sanity. This work would be compiled into two manuscripts titled The Lean Years Book I and Book II.

Erwin was awarded a Purple Heart for injuries sustained from enemy action and a Silver Star for "gallantry above the call of duty" and discharged in 1945 to return to the United States. He and Ruth resumed living at Evergreen Heights, and Erwin took employment with Union Electric in Alton. His writing, both poetry and prose, continued to be a passion in his life. He wrote many poems reflecting his daily life at home as well as at work.

In the preface to his poetry anthology, Worth Remembering, he writes, "When I worked for Union Electric, I saw and experienced many things that ranged from the funny to the aggravating. To express my feelings on the matter, I often wrote a poem about the incident and gave it to one of the girls who worked in the back office. One Christmas, the girls all got together and typed them all up. They presented the collection of the poems—they had saved every one—in a notebook titled 'The Whittlin' Poet.'" On the cover Bill Price had painted a cartoon of Erwin sitting under a tree whittling one of his small critters.

This collection is included in Erwin's book Worth Remembering: The Poetry of Our Heritage—A Family and Friends Poetry Anthology…and Some of the History (Erwin A. Thompson, iUniverse, Inc., New York, 2009). Worth Remembering also includes many of the songs Erwin, also a musician and songwriter, wrote.

Erwin's Aunt Mim encouraged his musical talent when he was young. She had been on track to be a concert violinist; however, her father had discouraged her pursuit of a musical career because of her "nervous disposition." She agreed to teach Erwin how to play the violin based on two conditions: (1) He had to hold the instrument's bow correctly as a violinist would (at the base or frog of the bow) and not "choke the bow" as a fiddler would; and (2) He must "go to play somewhere we are not."

As a young man Erwin played music at many of the local dance halls and community events, performing popular tunes, waltzes and his own original compositions. He played mostly by ear and enjoyed collaborating with both local and visiting musicians, including Gabriel Smith, grandson of a founder of The Grand Ole Opry.

Erwin still plays his fiddle today. You can hear Erwin's musical group play clips from forty songs (including seven of his original compositions) on the audiobook Sightlines, A Family Story in Poetry and Music. Erwin's music interweaves with 90 poems from Sightlines: A Poet's Diary, written by his daughter, Janet Riehl, which tells stories of six generations of the family.

Erwin experienced years of great joy married to Ruth and raising their family. Their oldest daughter, Julia, a world-class physicist, worked in scientific laboratories and universities around the world, including Siberia at the Russian Headquarters for science research. Tragically, Julia was killed in a car accident on August 16, 2004.

Son Gary became an Eagle Scout early on; in his adult life he keeps on earning those merit badges. Trained in Industrial Arts, he headed the department at Jacksonville High School. He and his older sister Julia were named Teacher of the Year at the same time. Now retired, he remains a family anchor who can put a cherry pie in the oven, go out to the barn to repair the tractor, and come back in to take the pie out of the oven and put a hearty meal on the table.

Their youngest, Janet, lived in Africa for five years. In the Peace Corps she taught English as a Second Language and literature in secondary schools. Afterwards, as an independent volunteer funded by British Quakers, she founded a village sewing center that became a vocational technical school with sites in several villages. Today, Janet is an artist and poet living in St. Louis. "Riehl Life: Village Wisdom for the 21st Century" (www.riehlife.com) is a blog-magazine dedicated to creating connections through the arts and across cultures. Her father is often featured in the Family Matters category.

At 94, Erwin continues to compose and play music, whittle a collection of critters, document family and local history, and write new novels. As ever, his creative life blends with daily life as he manages the land he so dearly loves. Erwin's door is always open to family and friends. He hosts local musicians playing the old-time music of his youth. Writing his books has been a labor of love and an offering to our community. "History belongs to everybody," he says.

Copies of Erwin's and Janet's books are available at the Hayner libraries. You will find copies in the Illinois Room as well as in the circulating collections. Reading his work will transport you to a different time and into the lives of people and fictional characters you'll want to know.

Would you like to meet Mr. Thompson and Janet? Join us on April 25, 1:00 p.m. – 4:00 p.m. for an afternoon of poetry, music, and Riehl family stories. This program is free of charge, but does require registration at 1-800-613-3163.

NOTE: This program will be held in the Multipurpose Room of the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Ed. Note: The University of Illinois maintains a Riehl-Thompson archive featuring the letters of Erwin's mother, Anna Riehl, and Erwin's father, J. Arthur Thompson. These letters were written when they were students at the University of Illinois and during the years they served as missionaries in Korea. Additional transcribed letters, original documents, and books published by Erwin Thompson and Janet Riehl complete the collection.

A Response to "Operation Soldiers"

In a previous newsletter (Winter 2010, Vol. XVII, No. 4) we told you of the Hayner Library–sponsored initiative "Operation Soldiers." Hayner Library staff and volunteers collected and boxed books that had been taken out of library circulation. The boxes were mailed to "tent" libraries established in Iraq and Afghanistan for use by American troops. The postage for mailing the boxes was donated by organizations and schools that included Simmons Law Firm, Bethalto West Intermediate School, Eunice Smith Grade School, and many generous local individuals In total, 170 boxes of books were shipped overseas. In December 2009 Stephanie Munson, Hayner Library Volunteer Coordinator, received the following letter:

Thanksgiving Day, 2009

Dear Ms. Munson and the Good Citizens of Alton, Illinois,

Greetings from the USS BONHOMME RICHARD, an amphibious assault ship currently operating in the Central Command area of operations I was pleasantly surprised to receive a parcel of books for our ship's library along with your words of appreciation and encouragement On behalf of the Sailors and Marines who will be enjoying the books, thank you for your thoughtfulness and generosity.

Food For Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, all locations of The Hayner Public Library District will collect pet food and cleaning supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you can pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation for each fine.

Please remember that 5 A's also has a thrift shop at 632 Wood River Ave., Wood River, Ill. It is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m. They have a large collection of used books, puzzles, clothes, collectibles, household goods, furniture, toys and seasonal items. Donations are accepted during regular store hours. For questions regarding the shop, call 254-0635 (shop) or 466-3702 (shelter).

Please help our friends at the 5 A's – they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Rd., Godfrey. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Genealogical Research Is the Stepping-Stone to a Reunion

Everyone loves a mystery, especially the Genealogy staff of the Hayner Public Library District. Cathie Lamere, Genealogy and Local History Manager, and her staff, Pam Bierman and Beth Phillips, employ all sorts of creative sleuthing techniques as part of their daily jobs.

In March of 2010, Edwardsville businessman John Mclean was salvaging materials from a house that was being torn down in Edwardsville. One of the items he salvaged was a stepping-stone that led from the steps at the back door of the house. He moved the stone to the back of his truck, where it remained for a couple of weeks. It was only when he was unloading the truck that he turned the stone over and discovered writing engraved on the other side. Carved on top of the stone was a small lamb, below which was the inscripuon "In memory of little Sarah, Infant daughter of A. & E. Bull, aged 28 days." John was shocked to discover that the "stepping-stone" he had unearthed was actually a tombstone!

John remembered from an article in the Edwardsville Intelligencer that Dave Roper of East Alton had previously "re-homed" another tombstone found in the Edwardsville area. John got in touch with Dave and asked him if he would help identify the resting place of little Sarah Bull. Dave, a historian experienced in genealogy research, started researching Sarah's family, using the powerful database tool Ancestry.com. Mary Westerhold of the Madison County Historical Library helped Dave identify Sarah's parents as Alonzo and Eleanor Bull, who resided in Alton. Mary put Dave in touch with Cathie Lamere and Pam Bierman.

Cathie and Pam used Hayner's online database of the (Alton) Telegraph, which can access Telegraph issues back to 1836, and began researching obituaries that would connect Sarah to other family members. Cathie suddenly had a startling thought. She remembered two oil paintings framed in shadow boxes that were hanging in the administrative office space of the Hayner Public Library District. These pictures each had a nameplate, identifying one painting as Alonzo Bull, 1893, and the other as Eleanor Bull. Some months previously, Cathie had researched these portraits and discovered that Alonzo was a dentist and Eleanor was his wife. Dr Bull maintained his dental office on 113 W. Third Street in Alton.

Further research by Cathie and Pam into the Alton Telegraph archives confirmed that Alonzo and his wife lived in Alton for a period of time and raised six children. They were also great supporters of the Alton Library (precursor of the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library). Alonzo's obituary stated that he died in 1893. Cathie and Pam also confirmed that Alonzo and Eleanor (d. 1903) were both buried in the Alton City Cemetery. Sarah Bull was their infant daughter. Pam and Cathie determined the date of Sarah's death as March 1868. There is conflicting information as to Sarah's age at the time of her death. The tombstone engraving indicates that she was only 28 days old; however, in the Telegraph obituary for Sarah, her age is recorded as nine months.

Dave Roper and John Mclean met with Cathie and Pam in March 2010, bringing the tombstone to Alton. They were excited to see the portraits of Alonzo and Eleanor, having the rare opportunity to see the faces of the people whose names research had uncovered. With the help of local historian and president of the Alton Cemetery Board Don Huber, Dave and John were able to visit the precise spot of the gravesites of the Bull family in the Alton Cemetery.

The stone will be reset this summer, and Sarah will finally be at rest with her parents.

Odd Happenings in the Illinois Room

The historic Illinois Room is full of old books and materials. There are some amazing old photographs there that make you pause to reflect on life at the time of the photograph. There have been times when we have completed research on something to find that someone has come in needing the very thing we have just completed. Sometimes things happen for which we can find no explanation. Not terribly weird things, just things that make you wonder.
For example:

- On occasion we have had two separate families working on genealogy research in the Illinois Room at the same time. One family will overhear the second family talking about a family name that they have in their ancestry, and this usually gets them talking. They soon realize they are researching the same family line, or they discover they are distant relatives, all this just by overhearing a familiar family name.

- At one time we were updating the Property Research Files, and we had added some history and a photo for a very old Alton grocery store that was in business in the early 1900s. That same afternoon a couple came in from out of state asking for help. They were looking for information on a grocery store that had been in the husband's family in the early 1900s. Turns out, it was the very same store that we had just researched and added to the Research Property Files just that morning.

- Charlotte Stetson, Alton historian, was in the Illinois Room one afternoon researching a nurse who had volunteered her time helping wounded soldiers during the Civil War. Charlotte was having a hard time finding information on this nurse since it was so early in Alton history. We just so happened to hear her talking about this to someone else, and it sounded very familiar. We then realized that we had just recently come across an article about this nurse, and luckily we could remember where we had read her story and were able to share this with Charlotte. Her local history article for The Telegraph concerning this nurse made it on time, because we just happened to be at the same place at the right time!

These are just some examples of the timely things that happen in our historic Illinois Room. Stop in and learn more about this wonderful collection.

Hayner Receives Generous Bequest

The Hayner Public Library District received a very generous bequest from the estate of John William Ulmrich and Doris Ann "Annie" Ulmrich, to be used to improve literacy rates in the Alton/Godfrey area. Devoted library patrons throughout their lives, both John and Annie could be seen almost daily at the Alton Square branch.

John and Annie were longtime residents of the Alton/Godfrey area and had two daughters, Dr. Katherine S. Virgo and Holly A. Lee. Both John and Annie were always ardent supporters of education. Annie volunteered as a librarian at St. Kevin's parochial school in East Alton for many years. She was an avid reader and instilled the excitement of reading in her children at a very early age. John was a machinist who retired from Olin Corporation at the age of 65. In retirement, he indulged his passion for learning by taking courses at Lewis & Clark Community College, increasing his proficiency in computer use and repair. The advanced education of his children was one of John's major priorities.

In accordance with the family's wishes, the bequest to The Hayner Public Library District has been used to cover construction and furniture costs for a study room at the Alton Square Mall library location. This room will be used to facilitate study and literacy activities, including one-on-one literacy training. Additionally, the bequests will be used to train library staff as volunteers for literacy tutoring programs. The funds also will provide for the purchase of low literacy (high interest) books and materials

This generous bequest will touch the lives of many people in the library's district and provide a much-needed service to the community.

Would a cemetery listing solve the puzzle of where your great-grandparents lived?

Do you need to know their birth dates?

Your answer may be in the cemetery records in the Illinois Room.

Most cemeteries in Madison County and many of nearby counties are included.

Hayner Downtown Library may have the information you need!

The Magic of Oz

Early this year, Hayner Alton Square Library had a wonderful display of Wizard of Oz memorabilia. The items on display were just a partial representation of the extensive collection of Grace Daubman, Hayner Library patron and a member of Friends of the Library.

The timeless story of Oz, written by Frank Baum in 1900, continues to capture children's hearts and imaginations. What little girl hasn't dreamed of owning a pair of shimmering ruby-red slippers, and what little boy hasn't dreamed of discovering his own yellow brick road?

A Child's Wonder

Grace and Toto

Two-and-a-half-year-old Grace Schwegel fell under the Oz spell when she saw the movie for the first time on Thanksgiving of 2009. Her parents bought a copy of the movie and Grace watched it every day. Her mom found a "Dorothy dress" on eBay and Grace was thrilled, insisting on wearing the dress almost every day. Grace, accompanied by her very own Toto, was delighted to discover the Oz window display in the library at Alton Square Mall.

Grace's parents are David and Kelly Schwegel of Godfrey, and Grace has a six-year-old brother, Luke. Grace has assigned Oz roles to each of her family members. Mom is the wicked witch, her brother is the lion and Dad is the scarecrow.

We look forward to seeing Grace and her family visit the library often, discovering more of the magic of great stories.

Techno Sports – Coming Soon!

It's not too early to think about making plans for after-school activities in the coming year! At Hayner, we have a program, offered for the past three years, for fifth through eighth graders called "Project Next Generation." The participants get a chance to learn, enhance, and share technology skills in a small-group setting.

In the past, each session has been developed around a central topic, ranging from a study of Abraham Lincoln to learning how to geocache. (Geocaching is a rapidly-growing sport that combines the technological skills of reading a handheld GPS device with the fun of seeking treasures whose coordinates are posted on the website www.geocaching.com.) Although plans are still in the works, some of the themes being discussed for the 2010–2011 school year include cooking, exploring the fine arts, and continued work with geocaching.

The program is limited to ten participants per session, so get your application in early to reserve your spot! Applications are available at all Hayner Library locations.

Look for further information in the next newsletter. Fliers will be distributed to the schools in our area as well and will be available at both library locations. If you have any questions, please call 433-2861!

Book-A-Librarian

Did you know that in addition to borrowing books you can borrow a librarian?

Hayner Library has recently launched the Book-A-Librarian service. Book-A-Librarian is a service that offers personalized, one-on-one reference help. Patrons can make a free, 30-minute appointment with a reference librarian who can aid them in their research.

Book-A-Librarian is a good way to get personalized help at your convenience. It allows the librarian to prepare specifically for your information needs. Whether it is developing pathfinders for students doing research papers, or sorting through information on your topic of interest, your librarian can guide you in the right direction.

If you need: research assistance for homework assignments; aid in locating community resources and agencies; in-depth help on how to search the library's databases; or instruction on using the library's online catalog, Book-A-Librarian is a way to get help. Let us be your personal guide to sorting through all the information that is out there.

If you want to book a librarian, give us a call at 433-2864 or stop by the Reference Desk at the Alton Square Mall location, and we will set up an appointment for you. Book-a-Librarian appointment request forms are available at all customer service desks

Satchel Paige
Tuesday, September 21, 6:30 p.m.

Joe DiMaggio called Satchel Paige "the best and fastest pitcher I've ever faced." His pitching was amazing, and his showboating was legendary. His career highlights span five decades. Pronounced the greatest pitcher in the history of the Negro Leagues, Paige compiled such feats as 64 consecutive scoreless innings, a stretch of 21 straight wins, and a 31–4 record in 1933. In 1971, Satchel Paige received the ultimate honor when he was elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame. Emmy award–winning storyteller Bobby Norfolk brings us a brand-new program celebrating the life and achievements of this great icon of American sports. Just in time to heighten World Series excitement! Register at 1-800-613-3163.

All library special events are funded by grants and/or private endowment. Photos may be taken during library programs. Your enrollment in our programs will be assumed as your consent to allow the library the right to use these photos in promotional material.

Bopping About

Hayner is exploring the idea of creating a group that would enjoy combining arts, entertainment, culture, and learning. The thought is to gather people together, identify three or four events (plays, concerts, ballet) or institutions (maybe a history museum, unusual movie theater, art museum, or planetarium) that they'd like to visit over the course of a year, and then spend the months prior to that excursion studying related materials. For example, if the group decided that they'd like to visit the St. Louis Museum of History in May because a traveling exhibit on King Tut was going to be on display, in the months prior to the visit, they'd meet to watch a National Geographic video on how pyramids were made; or read and discuss books about Egypt; or learn how to cook a Middle-Eastern dish. The event itself might include a trip to a restaurant that specializes in Middle-Eastern cuisine; or a tour of the facility (for example, Fox Theatre) prior to the show.

If you think you'd be interested in participating in something like this, would you please call 800-613-3163 and leave a message. If we see that enough people are interested, we will proceed with making arrangements.

Bring a Book—Buy a Box! Operation Paperback

Bring a Book—Buy a Box is about sending gently used or new children's books to soldiers overseas.

The soldiers are taped reading these books aloud. The tape and the book are then sent home to their little ones. It provides a great bonding experience for the deployed parents and their children. It also promotes reading and its importance even under difficult circumstances.

We are honored to be able to support this program through books and donations. It costs approximately $12.50 to send a box. If anyone is interested, please contact Stephanie Munson at 462-0677, Ext. 2844.

Insect Aside

One of the few downsides of summer is the proliferation of bugs—creatures with many legs, creatures with no legs, multiple hearts, and many other equally charming physical and behavioral traits. Here are some interesting seasonal facts.

Did you know…

The average caterpillar has 248 muscles in its head.

The mayfly lives only six hours, but its eggs take three years to hatch

Only two animal species wage war on their own kind—ants and humans.

An estimated 80% of animals on Earth have six legs

Termites eat through wood twice as fast when they are listening to rock music.

A bumblebee beats its wings 160 times a second.

The only insect that can turn its head is the praying mantis.

The common garden worm has five pairs of hearts.

A male emperor moth can smell a female up to seven miles away.

Slugs travel at a top speed of .007 miles per hour, can stretch to 11 times their length and have 27,000 teeth to help eat their food.

A female bed bug has survived 565 days without food.

A snail can sleep for three years.

Moths hear through the hairs on their bodies.

Some ribbon worms will eat themselves if they cannot find food.

Most spiders have eight eyes.

Honeybees have hair on their eyes.

Bees must visit 5,000 flowers to make a single spoonful of honey.

In his book The Insect, naturalist Url N. Lanham reports that the aphid reproduction cycle is so rapid that the females are born pregnant.

Six Powerful Words

According to legend, Ernest Hemingway created the shortest short story ever told. While having lunch at New York City's famous Algonquin Round Table, Hemingway bragged that he could write a captivating tale—complete with beginning, middle and end—in only six words. His fellow writers refused to believe it, each betting $10 that he couldn't do it. Hemmingway quickly scribbled six words on a napkin and passed it around. As each writer read the napkin, each conceded he'd won. Those six words? "For sale. Baby shoes Never worn "

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during this past spring.

Ryan Boyd (no picture), Ryan Kohler (top), and Rose Eller are all fifth-grade students at East Elementary. They decided they wanted to earn money for the Arthritis Foundation. They gave up their recess time to make and hang posters, solicit contributions and count money. All three kids participated in the St. Anthony's Jingle Bell Run/Walk for Arthritis. Their goal was to raise $100, and they actually collected $432.

Isabella Hall is not yet in kindergarten but demonstrated that she is a very responsible little girl. She was visiting the KidsSpace for some play time, and she found some money on the floor. She promptly turned it in to the information desk for the owner to collect.

Makayla Brown is a fifth grader at North Elementary. She knew a fellow student was feeling unhappy because of private reasons. Makayla gave the student a gift to make her feel special and brighten the student's day.

James Charles is a tenth grader at Alton High School. There was an altercation at the school between two students that involved security. James found the watch that was lost by one of the security men during the altercation and turned it in to the office staff

Lydia Brandon (middle), Emma Ernst (right) and Julia-May Campbell (left) all attend fifth grade at West Elementary. When the three girls heard about the earthquake and subsequent devastation in Haiti, they decided to work through their school to raise money to help the Haitian victims. After getting approval from their teacher and the school principal, the girls contacted the American Red Cross to come to their school and talk to the student body about the situation in Haiti and how everyone could help. The girls raised $800 through a change drive among the school's student body.

Sarah Harnetiaux is a fourth grader at Evangelical Elementary. In January, she held a sock hop for her tenth birthday and, instead of gifts, she asked her guests to make a donation to the

Make a Wish Foundation in memory of her best friend's little brother, who passed away from cancer two years ago. Sarah raised $553 for the organization, of which $32 was part of her own money she received for Christmas. She also donated some of her own money to the Red Cross for the Haiti earthquake victims.

Nick Weigler, an eighth grader in the Alton Middle School, organized a "Hearts for Huntington's" fundraiser at his school. Nick made it a personal goal to raise awareness of the disease from which his mother suffers. Nick encouraged his whole class to participate in selling paper hearts and Blow Pops. He also inspired his classmates to write letters to celebrities, including Oprah, Will Smith, and President Obama, to help make Americans aware of the disease. The class raised more than $400 to donate to the Huntington's Disease Society of America, to be used to fund research for a cure.

Planning for Your Computer Classes

During the summer months of 2010, the public computer classes at Hayner will be temporarily suspended so all can enjoy the warm, sunny days of this area.

In this past year, classes have been offered in the following categories: Microsoft Office Applications (Word, Excel, and PowerPoint); Introduction to Computers; Keyboarding Skills; Installing or Removing Memory Cards and Hard Drives; Photography and Creative Computing; and Using the Internet and E-mail/Social Networking.

John O'Shea

Godfrey patron John O'Shea has married two of his great loves, art and nature, to produce a remarkable collection of paintings that Hayner Alton Square Library will display through June of this year. The library has been a steady source of reference material for John when researching subject matter for his compositions. John strives for precision and accuracy in his depictions of nature and finds within Hayner's collections the resources to help him achieve authenticity in his artwork.

John was born in Springfield, Illinois, where he lived until he joined the Navy in August 1943. He served three years of active duty, the last 21 months stationed on board the USS LST 703 in the South Pacific. John was in Wakyama Harbor when the Instrument of Surrender was signed in Tokyo Bay, Japan, in 1945, ending World War II.

Upon returning to the states, John enrolled in Woodbury College, a commercial art school in Los Angeles. He greatly enjoyed his experience at Woodbury and received not just artistic training but also training in business skills that pertained to the world of advertising and commercial art.

Not far from the art school was the Broadcaster's Network Studio near Hollywood and Vine. John was intrigued by the opportunities in broadcasting and enrolled for the course. He recalls that the broadcasting students were invited to the NBC, CBS and other top network studios to witness live programming in progress. Scripts were available for students to pick up for practice in announcing John's instructors were network announcers.

In 1950, John applied for and got a job as a radio announcer on WTAX-FM. His primary duties were to deliver the station identification during radio broadcasts of the Cardinals baseball games. When Cardinals baseball moved to station WMAY, so did John. WMAY was a 1000-watt regional station. John was initially an announcer for the station but was soon sales manager, responsible for all sales and commercial operations. He eventually became general manager at WMAY.

From WMAY, John took a job with the S.P. Wright Advertising Agency. This agency primarily served 1,400 funeral directors nationwide, creating all the ad campaigns for both print and radio. John served as agency president over a staff of twenty-five and also provided the voice-overs for the company's radio commercials. During this period, he also served as Executive Director of the Illinois Broadcasters Association.

John found himself drawn back to radio and began hosting his own morning radio show on WVEM-FM. The show aired Monday through Saturday from 6 a.m. until 10 a.m. and featured popular music, well-known big band dance tunes and jazz. Every Saturday, John shared the microphone with a local celebrity guest.
As time went on, John gave up his weekly show and took a position with Horace Mann Insurance, the national insurance company serving America's educational community. John worked as corporate public relations director for 12 years, from 1980 until 1992. Additionally, during this time he still hosted his radio program on Saturdays and Sundays.

While at Horace Mann, John was integral to the establishment of "Educator of the Year" and other teacher recognition programs to salute teachers and their major contributions to society.

Over the course of his professional career, John also provided many hours of volunteer service. He served as a board member of the Illinois Heart Association, president of the Sangamon County Heart Association, and chairman of the public relations committee and the education committee for the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. He also served on the Illinois Community Education Board and as vice president for resource development for Lincolnland Community College.

John married his wife, Cricket, in 1949. They were married 58 years and raised five children. Sadly, Cricket passed away in 2007. Today, John lives in Godfrey with his daughter, son-in-law, and two of his twelve grandchildren and has avidly returned to his painting.

John had put his artistic avocation aside for some years while busy with his career and raising a family. Then, one night just prior to hosting a family reunion, John found himself inspired by the warmth and comfort of all the family gathering together. He picked up a paint brush to convey his feelings onto canvas. He became so immersed in his painting that he found himself using two brushes at a time. He painted through the night, oblivious to the phone and other interruptions.

When you are truly inspired, John says, you get so far into your painting you don't even think about what comes next—it just naturally happens. The painting he finished in that one night normally should have taken 50 hours to complete. It is a winter scene with the full moon casting shadows onto snow from towering pines. Among the pines is a cabin. The cabin is well lit from within and exudes a yellow glow of warmth and peace into the cold, lonely night.

John waits to get in front of an easel until he feels a light of inspiration. More often than not, his inspiration comes from nature. Some of his favorite subjects are polar bears, wolves, eagles, ravens, crows, water fowl and Indian motifs. John strives for accuracy in his painting and often relies on a camera to capture the exact details he wants to recreate, such as the feather configurations and flight formations of birds. He also uses print resources from Hayner Library in researching and studying the animals he wishes to paint.

To convey the depth and texture of furred animals, John employs hundreds of strokes. He also studies light and shadows to most accurately reproduce the beauty and strength of his subject. Both as boy and man, he has used the library to develop a vast knowledge of nature. He knows the strict distinction between species' physical characteristics, habitats, and migration patterns and employs this knowledge to achieve authenticity in the representation of his subjects.

Pictures of the Erwin and Ruth Thompson family and some of the "older generation, from whence we came."

Once-and-a Half by Emma Amalia Bruun
This is the story of my stepmother, Emma Amalia Bruun Reed Thompson. She spent many years of her life in missionary work. This is how she met my parents. After the deaths of my mother and Emma's husband, my father married her.

A Man to Remember – George W. Gibbens
Minister, farmer, horticulturist, woodsman, and husband to Emma Riehl. He lived by his own firm principles. Truly "A Man to Remember."

Thompson Family History The history of the James Thompson family, the W. J. Thompson family, blended in with Margaret Jeanette Arthur, the wife of W. J.

A Woman Before Her Time Amelia Riehl, the daughter who carried on her father's work. To accomplish this almost impossible task she bobbed her hair and dressed for work in a pair of Army surplus cavalry pants from World War One, a shirt, and a pair of laced leather boots. We called them "hicuts."

Letters from Anna Riehl from U. of I., 1900–1904
A very personal look at the private life and thoughts of "The modern girl of 1901."

Erwin Thompson, Author
The following items are catalogued and available through the circulating collections of The Hayner Public Library District.

Cattle Country and Back Trail: Two Tales from the Thompson Western Series
Fiction
My wife and our three children helped me write these two books. We are still talking about the pleasure that we had with this project!

The Home Place: The Long Rows Fiction
Fiction? Some of it is. An accurate description of the times, the methods, the social conditions and values of that era. My nephew told me that he had learned more about the Depression from these books than in his whole life just listening to people talk about it.

The Lean Years, I & II Fiction
I wrote these in the European Theater of Operations during World War II. Much of it was written in a hospital bed. I cannot say that this writing saved my life, but it saved my sanity

The Second Mile Fiction
Part One and the little story in the middle ("Lady of Quality") contain personal experiences, adapted to fiction. Part Two is fiction, but with the Army background and addressing the difficult and sometimes almost impossible task of readjusting to civilian life.

Worth Remembering: The Poetry of Our Heritage. A family and friends poetry anthology and some of the history
Nonfiction, 811 WOR
A collection of poetry and songs by myself, my family and my friends. I never considered myself to be a poet. I just wrote down my thoughts and sometimes they came out in rhyme.

Janet Riehl, Author
Sightlines: A Poet's Diary
Nonfiction, 811.6 RIE
A down-home love story beyond death. Memoir told in 90 story poems. Loss, caretaking, memory, time, and the power of place form the sightlines of this collection.

Sightlines: A Family Love Story in Poetry & Music Audiobook
Ninety story poems and forty songs stitch together the lives of six generations. It's a poetic-musical duet capturing the humor, joy and sorrow that create the weft of any family.

John also strives for realism in his portrait work. He lived in Springfield while the Myers Brothers Building was being remodeled. A high protection fence was erected around the construction site, and area artists were invited to compete in providing works of historical subjects to be mounted on the fence. John's charcoal depiction of Abraham Lincoln won third prize in the contest and was noted for its "breathtaking realism."

On another occasion, John was asked to provide artwork to be displayed in the ballroom of a Springfield hotel that was hosting the annual Symphony Ball. The ball's theme was "New Orleans." John obtained a cardboard box that had been used for transporting a new mattress. The side of the box provided a 4′ x 6′ "canvas." Using a combination of tempera, carbon pencil and chalk, John composed a montage of cotton bales, seagulls, and a riverboat on the Mississippi with Louis Armstrong and his trumpet in the foreground. He completed the oversized work in only a couple of nights without the use of any preliminary sketches. His work was a huge hit the night of the ball. After the festivities, the painting was moved to the radio station where John was employed and today hangs at his home.

John continues to enjoy painting in his spare time, as well as spending time with his children and grandchildren (and visiting Hayner Library). He has learned that regardless of your artistic outlet, whether poetry, prose or painting, if you listen to your internal voice, the inspiration to create will come in "overwhelming waves of emotional reality."

Sound Back

Over the summer months, Hayner Library received some attention in the anonymous citizen voice column of our local newspaper regarding seemingly low usage of the library at the mall. Some of these comments have been posted by individuals who, by their own admission, don't even enter the library facility—they are just making observations as they walk by the library's doors. We decided if these persons are operating under such a misconception, others also may be. Well, to echo a popular movie phrase, we're mad and we're not taking it anymore!

The Hayner Public Library District operates on a fiscal year that runs from July 1 to June 30. During the fiscal year 2009–2010, the libraries, downtown and in the mall, circulated more than 511,000 items. The previous fiscal year, 2008–2009, 404,000 items were circulated Thus, in fiscal year 2009–2010, circulation increased 21.02 percent.

During the single month of June 2010, the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall (the library singled out in the citizens' comments), a total of 40,921 patrons visited the library in the mall. This equates to an average of 1,333 patrons per day.

Daily usage activity reports identified the least busy day of the month of June 2010 as Sunday, June 6, during which the library was visited by 502 patrons. The busiest day of June 2010 was Monday, June 28, during which the library served 1,715 patrons.

Patron usage continues to grow as Hayner Library adds the new products and services that meet your needs and interests. New items are added to the library's inventory on a daily basis—including books, CDs, DVDs, magazines, databases and more. This summer, in addition to the fifteen databases to which we already subscribed for your use, we added three new ones: a general reference database, a literature database, and the World Book online (see "Three New Databases: Free for Your Use", pg. 3). We also are now offering you the capability to download ebooks to your portable media player free of charge. Youth, teen and adult programs are refreshed every quarter, so there is always a great choice of new and different activities and programs to be enjoyed by all ages.

Come visit and see for yourself how "not-so-busy" we are!

Watch for Our Grand Opening

This fall, the Hayner Library at 401 State Street will reopen as the Hayner Library of Local History and Genealogy.

The interior of the beautiful Hayner Building, built in 1891, has had a long-overdue refurbishment. The library will be the home to our local history collection, previously housed in the Illinois Room in the Hayner Library on 326 Belle Street.

Rare and delicate materials will be kept in locked stacks, and a large local history and civil war reference collection will be accessible in open shelving. Genealogical research materials will be available in print and electronic format, and Hayner staff will be available to help you with your research. Museum quality display cases will showcase the rich heritage of the Riverbend area as well as feature the work of local artists and craftsmen.

The beautiful new interior of the building was designed by Lefferson and Associates Inc., based in Alton, Ill. It preserves the integrity and elegance of the original building designed by the renowned architect Theodore Link.

We look forward to seeing you at the opening this fall!

Food for Fines

In past years, we have waived current fines on Hayner material if you contributed a nonperishable food item for each fine during a holiday time amnesty period. The past couple of years we have decided to start spreading the holiday spirit a little early, sponsoring the program in October. It was very successful and we have decided to repeat the October scheduling of the program.

From October 1 through October 31, 2010, anyone who has an overdue item can pay their fine with a canned goods food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine and Hayner materials only. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

There are several reasons we decided to move up fine amnesty program. During the holidays, many different organizations support centers such as the Crisis Food Center but as we get wrapped up in our everyday lives, we sometimes forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are hoping this amnesty calendar change can help people immediately without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity". It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

Perhaps you have some Hayner material that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center but it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation.

Thank you for your support.

An Exciting Partnership!

In the spring of this year, the Alton School District and The Hayner Public Library District partnered to explore the possibility of opening a charter school in Alton. School district officials approached Jeff Owen, Hayner Library Executive Director, to broach an educational partnership between the two organizations that would yield a new charter school for the Alton area at the inception of the 2011–2012 school year.

According to Alton School District Superintendent David Elson, a potential partnership between Hayner and the school district seemed to be a perfect fit. "As we moved towards formally planning a charter school in Alton, we immediately wanted to partner with the library district, since our missions to increase literacy-based initiatives for youth directly coincide with one another," noted Elson.

Hayner received an $84,550 grant from the Illinois State Board of Education to underwrite the costs of a twelve-month planning period and activities in further exploring a charter school start-up. Beginning in August 2010, a committee comprising Alton School District, Hayner Library and community representatives will meet over the next year to plan all facets of a potential charter school.

Components for planning include the selection of the school's curriculum, site location, staffing, management, operational needs, budget development and others. The committee hopes to present their plans for the opening of Alton Charter School to the boards of both the Alton School District and Hayner Library in July 2011.

Public charter schools provide students with an alternative choice in instructional techniques that focus heavily on the student's learning style. All of the same core subjects are taught within charter schools, but the delivery of such can range from inquiry and project-based learning to technology-infused learning. Students are also able to receive instruction in a non-traditional, smaller classroom setting.

The proposed plan for Alton Charter School is to initially serve up to 100 students entering 8th and 9th grades.

Lucky Winners!

Congratulations to Pat Collier (right) and Lucy Droste (below), grand prize winners in Hayner Library's 2010 Adult Summer Reading Program. The program, which ran from June 12 to July 24, drew hundreds of entries for the reading prizes. Pat Collier was the winner at Hayner Downtown Library, and Lucy Droste won at the Alton Square library. Each winner received a total of $100 in gift certificates to Alfie's and to Josephine's Tea Room & Gifts. These gift prizes were provided through the generosity of private funding. Congratulations again to the lucky winners!

Three New Databases: Free for Your Use

Hayner Library has added three new databases to its free Online Resources for patrons. You can use these databases to research topics of interest, for research papers and reports for school, and more. Hayner has added a general reference online database, a literature database, and World Book Online.

Credo Reference is a database of 100 reference books including encyclopedias, dictionaries, bilingual dictionaries, biographies, and quotations that cover subjects in art, history, literature, medicine, religion, science, and more. A sample of what you will find are art images, medical diagrams, the Holy Bible, quotations, and atlases, all fully cited. These resources provide context and vocabulary for your topic or question. All articles found here are acceptable reference sources, which makes this a good place to start your research for a school paper, or for a topic of general interest.

Bloom's Literary Reference Online is a critically-acclaimed literature database that offers essays and criticism on the lives and works of great writers throughout history. An especially helpful feature is Bloom's How to Write About. Here specific advice is given on how to write about selected major authors. Students and teachers will find this database very useful for English assignments.

World Book Online is a premier reference database developed for elementary and middle-school students. In World Book Kids, you will find easy-to-read articles, science projects, interactive games and activities, outlines of maps and flags, and biographies for early elementary school students. In Info Finder, there are more than 40,000 encyclopedia articles for elementary and middle-school students. Also included are interactive Earth maps, links to world newspapers, research tools, and teacher resources. This is a great place to go for homework assignments and projects.

These databases can be accessed from the library and from home with your Hayner Library card. To learn more about the databases and how to use them, contact us in the Reference Department at reference@haynerlibrary.org, or phone us at 462-0677, Ext. 2864.

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission. Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following awards were announced for the contributions of kids recognized during this past summer:

Zion Haynes is four years old and attends preschool at the Godfrey Early Childhood Center. Zion was getting ready for school one morning when his mother had a seizure. Zion recognized that his mother needed help and immediately called 911. He gave the authorities his name, age and address. He told them his mother was having a seizure and needed their help. The ambulance was immediately dispatched and arrived in minutes to provide the necessary medical attention for Zion's mom. Once Zion determined that everything was "under control," he informed the medical people, "I have to go now to get on the bus to go to school."

Noah and Kaleb Singleton are fourth graders at East Elementary School. A scooter was stolen from the school's bike rack, and the theft was reported to the students over the school's PA system. Noah and Kaleb stepped forward and identified the boy who had stolen the bike. Thanks to Noah and Kaleb, the police recovered the scooter, and it was returned to the owner.

Will Schuenke is a third grader in Evangelical Elementary school. For a class trip to the Arch in St. Louis, Will's parents gave him $10 to spend in the gift shop. When he returned home, he had only some change left, though all he had purchased was an item costing $5. His mother inquired about the rest of his money. Will told his mom that he had bought an item for a classmate. The other little boy was the only one in the class who did not bring any money to spend in the gift shop, and Will did not want him to feel left out. Will shared his money so that the boy could enjoy a treat from the gift shop along with all the other kids.

Allieanna Pierson is 11 years old and attends West Elementary School. Her aunt manages a Casey's General Store, and every October the store participates in fund-raising for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Allieanna has helped her aunt hold these events for the past four years but this year decided she wanted to do something on her own. She decided that not only would she raise funds for St. Jude Hospital, but she would also collect coloring books and supplies that would be directly distributed to the kids who were in the hospital. Allieanna set a goal for herself to collect $500. From May through June 15, Allieanna collected more than $600, as well as 131 coloring books and 84 Beanie Babies. She also collected construction paper, markers, colored pencils, crayons and pre-K reading books. Additionally, Allieanna made $60 in a June yard sale, which she also added to her donations. At the end of June, Allieanna went to Memphis to personally deliver the money and other items to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

We certainly can be optimistic about the future of our community.

It's been written about by poets, painted by artists, visited by dignitaries, and owned by noted explorers, inventors, war heroes, renowned horticulturists, and millionaire industrialists and philanthropists. It was the setting of one of the most important pioneer Mississippi River crossings and the scene of river piracy, gambling, moonshining, treasure hunting, and even murders. But perhaps most importantly, it was for many years the secret entry point for an extensive underground railroad operation. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

• Project Next Generation
It's coming. It will be here soon. Before you know it, in just a couple of years, you will be the one people will seek when looking for that person they can trust to get the job done. Are you ready? Have you started thinking about what you'll need to be able to do to convince them that they've found the right person? And that experience part: How can you get some of that if you have to have it first before they'll hire you?

You've found the right place. In today's world, nearly anything that's done is touched, in some way, by technology; specifically, computers and computer-assisted technology. You want to have that cutting edge, the one that gives your profile the kind of attention it needs to land you wherever you want to be: in a great job that you love, with lots of potential; at the top of the list of people that the college you want to attend is considering for admission; or in a position to start your own business, where you'll be in charge. The Hayner Public Library District has resources available to give you experience, skills in using current cutting-edge technology, and the poise and presence to be able to sell your talents to others.

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its fourth year of implementation at Hayner. We are excited to be able to offer this twice-a-week, after-school program to emerging sixth graders through exiting eighth graders to give them a special opportunity to learn new skills while having fun. Scheduled on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3:30–4:45 in the Multipurpose Room at our Alton Square Mall location, the program has room for 10–12 teenagers. You will learn about using current computer applications like Office Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Publisher; research diverse topics like the life of Abraham Lincoln or world-renowned explorers; learn how to make a presentation with digital photography or videography; and discover the fun of using SMART Boards to make those presentations. In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our six-week sessions! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information, or to sign up for our fall 2010 session.

• Teen Read Week Event
"Books with Beat @ Your Library"
October 17–23, 2010

Teens come join in the fun as we celebrate Teen Read Week! This year's theme is "Books with Beat @ Your Library®," which encourages teens to read poetry, audiobooks, books about music, and more. The celebration runs from October 17 to 23. Hayner TeenSpace will host a music-themed movie on Thursday, October 21, at 6 p.m. We also have a trivia contest that will run all week. To register for the movie, call 433-2872. Limited space available.

Project Next Generation Enters 11th Year of Operation

The Hayner Public Library District is pleased to announce that Project Next Generation (PNG), a program underwritten by a grant received through the Illinois State Library and strongly supported by Alton's own Jesse White, Secretary of State, will once again be funded through fiscal year 2010/11. It is a program designed specifically for middle school children and meets after school and on weekends.

In the past, the Hayner PNG program has met twice weekly for six-to-eight consecutive weeks, with one session being held in the fall and the other, in the spring. We're trying to shake things up a bit this year; so our schedule is being changed rather dramatically. We hope that these changes will allow more teens to participate in more of the activities. To that end, we have divided up the year, not by date, but by themes.

The Performing Arts will be explored throughout the school year, beginning in October and ending in March. Participants in this program will meet after school, once a month, on Tuesdays, to learn about how computers are used to create special effects and backdrops for live performances and to study reviews of current stage performances being offered in the area. Two productions will be attended, one at our own Alton Little Theater, an award-winning community theater; and the other, at The Fox Theater in downtown St. Louis. The first production will be attended on a Sunday afternoon and the second, on a Saturday.

Nutrition and Cooking 101 will be held on two consecutive Saturday mornings in November, from 9 a.m.– noon. On the first Saturday, a menu will be planned and recipes will be downloaded from the Internet. A shopping list will be created, as well as a list of what cooking items will be needed in order to prepare the meal. Place card menus will also be created this week to use when setting the next week's table.

On the second Saturday, the group will meet at the Riverbender.com Community Center, where we will use their kitchen to prepare and serve the meal. The participants will have a chance to invite their parents to this meal, which will be served and eaten in a formal setting.

The second half of the school year will continue an investigation of the performing arts. In addition, workshops on creative photography will be offered on Saturday mornings, and geocaching trips will be taken on two different occasions. Look for more information about these programs in our winter newsletter!

In the meantime, if you are interested in having your child(ren) participate in Project Next Generation, please call 433-2861 to get his/her name on a waiting list. The number of participants is limited to 10, so call early to reserve a place!

• Teen Summer Reading Program 2010

The 2010 Teen Summer Reading Program, "Scare Up a Good Book," was a big success! Participants won great weekly prizes for their diligent reading and attended a variety of performances and events, such as Nitro Joe's Science Show, Serengeti Steve's Reptile Experience, and scary movie nights. To wrap up the summer, each participant was invited to a party at the new Riverbender Community Center. This year's top reader, Ashlea Doersam, received a gift basket full of books, gift cards, a shirt, and other scary-themed items. Congratulations to all our readers, and we hope to see you next year!

Fall Computer Class Schedule
The Hayner Public Library at Alton Square Mall

Beginning Computers
This class is an introductory class for raw beginners. It will cover such topics as what to look for when purchasing a computer; the differences between operating systems; the differences between desktops and laptops; vocabulary peculiar to computer users; the proper way to shut down a computer; and how to change the appearance of a computer to suit the user's needs. Because this class is one of our most-requested classes, it will be offered every other month, on the first Tuesday evenings and first Friday mornings. It will be a two-hour class, meeting from 6:30–8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, and from 9–11 a.m. on Fridays. The schedule through December is as follows:

Tuesdays (6:30–8:30 p.m.):
October 5
December 7

Fridays (9–11 a.m.):
October 1

Using the Internet
Using the Internet is a broad topic, and another one of our most-requested classes. It will also be a two-hour class, and will discuss how to conduct Internet searches, save favorite URLs (the address of the website is called a "URL"), clear the user's history, enlarge the viewing pane, and set up a free e-mail account. Another topic of discussion will be how to connect to the Internet in the first place, via dial-up, DSL, or cable hook-up. This is a two-hour class. Its schedule is as follows:

Tuesday (6:30–8:30 p.m.):
November 2

Friday (9–11 a.m.):

E-mail Basics
Although e-mail will be briefly discussed in the Internet class, specifics about how to create an e-mail, organize messages that are received, send an attachment, and open an attachment will not be; therefore, this class will cover more of the particulars about using e-mail. A prerequisite to this class is having an established e-mail account and knowing how to access that account from a computer other than your home computer. (Knowing your user name and password is a MUST!!) This is a one-hour class.

Tuesday (6:30–7:30 p.m.):
October 12

Friday (9–10 a.m.):
October 8

Staying Safe on the Internet
Back by popular demand, a presentation on how to stay safe while using the Internet will be offered at this time. This is a must for anyone who uses the Internet on a regular basis. Two hours.

Friday (1-3 p.m.):

Taking Pictures with a Digital Camera
Bring your digital camera with you to this class and learn more about all it has to offer. The built-in features of typical digital point-and-shoot cameras will be introduced. This is a one-hour class.

Tuesday (6:30–7:30 p.m.):
November 16

Friday (9–10 a.m.):

Uploading Photos from a Digital Camera into Your Computer
If you already have pictures stored on your camera, but want some help in transferring them from your camera to a computer, this is the class you need. Bring your camera, complete with memory card and USB cable, and join us for an hour of instruction on getting the pictures from your camera, creating a folder where they'll be saved, and giving each a name. This is a one-hour class.

Tuesday (6:30–7:30 p.m.):
November 30

Friday (1-3 p.m.):

Creating a Budget with Excel
Setting up a spreadsheet that will automatically calculate income and expenses is not only a fiscal tool that's useful to know, but it also creates a document that can be "shared" by other computer applications when doing taxes. This class introduces the parts of a spreadsheet, basic formulas that can be used, and formatting tips and tricks. It is a one-hour class.

Tuesday (6:30–7:30 p.m.):
December 21

Friday (9–10 a.m.):
December 17

Call or e-mail Ann at 462-0677, Ext. 2830/ ann.bromaghim@haynerlibrary.org to reserve your place in the class or classes of your choice. ## Nancy DeGrand Memorial

Nancy H. DeGrand served The Hayner Public Library District for 32 years, primarily as the library's Chief Financial Officer. After her retirement in 1996, Nancy continued contributing to the district by serving on the library board until her death in 2006.

Nancy was a great friend to the library as well as to the entire community. Her contributions to Hayner were innumerable, and she was a great positive influence and role model to those fortunate enough to work with her.

In July 2010, a memorial statue was dedicated in Nancy's memory. The statue is a young girl with her palm raised, holding a small songbird. She stands at the base of the flagpole on the corner of 4th Street and Belle Street, across from the downtown library and behind the original Hayner Building.

Surrounded by greenery and flowering plants, the statue has an expression of wonder and delight. What better testament to Nancy's legacy of wonder and delight in books, libraries, family and friends.

Patron Profile
Marcie Nagle

One would think that there are few similarities to be found between southeastern Minnesota and Alton. However, Alton's bluffs and hilly landscape reminded Marcie Nagle so much of her family home in Minnesota that, when her husband was transferred to St. Louis, they knew Alton would become their new home.

Marcie grew up on her family's Minnesota dairy farm. She and her mother were responsible for milking the cows, and her brother and father did the field work. It was at the tender age of 4 that Marcie was first put to work. Not yet old enough to do the actual milking, she was given the job of bottle feeding the calves. Marcie loved growing up on the farm, and it certainly contributed to her deep love of animals

Marcie attended the University of Wisconsin—Stout as an undergrad and earned her Doctorate in Clinical Psychology from Argosy University. Her first job was working in a halfway house, after which she spent 10 years with a social service agency giving support and aid to people with mental illness.

Marcie's interest in correctional psychology led her to work in the federal prison system of Minnesota. In 1990 Marcie moved to Rochester, North Carolina, where she worked as a clinical psychologist in the Federal Medical Center in Butner, North Carolina. This is also where she met her husband, Dennie. Marcie and Dennie moved to Kentucky in 2003. There, Marcie maintained a clinical practice in a high- security prison that housed prisoners with a significant history of violence, many of whom were serving life sentences.

In 2007 Marcie and Dennie relocated their home to Alton when Dennie's job was transferred to St. Louis. Marcie currently works with patients in the Federal Correction Institution (F.C.I.) in Greenville, Ill. This facility is a medium-security prison for men and a minimum-security facility for women. Marcie handles a full caseload and also runs a trauma program for women who have been sexually or physically abused.

Marcie counsels patients on a wide range of issues, from anger management to substance abuse. Many of Marcie's patients are facing an "existential crisis" . . . how does one find meaning in life when it is spent behind bars? Marcie says that the answer to this question often requires helping her patients find a personal spiritual connection in their lives. Marcie also helps her patients reestablish healthy family relationships, teaching patients how to be emotionally present in family life even when they cannot be physically present.

The F.C.I. Greenville participates in a vocational training program and community service project called P.A.W.S. (Prisoners Assisting With Support.) This program, under the guidance and training of Support Dogs, Inc., helps the female inmates raise and train service dogs for placement with people with physical disabilities. Selected inmates are educated in service dog training skills by staff members of SDI. The inmates are paired into teams of two, each team given 24-hour responsibility for their "student" dog for eight to twelve weeks. At the end of the training period, the graduated dogs are placed as service dogs, and a new group of student dogs is rotated in.

The inmate trainers hold graduation ceremonies to show off the trainers' and dogs' accomplishments. These ceremonies are attended by inmate trainers, inmates' families, SDI staff and visitors. An example of the skills demonstrated at a recent graduation included a dog that opened a lock on a locker and removed a bottle of water and a medicine pill bottle. The dog then gave these items to the trainer, locked the locker door and waited for another task!

Each inmate-trainer receives a college credit, dog grooming and training skills, a renewed sense of self-worth and the opportunity to give back to society. SDI places the dog-graduates with physically impaired clients.

Marcie often takes one of the dog trainees home with her over the weekend. The dogs (just like us) need a break from their Monday-through-Friday work routine. Home visits allow the animal a chance to practice its new skills in a "real-life" environment. Marcie ensures the dog has an opportunity to interact with men, children and people in street clothes. The dogs experience domestic life, general public exposure and socializing with other animals. Marcie's own dogs are highly trained and thus serve as great doggie-hosts.

Marcie has a basset hound-pit bull mix, Susie-Q, who is a certified therapy dog. Susie Q and Marcie visit hospitals, nursing homes and libraries (including Hayner Library) to spread smiles and good cheer.

Marcie is a member of Touched by a Canine, an organization started by the late June Walker. Touched by a Canine participants are the owners of dogs that have been trained and tested to meet the certification requirements of Therapy Dogs International. Upon certification, owners and dogs volunteer their time to provide company and therapeutic visits to people throughout our community.

Marcie is also a volunteer for the Treehouse Wildlife Center in Godfrey, Ill. The Treehouse Wildlife Center is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the care of orphaned and injured wildlife.

Marcie's vocation and avocations are a testament to her love and concern for both people and animals. Besides their dogs, Marcie and her husband and stepson share their home with a cat, a bird, a rabbit and a tree frog named James (who, Marcie says, is very cute and has lots of personality.)

Marcie's boundless energy and generosity of spirit seem to have no limit—and for that, many of us (of both the two- and four-legged variety) are extremely grateful!

Know Your Local History

One of Alton's most charitable women, Sophia "Ma" Demuth, lived in Alton and gave more than 40 years of selfless service to working with the city's poor and downtrodden. She was said to have a sharp temper, along with a huge, warm heart. Sophia was the mother of eight children, and after her children were old enough to care for themselves, she began her career. Ma Demuth was a charter member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and very active in the Alton Humane Society. Despite being forwardly outspoken and shameless in her opinions, she was highly esteemed by the men and women within her community. She was the first police matron in Alton history. Many believe she paved the way for the opening of this career to women in Illinois. Never one to shy away from a job other people refused to tackle, she quickly became revered and respected around the county. She was known to frequently open her own home to the less fortunate and worked tirelessly on behalf of many charitable causes. In 1900 she was appointed to the position of Madison County Probation Officer and held that position until her death at the age of 82. Ironically, her death occurred on Mother's Day, May 29, 1929. Her funeral was well attended, and her pallbearers were some of the most prominent and influential men in Madison County at that time. Read more about this remarkable woman, and others like her, in the digital archives of the Alton Telegraph newspaper, available at all Hayner Library locations.

Bow-wow Pow-wow

It has been seven years since we first started holding our Bow-wow Pow-wow sessions. On the second Saturday of every month a wonderful team of therapy dog owners bring their dogs to the library. Children come to read to the dogs or just play and visit. Studies have shown that interacting with therapy dogs as they read, can dramatically improve a child's reading skills, as well as their self confidence. In addition, the program makes coming to the library a fun time for the kids. Children also learn to socialize with the animals. They learn that showing kindness and respect to the dogs generates the animals' love and trust, which can be a great joy in life. Come join us at the Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall every second Saturday of the month from 10–11:00 a.m. All ages welcome. Bring your camera! Enjoy these great pictures from past Bow-wow sessions.

Sue has three grown children and lives in Alton.

In July 2010, Marilyn Stewart joined the Hayner staff as business operations and human resources assistant. Prior to employment with Hayner, Marilyn worked at St. Anthony's Hospital for 13 and one-half years as manager of human resources and operations and earlier, at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center (now Gateway Regional Medical Center) in Granite City as assistant director of human resources for 19 years. # MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission: Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character, and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location. The following children were recognized during this past fall for their outstanding actions:

Jocelyn Carrington attends Pre-K school sponsored by Head Start. Jocelyn was on her bus heading to school when the little boy sitting next to her started to have a seizure. As the bus driver pulled over to call 911, the school bus monitor tried to calm the kids, some of whom were panicking. Jocelyn remained calm and placed one hand on the boy's head as she held his hand with the other and comforted him while waiting for the ambulance. The bus driver was so proud of Jocelyn that he walked her to class and told her teacher and classmates of Jocelyn's great help during a very scary situation.

Dylan Asbury attends Eunice Smith Elementary School and is in the second grade. One of Dylan's classmates is, unfortunately, confined to a wheelchair. Without ever having been asked, every day Dylan pushes his friend's wheelchair around the playground. This allows his friend to join in with the other kids instead of sitting "on the sidelines," in one place. Dylan gives up his own playground time to help his friend get involved in recess and enjoy a better day.

Mary Curvey, a fourth grader at North Elementary School, does not approve of bullies. On her own initiative, she started a poster campaign against bullying, requesting from her teacher permission to display the posters in the halls of North Elementary. Since Mary's posters have gone up, Mary's teacher has observed a noticeable improvement of behavior both within her classroom and throughout the school.

Christian Sandberg, a first grader at East Elementary School, had received some money from the tooth fairy. His school was holding a fund-raiser, "Autism Speaks," and Christian decided to forgo buying a Popsicle® at recess and to donate his tooth fairy money to the autism fund. Christian felt the fund-raiser was more important than spending the money on himself.

Makyra Jeter is a sixth grader in Alton Middle School. One of the teachers at the school was selling bracelets to raise funds to help a friend who was critically ill. With a $5 bill, Makyra bought one of the $2 bracelets. She refused her change, however, asking that it be used to help the sick woman.

Each of these great kids has displayed compassion and a caring for others way beyond their years. How many adults do you know who would act so unselfishly?

The Medieval Patron

In 1345, the few students of library management who lived on the European continent were just beginning to hear about a new book by Richard De Bury (1287–1345) titled Philobiblon (1344), one of the first textbooks for the education of librarians. At the time, the library as an institution was mostly a collection of books. Although those charged with responsibility for managing this institution had to worry mostly about book collections, they had no program of education in place to prepare them for that responsibility. Philobiblon provided a bit of guidance, some of which still applies at the beginning of the 21st century...in our much more varied information marketplace.

For example, De Bury advises all managers of information-resource collections to watch out for the "stiff-necked youth sluggishly seating himself for study and while the frost is sharp in winter time, his nose, all watery with the biting cold, begins to drip. Nor does he deign to wipe it with his cloth until he has wet the books spread out before him with the vile dew."

And that same person, warns De Bury, is capable of other transgressions involving body fluids. "With endless chattering, he ceases not to rail against his companions and, while adducing a multitude of reasons void of all sensible meaning, wets the books spread out in his lap with the sputtering of his spittle."

But not all sins by library users against the physical properties of information resources are moisture based. "Soon doubling his elbows," De Bury further describes this patron, "he reclines upon the book and by his short study invites a long sleep and, by spreading out the wrinkles, bends the margins of the leaves, doing no small harm to the volumes." Source: Wayne Wiegand, "This Month, 656 Years Ago," American Libraries 32 (April 2001): 104, quoted by George M. Eberhart (ed.), The Whole Library Handbook, American Library Association, 2006, p. 491.

Editor's Note: I gave quite some thought to whether I should share this excerpt with you, dear patron, and finally decided you would forgive me for any potential insult to your sensibilities. Isn't it amazing that the above was written more than 660 years ago? For good or bad, it certainly demonstrates the consistency of human nature!

Interested in reading Philobiblon for yourself? You can access an English-language version by going to books.google.com and keying in "Philobiblon" in the Search Books field. The complete manuscript will be downloaded to you, free of charge.

Books.google.com is a great site for bibliophiles! You can access thousands of books and /or magazines free. If a book is in the public domain, the entire book will be downloaded to you. Public domain books are books that have never been subject to copyright law or books whose legal copyright term has expired.

You can preview books on Google Books that are still in copyright but have received reprint permission of publishers and authors. You can browse these "limited preview" titles just as you would in a bookstore, but you won't be able to see more pages than the copyright holder has made available. Once you've accessed the maximum number of pages allowed for a "preview only" book, books.google.com provides a link directly to sources for online purchase of the item. It also provides a link to "library" from which you can go to the Hayner Library online catalog and reserve a print copy of the book you were reading online. There are also thousands of archived magazines for you to browse. And everything is free of charge! Enjoy this fabulous website; but be warned—you'll become hooked!

Calling all gamers! Come hang out with other teens and play our PS2 or Wii games. Ages 12–18 welcome. This event is scheduled from 1–3 p.m. on Saturday, February 12, 2011. Don't forget to bring a friend! To register call 433-2872.

❄ Project Next Generation

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its fourth year of implementation at Hayner.

We are excited to be able to offer programs to emerging sixth graders through exiting eighth graders to give them a special opportunity to learn new skills while having fun. Scheduled in the Multipurpose Room at our Alton Square Mall location, the program has room for 10–12 teenagers. You will learn about using current computer applications like Office Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Publisher; research diverse topics like the life of Abraham Lincoln or world-renowned explorers; learn how to make a presentation with digital photography or videography; and discover the fun of using SMART Boards to make those presentations.

In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our upcoming workshops! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information, or to sign up for our Winter 2011 sessions.

❄ Teen Tech Week Event

"Mix and Mash @ your library"

March 6–12, 2011

Teen Tech Week is a national initiative sponsored by the Young Adult Library Services Association and is aimed at teens, their parents, educators, and other concerned adults. The purpose of the initiative is to ensure that teens are competent and ethical users of technologies, especially those that are offered through libraries, such as DVDs, databases, audiobooks, and video games. Teen Tech Week encourages teens to use libraries' nonprint resources for education and recreation and to recognize that librarians are qualified, trusted professionals in the field of information technology. Hayner TeenSpace will be celebrating "Mix and Mash @ your library" by hosting a variety of teen-related events. For more information about these events, please call Shannon at 433-2872.

Heed These Words!

"I received the fundamentals of my education in school, but that was not enough. My real education, the superstructure, the details, the true architecture, I got out of the public library. For an impoverished child whose family could not afford to buy books, the library was the open door to wonder and achievement, and I can never be sufficiently grateful that I had the wit to charge through that door and make the most of it. Now, when I read constantly about the way in which library funds are being cut and cut, I can only thunk that the door is closing and that American society has found one more way to destroy itself."

Hemingway Said What?!

It's both a fault and a virtue of great literature that we seldom have a chance to hear the unfiltered voice of the author. But with the recent launching of The Paris Review's free online archive of interviews with many literary giants, that's no longer entirely true.

The preeminent literary quarterly not only published the work of many of the previous century's most influential English language authors; it also interviewed them about, among other subjects, living, writing, and their works. In an amazing turn, these interviews—annotated and meaty -are now available to anyone with Internet access and a few hours to themselves. The collection spans six decades, starting in the 1950s, and includes the greats from that time to this, including, among many others, Faulkner, Capote, Hemingway, Nabokov, McCarthy, Didion and Morrison. We so often read these writers' works without knowing much about the people who wrote them—here's your chance to meet those mysterious dwellers behind the pen.

Go to www.parisreview.org and click on Interviews. You are in for a fascinating read.

Do you need some extra room in the attic, basement, or closets in your home?

We may be able to help with that! The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library would like to take all of those old, dusty, elementary school yearbooks off your hands and out of your way. We would appreciate donations of elementary school yearbooks to add to our limited collection.

Yearbooks are often overlooked in the compiling of family history, when in reality they are a wonderful source for this type of research. In the mind of the family genealogist, finding a picture of Grandpa in his football jersey is like finding a little gold nugget.

At this time, we are particularly interested in elementary school yearbooks, but if you have other yearbooks from any of the local schools, we would be happy to consider those as well. So, donate those old yearbooks that are only taking up valuable closet space, and think of it as an early start to your spring cleaning! To donate, please contact the Genealogy & Local History Library at 462-0677, Ext. 2859.

Rudolf and Peter Mohr from Germany with Hayner Public Library Genealogy Assistant Pam Bierman

In the 1800s a branch of the Mohr family from Germany immigrated to the United States and then settled in the Madison County, Illinois, area by planting their German roots in Alton soil. They became prominent in business and respected in the community. A stonemason by trade, Mr. Mohr was instrumental in the construction of some of Alton's finest buildings, such as the Masonic Temple and the YMCA.

Nearly 150 years later, on September 1, 2010, Rudolf and Peter Mohr, descendants of the Mohr family of Alton, travelled from their German homeland and walked into Hayner Public Library hoping to connect their roots to this early Alton family. I had the honor of assisting Peter and Rudolf in finding that connection. My name is Pam Bierman, and I am a Library Assistant in Hayner Library's Genealogy & Local History Library. After three days of searching newspaper articles, walking through cemeteries, and exploring Alton history, Peter and Rudolf said goodbye. They returned to Germany with a folder chock-full of newspaper clippings, cemetery records, and photographs that will be used to graft the Alton, Illinois, Mohrs into their German-rooted family tree.

My encounter with Peter and Rudolf taught me that genealogy is more than locating family connections and documenting memories. It is also about learning, listening, and experiencing other cultures. And maybe even being fortunate enough to make a few new friends along the way.

If you would like assistance in locating family connections, please contact Hayner's Genealogy & Local History Library. We will be happy to help you with your family research!

The Story of an Alton Hero . . . William "Scotch" Johnston

by Pam Bierman

We have all heard the story of the Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy, who was murdered as he defended the right to freedom of speech, while taking an unwavering stand against slavery. No one disagrees that he was a hero. He will forever be a key person in Alton's early history. But Elijah P. Lovejoy was not the only hero in that chapter of Alton history, or in the Lovejoy story.

William "Scotch" Johnston was a freed black stonemason from Aberdeen, Scotland, who was living in Alton when Elijah P. Lovejoy was murdered on the evening of Nov. 7, 1837. Unknowingly, he made himself a hero in Alton's history that night when he removed Lovejoy's body from the Godfrey-Gilman Warehouse and secretly buried it in an undisclosed area. It has been reported that Johnston also built a wooden casket and painted it red by using pokeberry juice, in order to make it more presentable for the honorable man who would lie within its walls. With respect, he laid the body of Lovejoy in the homemade casket and cried as he gently lowered it into the ground. He took this task upon himself without compensation or reward.

Fearing what that angry mob of murderers would do if they knew the location of Lovejoy's grave, Johnston kept the location a secret for many years, proving that his devotion to Lovejoy did not die with the slain martyr on that fateful November night. These selfless acts of respect show that William "Scotch" Johnston was a man of conviction, with strong moral values, and a courageous heart. He was a man who put action to his convictions, with no regard for his own personal safety.

Johnston died at his home on the evening of July 11, 1885. His funeral was well attended, and his body was laid to rest in the Alton City Cemetery. His obituary in the Alton Evening Telegraph stated that the venerable Mr. William Johnston was about 80 years of age and left several children to mourn his death.

Prior to Johnston's death, the remains of Elijah P. Lovejoy were exhumed and reburied in a marked grave in the Alton City Cemetery, ironically with Scotch Johnston again acting as one of the overseers. Since the reburial, Lovejoy's grave has been maintained continuously by several dedicated persons and organizations within the community. These continued acts of honor show that there are still those who believe in keeping Lovejoy's spirit of freedom alive, more than 170 years after his death. And it began with Lovejoy's faithful friend, William "Scotch" Johnston.

Mike Montgomery

Mike Montgomery has all the characteristics and skills necessary to a great radio talk show host. Upbeat, informed, multitalented and maybe just a little crazy—who better to host Matinee Madness, which airs Monday through Friday on WBGZ (1570 AM) from 3:00–6:00 p.m. Mike, a well-known voice and personality in the Riverbend, brightens the afternoon for many of us while keeping us informed about events and personalities of interest in our community.

Mike, a St. Louis native, has had a colorful career that certainly has contributed to his skills as a raconteur. He attended Parks College of St. Louis University with the intention of studying to become an aeronautical engineer. While in school, Mike worked part time as a copyboy at the now-defunct St. Louis Globe-Democrat newspaper. Mike's boss directed him to the St. Louis Public Library to learn how to write a newspaper story, and that is just what he did. Martin Duggan, famed television host of Donnybrook on KETC, was working at the Globe at the time and was the one who said, "Hire the kid"—and Mike was on his way as a reporter for the Globe.

Having gone through ROTC while in college, Mike had to interrupt his newspaper career for a four-and-a-half-year stint in the Army. He served overseas in both Vietnam and Germany As a second lieutenant, Mike was offered the opportunity to attend one of the Army's language schools, studying in either Monterey, California, or Washington, D.C. He jumped at the opportunity, studied in Washington, and after attaining fluency in German, was stationed in Germany for two years, before a tour in Vietnam.

Mike returned to civilian life and his job as a reporter for the Globe-Democrat, where he would work for the next 20 years, with a few detours into public relations. As an investigative reporter, Mike spent many hours, he remembers, in the St. Louis Public Library, his head buried in the microfilm viewer for hours at a time to research a story's background. He covered organized crime and political corruption and "made a lot of people mad"—but Mike loved the job. He says that he never met a greater cast of characters than those working at the Globe, and though he often worked 12–15 hours a day, it was a terrific, exciting time.

Mike rose to city editor and had 35 reporters working for him—and testifies that the newsroom was a high-stress, high-energy nerve center but was always wonderfully invigorating. However, as can happen in such a furiously paced environment, everything was business as usual one day, and the next day Mike and all his colleagues were informed that the newspaper had folded. The Globe-Democrat closed its doors permanently in October 1986, having operated as the Greater St. Louis Area morning newspaper since 1852.

Mike was not long without employment, however, and the calls he was getting from California sounded particularly attractive. Relocating to the West Coast, Mike worked as a city editor in northern San Diego County, for a wire service in Los Angeles, and as executive editor for a newspaper group based in the suburbs of Los Angeles and owned by Ralph Ingersoll Publications International. At the time, Ingersoll also owned the Telegraph, our Alton newspaper. In 1989 Mike was transferred back to the Riverbend as editor of the Telegraph, a position he held until 1994.

After leaving the Telegraph, Mike decided to attend graduate school at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville. He completed a master's degree in mass communications while also teaching part time at both SIUE and Lewis & Clark Community College. Additionally, he produced a weekly radio commentary show for WBGZ. By 1997 he was teaching full time at SIUE and acting as faculty adviser to the student newspaper, the Alestle. Mike loved working with the students, helping them to hone their skills and define their career objectives in the news media. Many of Mike's former students have stayed in touch with him. Some even insisted that Mike finally set up a Facebook page so they could access real-time updates of Mike's latest adventures.

In 2006 Mike retired from teaching but was now on the radio five days a week entertaining the Riverbend audience with Matinee Madness. Mike interviews guests, discusses current events, and provides commentary, often on the many absurdities of life. Employing his natural optimism and humor, Mike keeps his show upbeat and fun, avoiding the "doom and gloom" so prevalent in many of today's media outlets.

Mike and his wife, Barbara, live in Godfrey. Barbara is finishing her associate's degree in applied science and works at the William Bedell Achievement Resource Center in Wood River. Mike met Barbara when he was working at the Telegraph and she was dropping off press releases for publication . . . and that was the end of that story!

Mike and Barbara love to spend free time exploring the country, traveling on Mike's Harley-Davidson motorcycle. This past summer, they took a 12-day road trip, hitting 15 states and covering over 5,000 miles. To celebrate Mike's first retirement in 2006, they rode through Canada and into Alaska, covering 7,800 miles in three weeks. Mike has been a motorcycle enthusiast since his college days and fondly remembers his first bike, a Honda 450. Today they ride a Harley Heritage Softail, 2002. Mike says Barbara is a "darn good traveler" and that they both love just getting on the bike and riding as the spirit moves them.

The Montgomerys are strong patrons of the local arts, enjoying the Alton Symphony, Alton Little Theater, and events at the Jacoby Arts Center. They also have fun supporting "canine special events" (Bark in the Park, Yappy Hour, etc.) with their Super Dog, Obie.

Mike and Barbara are faithful fans of Hayner Library's performance series and rarely miss an event. We look forward to seeing them at our next performance!

Viva Volunteers!

If you frequent Hayner Library, particularly the downtown library location, you have undoubtedly experienced the phenomenon that is Stephanie Munson, Hayner Library Volunteer Coordinator. Stephanie is a little blonde person with an infectious laugh and a thousand stories to tell.

On December 9th Stephanie will celebrate 25 years of employment with The Hayner Public Library District. She started working for the library part time as a Library Assistant and shortly was asked to manage the library's bookmobile service. The bookmobile was a huge success in the community, but the vehicle became exorbitantly expensive to maintain, and the program went through a transformation into the Homebound Program.

Headed by Stephanie, this program provided library materials to Hayner patrons who were confined to their homes. Stephanie and her volunteers took books and friendship to these homebound individuals. Under Stephanie's guidance, the Homebound Program became more than a book delivery service—it provided a community outreach function of neighbors caring for neighbors.

Under Stephanie's supervision, the Homebound Program grew both in patrons and volunteers. Stephanie has a core group of volunteers who have worked with her since the inception of the program. Over twenty years later, out of the original seven volunteers who started in Homebound, four are still contributing their time to the library district. They include: Dr. Ned DuVivier, Dave Allen, June Weinrich, and Spiv Woeffel. Today, the Homebound Program, renamed Hayner Delivery Service, provides service to approximately 200 patrons in our library community and is managed by Esther Gillespie.

In 2008, Stephanie assumed the responsibilities of Volunteer Services Coordinator, district-wide. Stephanie's volunteers are of two categories: those who work at library tasks on a regular (weekly) schedule and those who work, as needed, on special projects. One of the biggest special projects to date was the Branch and Youth Libraries' relocation to a new facility in Alton Square Mall in 2009. A team of Hayner volunteers were invaluable in shelving and organizing our collection materials in the new facility. We could never have met the Grand Opening date without volunteer support.

Ongoing volunteer tasks include "Adopt-a-Shelf," "Readers to Go," Delivery Service, "Operation Soldier," and more. There are also special projects for which Stephanie would warmly welcome you even if you have only a limited amount of time. This spring, Stephanie will be hoping for volunteers who might like to help with gardening activities around the downtown library buildings.

Currently, Stephanie has 23 active volunteers and another 29 project volunteers. Many of the volunteers have become fast friends, and at least once a year Stephanie hosts a volunteer get-together that is "like a big family gathering." To volunteer your time or just to find out more about volunteer opportunities, call Stephanie Munson at 433-2844.

Operation Shoebox

Operation Shoebox was founded in 2003 to send support to our men and women deployed outside of the USA and to help raise their morale and let them know they are cared about. The Hayner Public Library District is participating in the program and has adopted a soldier, SPC Shane Michie. Specialist Michie will be in charge of accepting Hayner Library patrons' donations and dispersing them throughout his army troop. Donation wish lists are kept at the circulation desks of library locations and include items such as snacks, personal hygiene products and stationery. The troops especially love receiving hand-written notes and letters. We also are accepting donations to cover the mailing costs of the donated items ($12.50/box). We will box the items and ship care packages to Specialist Michie and his troop through May of 2011, which is the end of Specialist Michie's deployment. Please help support Operation Shoebox. Even the smallest item could help brighten a soldier's day. A quick note will remind our men and women overseas that we are thinking of them and support the great service they are performing in our behalf.

The Hayner Public Library District now has a Facebook page. Be sure to become a fan of Hayner Library on Facebook and get all the latest library news, programming, and events. The library's Facebook page will keep you informed on new additions to the library's collection, reminders of upcoming library programs, community programs, new library displays, and more!

Declaration of Reader Independence

The thousands of books landing in libraries and stores every year have been known to precipitate severe levels of anxiety and panic in those of us who live by the credo "So many books, so little time." Those of us who grew up with the teaching "You must finish every book you start" become extremely susceptible to nervous collapse.

Well, help has arrived. We found the following "Declaration of Reader Independence" in a copy of O, Oprah's magazine (O, The Oprah Magazine, July 2010, 111).

Since Oprah is Empress, Queen of the World, if not the universe, feel free to incorporate all or part of the following declaration into your philosophy of life Free yourself, dear reader, march forward and declare that you hold as self-evident your right to:

1. Not finish a book, whether you've read to page 10, 50 or 250. (But if it's Ulysses, you get points just for getting past page 1.)
2. See the movie first—especially if you've heard the book is kind of lousy; the movie just has to be better.
3. Read two books at once—and occasionally get the plots mixed up.
4. Reread a childhood favorite. But be forewarned: Charlotte still dies.
5. Judge a book by its cover. Or its title. We defy you, for example, not to pick up Mary Roach's Bonk, which, um, scores on both counts.
6. Wish that Cormac McCarthy would use a little punctuation now and then.
7. Be miffed if your friend doesn't like a book you recommend. On the other hand, you have our permission to be miffed if she gets miffed when you don't like the one she recommends to you.
8. Ignore memoirs by people who have barely cracked their 30s.
9. Declare yourself unmoved by the existential struggles of vampires, zombies (even those in league with Jane Austin), talking dogs, or what we worry is the next trend: scary-smart monkeys.
10. Believe that books can be magic carpets to enchanted lands, even while realizing that they're inanimate objects made of ink and paper. (Unless they're e-books. And it's okay to love those, too.)

Change Is Good!

Technology seems to change our lives every day. Some of us like it; some don't. New technology can be intimidating until we use it and clear away the mystery. Once you use the new technology, you wonder how you did without it.

Some of us have been hesitant to try the new self-check at grocery stores, service stations and . . . yes, libraries! The Hayner Public Library District installed self-checkout machines in 2009. They were immediately embraced by many of our patrons and today facilitate approximately one-half of all our patrons' check-out transactions.

Self-checkers allow you to check out any of the materials you borrow from the library without the intervention of library staff. You simply wave your library card and your library material under a scanner, and you are on your way. For CD and DVD cases, which are locked, the unlocking device at the station takes just a quick swipe of the case to release the security lock. First-time user? No fear. The display will lead you through a few simple steps to complete your transaction. You are given the option to receive a printed receipt that identifies each individual item and its due date. The system notifies you if a transaction has not been processed and tells you how to proceed correctly. The system doesn't care if you are checking out material owned by another library. The checkout process is seamless and transparent. Users who are non-Hayner patrons can use their owning library's card to check out Hayner material to their accounts. Even if you have a fine on your card (less than $5), you will not be prohibited from checking out at the self-checkout. The system also is multilingual.

Self-checkout has been enthusiastically accepted by patrons and staff alike. The staff now has more time to spend on customer service requests. Freed to a great extent from discharge duties, they are more available for your questions and one-on-one support. Offloading mechanical responsibilities from the staff's duties is critically important. The poor fiscal condition of the Illinois state budget is a significant concern regarding the availability of state funding for library operation. The recently identified decline in our community's population (2010 Federal Census) will negatively affect Hayner Library District's annual per capita income funding. The library district must find creative ways to facilitate the increasing volume of user activity without increasing operating costs. The implementation of self-check technology is a critical component of maintaining library service standards.

If you are not familiar with the self-checkout process, library staff members will be happy to help you with your transaction. Many patrons also appreciate the privacy provided by self-checkout along with the speed and ease of the system. Young kids love being able to use the system for Mom or Dad. It becomes another fun aspect of visiting the library. Yes, change is good.

Food For Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month and in commemoration of this, all three locations of The Hayner Library District will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5A's Animal Shelter. This non-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you can pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner material only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation for each fine. Please help our friends at the 5A's – they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter.

Promote Your Library

First sponsored in 1958, National Library Week is a national observance sponsored by the American Library Association (ALA) and libraries across the country each April. It is a time to celebrate the contributions of our nation's libraries and librarians and to promote library use and support. This year, National Library Week is recognized April 10–16.

In the mid-1950s, research showed that Americans were spending less on books and more on radios, televisions, and musical instruments. Concerned that Americans were reading less, the ALA and the American Book Publishers formed a nonprofit citizens' organization called the National Book Committee in 1954. The committee's goals were ambitious. They ranged from "encouraging people to read in their increasing leisure time" to "improving incomes and health" and "developing strong and happy family life." These goals are as pertinent and valuable today as they were fifty years ago.

A statement by the American Library Association is clearly applicable to The Hayner Public Library District. "Today's libraries can help you discover a new and exciting world. Take advantage of the free access to books and computers, homework help, online assistance with resumes and job searches, accurate financial information, free programs for education and entertainment, CDs, DVDs and much more. Don't forget, your librarian is information smart and can help you find the right answer @ your library.... Libraries have always provided useful services to their communities and free access to a wide range of media. But it's usually during tough economic times that we recognize the true value of those resources. As Americans today struggle to stretch every dollar, they're returning to libraries in droves."

The books, audiobooks, CDs and DVDs purchased by just one individual can cost thousands of dollars every year. These days, however, Americans are spending less and less on entertainment. A 2009 Zogby poll shows that 70 percent of Americans are cutting back on luxuries like movies, including 76 percent of young adults. Instead, Americans are looking for affordable entertainment options at their local libraries.

While many people thought the Internet boom would make libraries obsolete, the opposite is true. The information age has made libraries more vital than ever. The cost for Internet connection is still higher than many families can afford, though it's an essential tool for both job seekers and students. Many libraries remain the only place in their communities offering free Internet access to the public.

Libraries do more than help Americans save money; they also spur economic growth. People without home computers or Internet access rely on library computers to find and apply for jobs, create resumes, or file for unemployment. Beyond that, libraries offer programs aimed at employment and small-business development.

In good times or bad, libraries provide the kind of economic stimulus that benefits everyone. Take a look at how much Hayner Library can save you each year:

| Resources | Used in One Year | Average Cost Item | You Save |
|---|---|---|---|
| Books | 12 | $25 | $300 |
| DVD purchases | 15 | $20 | $300 |
| DVD rentals | 50 | $4 | $200 |
| CDs | 20 | $15 | $300 |
| MP3 albums | 20 | $12 | $240 |
| Internet access | 12 months | $60/mo | $720 |

Additionally, research shows that $1 invested in a library yields a return of more than $4 for the average community.

Libraries also build relationships. People are connecting at their libraries, whether it's with media, technology, or one another. Libraries are fertile grounds for learning and relationship building. Everyone from tots and teens to seniors and volunteers can use their local library as a springboard for enriching relationships. You can network and build new friendships at Hayner Library by participating in volunteer activities, the Friends of the Library, teen and adult book clubs, group study, the Homebound program, teen councils, adult, teen and youth cultural programs, and much more. Now more than ever, libraries have become a major resource for the unemployed. Patrons can take advantage of the technology services available at libraries, whether filing online for unemployment benefits, doing job searches, or preparing resumes.

Libraries are not just buildings full of books. Oftentimes, they help people discover their passion, their family roots, or even a sense of community. Libraries enrich people's lives. You can share that enrichment. Of the 60,000-plus people residing within Hayner's district, approximately 20,000 are currently Hayner library card holders. Encourage your family, friends, and coworkers to join the library. Encourage them to become a card-holding member and volunteer, attend library events—and bring the whole family. Supporting your library benefits you intellectually and financially and offers personal growth. Supporting the library supports and strengthens our whole community.

Celebrate National Library Week! Promote your library!

Volunteers Recognized

For every 25 hours they work, Hayner Library volunteers get a bookplate in a new library book recognizing their 25-hour achievement. They earn their hours by doing many volunteer projects throughout the library. Some volunteers have adopted sections of books to keep in order each week. Others deliver books to the homebound. We have community service volunteers who work cleaning shelves and dusting books. We have volunteers who help with Genealogy and our Illinois Room. There is a group of volunteers that we can call on for short projects in the library. This group was responsible for helping with the move to the Alton Square Library and with the project "Operation Soldiers."

We would like to congratulate the following volunteers for achieving their 25-hour recognition in the month of January.
Bill Ackerman—Delivery Service
Bev Ambrosi—Adopt-a-Shelf
Connie Clayton— Illinois Room
Alex Droste—Adopt-a-Shelf
John Gibbons—Genealogy
Jan Harnetiaux—Senior Service, Delivery Service, and Adopt-a-Shelf
Richard Zahn—Community Service
Andy Allen—Adopt-a-Shelf
Virginia Fohrman—Adopt-a-Shelf

MISSION RECOGNITION

Mission Recognition is an initiative sponsored by The Hayner Public Library District to reinforce positive behavior in the young people of our community. The program recognizes kids up to 18 years of age for acts of good value judgment, a high standard of character, and positive community impact. Kids can be nominated by anyone (family and nonfamily) and will be recognized on a monthly basis. Nomination forms are available online at www.haynerlibrary.org or at any library location.

Members of the fifth grade of Lovejoy Elementary School were recognized this winter for their successful participation in a peer tutor program. The volunteer tutors met every morning with a primary class student with the goal of helping improve the students' academic skills. Every student who received tutoring showed improvements, both academically and socially. The tutors showed patience and kindness as they helped to motivate their students to work hard while enjoying the learning process. Recognized for their wonderful tutoring support are (pictured below, left to right): Aiynjel Dobbins, Alexandra Bergin, Ashley Ingle, Cameron Campbell, Carl Crumer, Chloe Butler, Kami Douglas, Max Stewart, and Sydney Stutz.

Annually, Alton High School Interact Club sponsors the St. Baldrick's Events, open to voluntary student participation. Volunteers for this event raise money by offering to have their heads shaved in support of children who suffer from childhood cancer. The money raised is donated to cancer research to eliminate childhood cancer. Megan Van Hoy (pictured, left)was the first girl ever to participate in the event and was individually responsible for raising $2500 of the total $6100 in contributions to the event. Megan's courageous act paved the way for future student participation and set a standard that will be hard to beat!

"A Blast from the Past"

Are you old enough to remember the ALTON DRAGWAY that was located on Fosterburg Road, one mile north of Route 140? This drag strip was opened in 1958 and quickly became the most exciting place to be on Saturday nights. The strip was one-half mile long with one-quarter mile for racing and the remainder for slowing down. Cars raced according to a classification system that grouped them by horsepower, engine displacement, and body type. This drag strip was not just for the local boys and their high-powered toys. The Alton Dragway made a mark in the world of drag racing when Chris Karamesines of Chicago and Don "Big Daddy" Garlits of Florida made speed history at the Alton track during the 1960s.

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library would like to preserve the history of the Alton Dragway, but we can do it only through the public's help. If you have pictures, maybe an old, dusty trophy sitting in the garage, or any other memorabilia from this nostalgic era, we may be interested in preserving its historic value by adding it to our growing collection of local history artifacts. If you would like to learn more about this preservation project and have an item you would like to donate, please call us at: 618-462-0677, Ext. 2865.

Circle of Care Award

The mural in Hayner's downtown mini-park helped spark the idea for the Alton-Godfrey Rotary Club steamboat mural Dr. Bob Hamilton was inspired by the Hayner project to spearhead the Rotary project. The colorful scene welcomes visitors to Alton from the facade of Riverbend Head Start and Family Services headquarters on Landmarks Blvd.

This achievement and years of service to the community led the Riverbend Head Start to award its 18th annual Circle of Care Award to Dr. Robert Hamilton and his wife, Charlene. They will be honored on May 12 for exemplifying the spirit of caring through their profession, volunteerism and philanthropy. During his career and post-retirement, Dr. Hamilton has focused on improving medical care and effective health care reform as well as working extensively with local service organizations. Charlene Hamilton has also served with many organizations and is particularly dedicated to the local chapter of the American Cancer Society. The pair are avid music lovers and founding members of the Great Rivers Choral Society.

The RHSFS award dinner supports the agency and its efforts to help preschool children living in poverty in Madison County. Head Start begins with parents, infants and toddlers in their homes. Children aged 3-5 attend preschool in six centers. Along with academic programs, children get health and dental care. Enrollment is voluntary, and parents are counseled to reach their own goals. The multifaceted efforts help break the cycle of poverty for the whole family.

Project Next Generation
It's coming. It will be here soon. Before you know it, in just a couple of years, you will be the one people will seek when looking for that person they can trust to get the job done. Are you ready? Have you started thinking about what you'll need to be able to do to convince them that they've found the right person? And that experience part: How can you get some of that if you have to have it first before they'll hire you?

You've found the right place. In today's world, nearly anything that's done is touched, in some way, by technology; specifically, computers and computer-assisted technology. You want to have that cutting edge, the one that gives your profile the kind of attention it needs to land you wherever you want to be: in a great job that you love, with lots of potential; at the top of the list of people that the college you want to attend is considering for admission; or in a position to start your own business, where you'll be in charge. The Hayner Public Library District has resources available to give you experience, skills in using current cutting-edge technology, and the poise and presence to be able to sell your talents to others.

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its fourth year of implementation at Hayner. We are excited to be able to offer programs to emerging sixth graders through exiting eighth graders to give them a special opportunity to learn new skills while having fun. Scheduled in the Multipurpose Room at our Alton Square Mall location, the program has room for 10–12 teenagers. You will learn about using current computer applications like Office Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Publisher; research diverse topics like the life of Abraham Lincoln or world-renowned explorers; learn how to make a presentation with digital photography or videography; and discover the fun of using SMART Boards to make those presentations. In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our upcoming workshops! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information, or to sign up for our spring 2011 sessions.

ALTON HERO ..."Kid Irish"

Alton native Thomas "Kid Irish" Chiolero made a living as a professional boxer for over 20 years. He boxed with the Golden Gloves organization from 1920–1930, achieving the rank of an International Golden Gloves Champion. In 1926, he won the Illinois State Golden Gloves championship title. His boxing career took him around the world twice and into numerous U. S. cities for competitions against many well-known and respected contenders.

Classified as a "featherweight," Chiolero had a self-taught, flashy boxing style and was reported to punch with lightning speed, a talent that helped him to defeat opponents quickly in early-round knockouts. He was a man with a gift. But "Kid Irish" was also a gentleman. There is no doubt he loved to box, but he also loved to teach and share his skill. His many years of dedicated community service are what ultimately made him a real hero in the eyes of Alton residents.

After a long and successful career in boxing, and a stint in the military during World War II, "Kid Irish" returned home to Alton and began his most rewarding career, as a mentor. As a boxing instructor at the YMCA for 20 years, he touched the lives of many Alton area youths; but his generosity did not end with the YMCA. He also coached students from St. Mary's School, the Catholic Children's Home, and Western Military Academy. When his calling was complete, it was reported that Chiolero had taught boxing to more than 10,000 boys through his community programs. But juveniles were not the only beneficiaries of his boxing expertise. During his teaching career "Kid Irish" also taught boxing to the Alton Police Department.

Retirement from the ring did not stop or even slow Chiolero from doing what he did best, which was making a positive change in the lives of others. In 1974, over 30 years after his boxing career ended, he offered his services, free of charge, to the youth of Alton. The proposition was welcomed by the community, and "Kid Irish" was once again teaching boxing and physical fitness, at the Salvation Army building at Sixth & Alby Streets.

In 1981, at the golden age of 72, "Kid Irish" decided that he still had a lot to give his community. Concerned over devious activities of the area youth, he again offered to organize a program to train boxing and self-defense techniques that he hoped would boost self-esteem and support kids through tough situations. Chiolero was a man who never quit giving of himself. He was a modern-day hero who enjoyed sharing his talent, taking an active part in his community, and living his life in service to others. Indisputably, "Kid Irish" was a first-class champion, but not only in the boxing ring. His personal devotion and positive influence in the lives of so many individuals made him a first-class champion within this community as well.

Thomas Chiolero passed away on June 29, 1987, at the age of 77. He had left indelible footprints on the hearts of hundreds of grateful supporters who had found a friend, a mentor, and a hero. While doing research for this article, I spoke to a few people who had known Mr. Chiolero in their younger days All had the same thing to say about his character. "A very fine man" was a familiar phrase I heard. Thomas "Kid Irish" Chiolero was known by many as a hero in the truest sense of the word.

HAPPY APRIL FOOLS!

What it is:
An observance which takes place in many western countries every April 1, traditionally known as April Fools' Day or All Fools' Day (aka Poisson d'Avril — "April Fish" — in France). It's a day when humor reigns and harmless pranks, practical jokes, and hoaxes are sanctioned. Customary practices range from simple tricks played on friends, family, and coworkers to elaborate media hoaxes concocted for mass consumption.

Theories of origin:
The origins of April Fools' Day are obscure. The most commonly cited theory holds that it dates from 1582, the year France adopted the Gregorian Calendar, which shifted the observance of New Year's Day from the end of March (around the time of the vernal equinox) to the first of January.

According to popular lore some folks, out of ignorance, stubbornness, or both, continued to ring in the New Year on April 1 and were made the butt of jokes and pranks on account of their foolishness. This became an annual tradition, according to this version of events, which ultimately spread throughout Europe.

A major weakness of the calendar-change theory is that it fails to account for an historical record replete with traditions linking this time of year to merriment and tomfoolery dating all the way back to antiquity.

The Romans, for example, celebrated a festival on March 25 called Hilaria, marking the occasion with masquerades and "general good cheer."

Holi, the Hindu "festival of colors" observed in early March with "general merrymaking" and the "loosening of social norms," is at least as old.

It seems reasonable to speculate that the calendrical changes of the 16th and 17th centuries served more as an excuse to codify the general spirit of frivolity already associated with the advent of spring than as a direct inspiration.

Notable April Fools' Day pranks and hoaxes:
One of the great media hoaxes of all time was perpetrated on April 1, 1957 by the BBC, which reported on its news program Panorama that Switzerland was experiencing a bumper spaghetti harvest that year thanks to favorable weather and the elimination of the dread "spaghetti weevil." Staged video footage showing happy peasants plucking strands of pasta from tall trees was so convincing that many viewers actually called the network to ask how they could grow their own.

Some of the best-known pranks in recent years were mounted by advertising agencies. In 1996, Taco Bell ran a full-page ad in the New York Times announcing it had purchased the Liberty Bell and would rename it the "Taco Liberty Bell." Burger King pulled off a similar prank in 1998, announcing the rollout of its "Left-Handed Whopper" supposedly designed so that condiments would drip from the right side of the burger rather than the left.

On the Internet hoaxes have become such standard fare that April Fools' Day is barely distinguishable from any other, though a few notable pranks stand out and tend to be reposted year after year -- e.g., the 1996 announcement that every computer connected to the World Wide Web must be turned off for Internet Cleaning Day, a 24-hour period during which useless "flotsam and jetsam" are flushed from the system.

Maya Angelou

Maya Angelou (b. 1928) is an autobiographer, poet, playwright, director, producer, performance artist, educator, and winner of the Horatio Alger Award. A prolific author with a successful career as a singer, actress, and dancer, Maya Angelou became one of America's most famous poets when she stood before the nation to deliver her poem "On the Pulse of Morning" at President Bill Clinton's inauguration on January 20, 1993. At sixty-four years old, she was the first black woman to be asked to compose such a piece, and the second poet to be so recognized after the pairing of Robert Frost and John F. Kennedy in 1961. Born Marguerite Johnson in St. Louis, but raised in Arkansas, Angelou was a natural choice for the forty-second president and fellow Arkansan. The poem reflects a theme that is common to all of Angelou's published works, namely, that human beings are more alike than different, and that a message of hope and inclusion is a most inspiring dream and ideal, something to be savored at such a moment of political change. She writes of the triumph of the human spirit over hardship and adversity. Her voice speaks of healing and reconciliation, and she is a fitting symbol for the American nation on the eve of the twenty-first century.

The great-granddaughter of a slave-born Arkansas woman, Angelou has had a rich and varied life, and her serial autobiography intertwines in a harmonious way her individual experiences with the collective social history of African Americans. As she recounts in the first volume of that autobiography, I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings (1970), Angelou spent her first three years in California. Her father, Bailey Johnson, was a Navy cook and her mother, Vivian Baxter, a glamorous and dynamic woman, was a sometime nightclub performer and owner of a large rooming house in San Francisco in the 1940s. When Angelou's parents divorced in the early 1930s, her father sent her and her brother Bailey by train, with name tags on their wrists, to live with his mother, Momma Henderson, who ran the only black-owned general store in Stamps, Arkansas. Angelou writes eloquently of the customs and harsh circumstances of life in the segregated pre–civil rights South, and of the dignity and mutual support that rural blacks extended to one another during the Depression.

After a period in Stamps came time in St. Louis with her mother's family, the discovery of urban greed and alienation, and her rape at age eight, a trauma that left her mute for several years. Upon her return to the South, she buried herself in the cocoon of her grandmother's store and in her imagination and read widely. Books became her lifeline and prepared the terrain for her artistic and literary career. She moved back to California as a teenager, graduated from high school, and gave birth to her only child, Guy Johnson, himself a poet. In the 1960s, Angelou was active in the civil rights movement in the United States and abroad and became briefly involved with African activist Vusumzi Make. She has been married and divorced.

By the time she was in her early twenties, Angelou had worked at a variety of odd jobs, as a waitress, a cook, and a streetcar conductor, taking a brief detour into prostitution and drug addiction. She then worked as a stage performer, establishing a reputation among the avant-garde of the early 1950s and appearing in Porgy and Bess on a twenty-two-nation tour sponsored by the U.S. State Department in 1954–1955. She studied dance with Martha Graham. Off-Broadway, she acted in Jean Genet's The Blacks in 1960. She worked as an associate editor for the Arab Observer in Cairo, Egypt, in 1961–1962 and as a writer for the Ghanaian Times and the Ghanaian Broadcasting Corporation in 1964–1966. She appeared in Mother Courage at the University of Ghana in 1964 and made her Broadway debut in Look Away in 1973. She directed her own play, And Still I Rise, in California in 1976. In 1977, she had a part in the television adaptation of Alex Haley's Roots and received an Emmy Award nomination for best supporting actress. She has lectured on campuses, been a guest on many talk shows, and continues to be an extremely popular speaker. She is currently the Reynolds Professor of American Studies at Wake Forest University in North Carolina.

Angelou's autobiographical fictions include Gather Together in My Name (1974) and Singin' and Swingin' and Gettin' Merry Like Christmas (1976), which received moderate critical praise; and The Heart of a Woman (1981) and All God's Children Need Traveling Shoes (1986), which were acclaimed as important works covering exciting periods in African American and African history, the civil rights marches, and the era of decolonization. These narratives survey the difficulties and personal triumphs of a remarkable woman with a keen understanding of the power of language to effect change, and of the role of "image making" in the self-representation of groups who have been historically oppressed.

In her interview with Claudia Tate, Angelou acknowledged her debt to the black women writers who were her predecessors, Frances Ellen Watkins Harper and Zora Neale Hurston in particular, and to her friend James Baldwin, who encouraged her to write after hearing her childhood stories. Angelou's personal experiences typify the changes that have occurred in America in the course of her lifetime. She consciously strives to be the kind of writer who brings people and traditions together and who appeals to the nobler sentiments of her readers. She is a humanist and a protean personality who has, against all odds, made her own life into the great American success story. Her works have a profound resonance with a long tradition that begins with the eighteenth- and nineteenth-century slave narratives. Her style captures the cadences and aspirations of African American women, whose strength she celebrates. She has been instrumental in helping refocus attention on black women's voices.

Stan Musial

Accommodating to fans and the media both during and after his playing career, Stan Musial was considered one of the game's most gentlemanly and down-to-earth ambassadors. He came from rural Pennsylvania, never graduated from high school, and sometimes stammered in public. His love for baseball overcame all obstacles, however, and he became known nationwide as a symbol of batting excellence. "I was a poor boy who struck it rich in many ways through the wonders of baseball," Musial said in his autobiography.

The Cardinals' greatest player was born Stanislaus Musial in Donora, a mill town in southwestern Pennsylvania's Monongahela Valley on December 21, 1920. His father, Lukasz Musial, was a shy Polish immigrant who worked in the shipping department of a local mill. The parents of his mother, Mary Lancos, had migrated from Czechoslovakia, and her father was a coal miner. Mary and Lukasz Musial had four girls before their son, Stanislaus, was born in 1920. Stan also had a younger brother, who played minor league baseball after World War II.

Musial, a bashful boy, became interested in baseball because he had a neighbor who played semi-pro ball. "I could always hit," Musial told the Sporting News. "I learned to hit with a broomstick and a ball of tape and I could always get that bat on the ball." Musial, who batted and threw left-handed, acquired the habit of hitting to the opposite field while playing for the Donora Zinc Works team in 1937. At the hometown field, trolley tracks shortened the distance to the left-field fence, so Musial tried to aim that way. The ability to go the opposite way became one of his greatest weapons.

Musial was 16 and a flame-throwing but erratic pitcher when he signed his first professional contract, with the St. Louis Cardinals.

After the 1939 season, Musial married his high school sweetheart, Lillian Labash. They would have an enduring marriage and four children: son Dick and daughters Gerry, Janet, and Jeanie.

The next season, Musial was installed in left field for the Cardinals. At 21, he was the youngest player on a youthful, carefree squad. "There were more small-town and farm boys then and fewer college men," Musial recalled in his autobiography, Stan Musial: "The Man's" Own Story. "They horsed around more, cut up with hillbilly songs and musical instruments...

"I never had the courage to try my harmonica outside my hotel room, but I could make my share of noise with that slide whistle and coat hanger. I always thought it helped to laugh it up before a game, not to become too tense."

Led by Musial's hot bat, the loose, inexperienced Cardinals surprised everyone by winning 106 games to claim the National League pennant. Then St. Louis beat the favored Yankees in the World Series, and Musial was on a world championship team in his first full season.

Musial was disliked by Brooklyn Dodgers fans, who bestowed his nickname. Groaning when he came up to bat in key situations, they would yell, "Oh no. Here comes that Man again." From then on, he was always "Stan the Man." Musial didn't find out until after he retired that Dodgers shortstop Pee Wee Reese often used to steal his bat before games.

The Cardinals had been a decent team, but with Musial batting third in the lineup they became a perennial powerhouse. The Cardinals won two more pennants during years when baseball's player ranks were being depleted by World War II. The Cardinals lost the World Series to the Yankees in 1943 and to their cross-town rivals, the St. Louis Browns, in 1944.

Musial was drafted in 1945, joined the Navy, and served on a ship repair unit in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. He played baseball every afternoon on a base team to entertain service personnel. Musial returned to civilian life and the Cardinals in 1946 and resumed his incredible hitting, taking St. Louis to the World Series.

Playing outside a major media market throughout the 1950s and into the 1960s, Musial symbolized the workaday ballplayer who loved baseball and delighted loyal fans with his steady play. He became an institution in St. Louis, opening a restaurant in 1949 and remaining in the public eye throughout his career and after his retirement.

After he failed to hit .300 in 1959, Musial considered retirement. However, to the surprise of many, he played four more seasons, getting frequent rests to nurse a myriad of injuries. "I was having too much fun hitting to want to quit," Musial recalled.

After his retirement in 1963, "Stan the Man" remained a popular figure in St. Louis, running his restaurant and speaking frequently. When the Cardinals opened a new stadium, local baseball writers staged a testimonial dinner and raised $40,000 to erect a statue of Musial at the ballpark. In 1969, he was elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility. His career had spanned the era from before World War II to the 1960s. "I believe I played in the most exciting era of baseball," Musial recalled in his autobiography. "I saw the game change from day to night, from regional to national, from long train trips to short plane flights, from cabbage leaves under the cap in hot weather to air-conditioned dugouts....

"I say baseball was a great game, is a great game, and will be a great game. I'm extremely grateful for what it has given me in recognition and records, thrills and satisfaction, money and memories. I hope I've given nearly as much as I've gotten from it."

Operation Shoe Box

In October 2010, Hayner Library and the community adopted Sgt. Shane Michie and his troop, who are stationed in Afghanistan. Sgt. Michie will be there through April 2011. So far, through the generosity of the community, we have sent 23 boxes. I received word from Sgt. Michie in January that the books, toiletries, and candy have been arriving just fine. In his letter he told me that they couldn't be doing what they do without the support from our community and home. He said it always puts a smile on everyone's face when a package arrives. Sometimes, he said, they have gotten so much that they have shared it with other units who aren't as fortunate to have someone from home sending packages. He also said that it means a lot to them to know that the people back home haven't forgotten them.

So to all of Alton and the surrounding communities, thank you for your support to our "Operation Shoe Box" project.

A Grand, Grand Opening!!

On Saturday, May 21, 2011, the staff and Board of Trustees of The Hayner Public Library District welcomed the public to the Ribbon Cutting and Grand Opening of the newly renovated Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street in Alton, Ill.

Cliff Davenport portrays John E. Hayner.

It was a great day. The Hayner staff, Board of Trustees, and many friends and guests attended the ribbon cutting. Later in the morning, Cliff Davenport portrayed John E. Hayner and, while in character, described the life and times of this incredibly successful entrepreneur and Alton citizen. It was John Hayner who financed the original Hayner library building and was also involved in the startup of many of Alton's most successful businesses. You could hear a pin drop as Cliff reenacted the life of this fascinating man.

Following Cliff's presentation, visitors explored the facility and viewed the wonderful displays of local history. Throughout the day, Dr. Pat Dailey gave away signed copies of an original print he had drawn highlighting the interior architectural features of the library. A limited number of copies of this print are still available if you would like to pick one up at the Genealogy and Local History Library's circulation desk.

Entering the library after the ribbon cutting.

Both historical and contemporary artwork is hung throughout the building. The main hall features study tables and seating for research and study. There are two working fireplaces, one in the main hall and one in the turret room, which will be welcome attractions come the winter months. The annex to the main hall is now titled the Illinois Room and houses the collections of local history and genealogy material.

Currently, the Genealogy & Local History Library is open Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Wednesdays, it is open from 12 noon until 8 p.m. The library is closed on Sundays.

Library staff will be available to help you with your genealogical research and to find the library materials you need. Staff is also available to meet with you by appointment. This is especially helpful if you are visiting from out of town. The library staff can also be scheduled to conduct tours of the facility for schools and organizations. For information regarding the building, tours, appointments, materials, and/or general questions, please call 465-0677 or e-mail genealogy@haynerlibrary.org.

Hayner Public Library — A Grand Tradition

The Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library celebrated its Grand Opening on May 21, 1891, but the true beginning of this old Alton landmark took place in 1848 when a young New Yorker named John Elijah Hayner arrived in the City of Alton. Eager to make a successful living, he jumped right into business as well as social affairs. Hayner's first marriage was to Laura Scott, who was a niece of John's first business partner in Alton. During their marriage John and Laura had three children, but only one survived, a daughter named Florence. The marriage ended with the untimely death of Laura in 1859. In 1862, while on a business trip to the east, John met and married Jane Clark Drury, of Vermont. She was called "Jennie" for short. Jennie was deeply involved in the early Alton Library Association, but unfortunately in 1888 she died, making John a widower for a second time. During their marriage John and Jennie had four children, all of whom died in infancy.

Main hall and entry to Illinois Room.

After Jennie's death, John Hayner began talking about a library building dedicated to his late wife. In 1890 he publicly announced that he would bear the entire cost of the construction of a new building. The land at Fourth and State Streets was donated by two local sisters, Lucy (Hart) Wright and Sophia (Hart) Stowell, who were the daughters of Dr. Benjamin Kirkland Hart, a prominent Alton physician.

Entry displays.

Theodore Link, a highly respected St. Louis architect, was hired to design the building. Local architect Lucas Pfeiffenberger also submitted plans for the building, but ultimately Link's design was chosen as the favorite. Theodore Link was also the architect who designed St. Louis' Union Station. Link was advised by Hayner to spare no cost in the quality of building materials or labor. And so the original construction of this building began.

The architecture is known as "Old English Gothic style." The wood is oak and pine. Dark red brick and a variety of stone such as Alton limestone and Bedford were used throughout the building. All building materials as well as labor were from local resources. The main room is 40 x 75 feet with a vaulted ceiling embellished with dog-tooth trimmings. The annex is 50 X 25 feet. Two fireplaces were added for ornamental purposes as well as heating. The oak mantels and most of the tiled facings are original. The turret room in the corner of the building was originally used as the librarian's office. The stained glass windows were moved from the annex to their current position above the Illinois Room doorways during our recent renovation process. The display cases and the circular desk area were also added during this renovation; they were not part of the original design of the building. The oval framed photo of Jennie D. Hayner that hangs above the fireplace in the main room is the original print that hung in this same spot during the 1891 Grand Opening.

When John Hayner died in 1903, he left behind his third wife, Caroline (Keith) Hayner (known as Kate) whom he had married in 1892; one daughter, Mrs. Florence Haskell, from his first marriage; and one grandson, John Haskell. The native New Yorker's decision to make his fame and fortune in Alton had proved to be a good one. He had become very successful in many business ventures throughout his life and is considered one of Alton's finest and most upstanding citizens.

Facing the circulation desk, main hall.

By 1906 the library had outgrown itself and needed more space. John Haskell, Hayner's grandson, announced he would provide funding to build an annex to the building. Utten Smith Nixon was hired to design the addition. Mr. Nixon had assisted in the original construction of the building; he also was the grandson of the first librarian of the 1853 Alton Library. The new annex was completed and opened to the public in October 1907. The annex consists of the room behind the fireplace in the main room and the area directly below in which the administrative offices are located today. The annex has been renovated to house the Genealogy & Local History collection and is now referred to as the Illinois Room.

With the Great Depression in 1929, followed by World War II in the '40s, the library, like most organizations around the world, saw very little change. Everyone was struggling to put food on the table, or ammunition into the guns of war. There was little money for anything else. In 1952 the Hayner and Haskell families signed the library over to the city of Alton with one stipulation, that the building would always be maintained as a public library. The building stayed under city control until 1972 when The Hayner Public Library District was formed.

In 1970, with many successful years behind it, the library had again outgrown its location. It was during that year that the adult collection was moved to the Belle Street building, and the children's collection was left in the original Hayner building, which became known as the Hayner Children's Library.

A comfortable reading spot by the fireplace.

A milestone in our history came during the year of 1985 when the board of trustees decided to open a branch library in the Alton Square Mall, making it one of the first full-service branch libraries in the United States to operate inside a shopping mall. It proved to be a very wise decision. The library in Alton Square Mall has been so popular with the community that in 2009 it was expanded to three times the size of the original facility.

In 1991, in celebration of its 100th year anniversary, Hayner Library carried out a complete renovation of the old Hayner building. Local architect John Rapp was overseer in the renovation process. A Grand Opening and rededication ceremony was held on May 19, 1991, in observance of the Centennial Anniversary.

That brings us to today, 2011, celebrating the 120th year anniversary with the completion of the beautiful renovation of the original Hayner Library, now, fittingly, The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library. An interesting historical note: Florence Hayner Haskell was intrigued with genealogy. Her personal avocations led to the establishment of the first genealogy collection at Hayner Library. This special collection has now grown into a library of its own.

Alton has many landmark buildings, but few, if any, can outshine the architecture, the legacy, or the historic content that lie within the walls of this notable institution.

—Pam Bierman, Genealogy & Local History Library Assistant

It's a Small World for Staff Members at the Genealogy & Local History Library

You never know who you will meet in the Genealogy & Local History Library! We had some happy surprises on the first day the library opened its doors to the public in the remodeled Hayner Building.

The very first patrons to walk in the door had traveled here from Fort Wayne, Indiana, to research their Alton Kirchhoff ancestors Guess who else has Kirchhoff ancestors? The genealogy library's manager Cathie Lamere, as well as library assistant Beth Phillips's husband, Mike! Everyone was surprised when we realized who the patrons were.

Carol Beem Hoover and her son, Lynn, are Mike Phillips's cousins! They had no idea that Beth worked at the library. Carol had not been back to Alton since 2008, when her mother died.

Mike was able to come to the library, and the Phillipses and Hoovers had a happy reunion. They went out to eat, caught up on each other's lives, and traded pictures and family history gedcom files. Lynn was elated to have found some of his Hoover ancestors dating back to the 1500s in "The Lives of Matthias Hoover and His Children," a family history book in the Illinois Room Collection.

As for the Kirchhoff connection, Beth and Cathie are still looking for the person who connects their two different Kirchhoff family lines. But you never know who might walk through those doors . . !

- Marriage, census, land, obituary, cemetery records of nearby towns and counties
- Genealogical records of different ethnic groups in the United States
- Histories or records of 101 counties in Illinois
- An extensive Abraham Lincoln collection
- Highway maps, plat maps, and atlases of other states, the U.S., and the world

Some of our worldwide records include:

- Books about German, English, and Irish immigrants
- On the computers: Ancestry.com and HeritageQuest Online, with worldwide databases.
- The National Newspaper Digitization—includes newspapers from cities in the U.S., Canada, and overseas

We protect the most fragile and most valuable books in locked cases. We will get them out for patrons to read after ensuring that they handle them carefully.

Library Services

In addition to helping walk-in patrons:

- Library staff make appointments with patrons or visitors from out of town to teach them how to find the genealogical information they need from the collection. People come to the Genealogy & Local History Library from all over the world to research their family history. Last year a father and son came from Germany. They were researching their family members who had immigrated to the Alton area. It is so much fun to help people find their family history.
- Library staff also answer historical or genealogical mail requests from people who live outside the library district.

Library outreach to the community includes:

- Genealogical and historical roundtables 4 times a year—these cover a wide variety of topics. Our last roundtable was about the War of 1812.
- Library staff give tours of the library to interested groups or organizations.
- If asked, a staff member will speak to community organizations about our collection and services.

The Library is constantly developing our collection for the shelves.

- The library buys books relevant to our collection.
- The library accepts donations of historical or genealogical artifacts or written materials. Donations include family histories, some of the paintings and statues you see in the library, and historical records. Written donations come to us in various stages of development. Library staff must finish developing the materials into a resource that can be put on the shelves. Some items have to be compiled and copied onto acid-free paper. Next the pages are numbered and may need to be indexed. After the index is added to the book, it is sent to the bindery. Some collection items are ongoing projects; for example, staff add new information about Alton businesses to the Property Research File as it is reported in the newspaper. Library staff also develop resource materials for the Illinois Room on their own. If we are not helping patrons, we are working on multiple projects.
- Books require maintenance. Staff clean dust out of the inside pages of the books and repair minor tears. We give books that need major repairs to Reynae, who is the library book repair expert.

How Did This Come About? When you visit the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, you will be fascinated by the stories told in the display cases Each case highlights a different facet of local history with artifacts, photographs, and text. The creation of these high-quality displays was a huge task. To accomplish this task, a committee was formed in September 2010 made up of local historians and community stakeholders, including Steve Cousley, Don Huber, Jim Ryan, Mike Lefferson, Brett Stawar, and Charlotte Stetson. Hayner staff members Cathie Lamere, Jeff Owen, and Bernadette Duvernoy were also committee participants. The committee was led by Paula Homan. Paula is the curator of the St. Louis Cardinals Hall of Fame Museum and was instrumental in each case design. Artifacts were contributed by committee members and various local donors. Scripting of the cases was primarily the work of Charlotte, Don, Steve, Cathie, and Paula. A huge thank-you is extended to all the committee members who so generously volunteered their time, skills, and knowledge to create the outstanding displays for all the community to enjoy.

Dean Klinkenberg
Mississippi Traveler Guide to the Driftless Area

Tuesday, September 20, 6:30 p.m.

This is a guidebook written by someone—that would be Dean Klinkenberg—with a self-proclaimed "touch of attitude. Unlike many guidebook authors, Klinkenberg makes no effort to hide his opinions. You definitely know how he feels about a particular place. He is not, he says, a fan of chain stores or malls. "If all you want to do on vacation is lie on the beach, sip appletinis and shop at Eddie Bauer or "if your idea of a nice meal is the grilled chicken platter at T.G.I. Fridays, then this book may not be for you. Instead, he suggests, readers should try something different, such as sampling local handcrafted beers or staying at a bed-and-breakfast. And in one location—Red Wing, Minn.—he recommends a tour of the largest employer in town, the Red Wing Shoe Company.

"Driftless refers to 24,000 square miles of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Illinois that were untouched by the glaciers during the Pleistocene era. The material covered here consists of river towns and attractive villages, as well as natural wonders. Meet the author of Driftless and enjoy a slide show presentation about the communities he has visited. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Ben Bedford
Sketches of America

Tuesday, September 27, 6:30 p.m.

Through his music, Ben Bedford delivers intriguing sketches of America, its individuals, their victories and their struggles. Poignant, but never sentimental, Bedford's portrait-like songs capture the vitality of his characters and draw the listener deep into the narratives. Bedford's songs tackle scenarios including homelessness, the plight of a Confederate soldier's wife during the American Civil War, the aerial triumphs of Amelia Earhart, the life of Jack London, and the murder of Emmett Till in 1955. Often drawing upon history, Bedford's songs have a strong sense of time and place. They are rich in sensory detail that allows the listener to hear, see, and feel each narrative. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Libraries: An American Value

Libraries in America are cornerstones of the communities they serve. Free access to the books, ideas, resources, and information in America's libraries is imperative for education, employment, enjoyment, and self-government.

Libraries are a legacy to each generation, offering the heritage of the past and the promise of the future. To ensure that libraries flourish and have the freedom to promote and protect the public good in the 21st century, we believe certain principles must be guaranteed.

To that end, we affirm this contract with the people we serve:

- We defend the constitutional rights of all individuals, including children and teenagers, to use the library's resources and services;
- We value our nation's diversity and strive to reflect that diversity by providing a full spectrum of resources and services to the communities we serve;
- We affirm the responsibility and the right of all parents and guardians to guide their own children's use of the library and its resources and services;
- We connect people and ideas by helping each person select from and effectively use the library's resources;
- We protect each individual's privacy and confidentiality in the use of library resources and services;
- We protect the rights of individuals to express their opinions about library resources and services;
- We celebrate and preserve our democratic society by making available the widest possible range of viewpoints, opinions and ideas, so that all individuals have the opportunity to become lifelong learners - informed, literate, educated, and culturally enriched.

Change is constant, but these principles transcend change and endure in a dynamic technological, social, and political environment.

By embracing these principles, libraries in the United States can contribute to a future that values and protects freedom of speech in a world that celebrates both our similarities and our differences, respects individuals and their beliefs, and holds all persons truly equal and free.

Library Memories

In the previous newsletter (Summer 2011), we made the following request:

"Many of us who grew up in the Alton/Godfrey area have wonderful memories of visiting Hayner Library on 401 State Street. Whether it was getting that first library card, or the excitement of weekly visits to find new reading treasures or to spend quiet hours of study and contemplation—for many of us Hayner Library on State Street was a very special destination during our youth.

We ask you to share those memories. If you would send us a paragraph or two about the role of Hayner Library in your life (as a child or adult) we will compile the contributions into a work that all can share. Please send your memories to: Hayner Library Memories, 401 State Street, Alton, IL 62002 or e-mail to: genealogy@haynerlibrary.org. Please be sure to include your name and phone number or the best way to contact you."

The first response we received was from Ms. Ruth Bellagee of Alton, Il. She included a handwritten note attached to the following article. In her note, Ms. Bellagee noted that the events she depicts took place in the early 1930s, at the height of the Depression. She was about 11 years old and loved to read but books were a luxury that her family could not afford to purchase.

Nurturing the Mind

By Ruth Belangee
Alton, Illinois

The other day, I noticed my library card had expired. I must get that renewed, I told myself, it's important. Why is it important? I don't know. I've only used it twice in the last four years. But a little voice niggles at me and I must listen. I think it's something to do with my childhood.

When I was eleven or twelve, the school made applications available to parents so their child could receive a library card. I told my mother if she would sign it, I could get books from the library. She looked over the application and said it had to be signed by a property owner and she wasn't one.

I didn't know any property owners and my mother said "don't bother anyone with this." My grandfather owned property and I might have bothered him if I remembered. But that knowledge lay hidden somewhere in my brain and waited until I no longer needed it before it jumped out at me. Grandpa was grandpa and he bore no resemblance to a man of property, and that word had taken on a kind of prestige in my mind. I associated it with wealth and that was not my grandpa.

I walked down the street, looking at the houses. They all appeared, for the most part, to be very much alike. How could I tell if someone was rich? I stopped at a house. I knew the people there had a lawn mower. I had watched the man roll it around his yard during the summer. I figured if they owned a lawn mower, they might own the house. No one else I knew had a lawn mower. Most people just grew their weeds.

I didn't see any bother in just knocking on a door and asking a question. A lady answered my knock and I asked if she owned her house. She looked stunned by my question but she finally said yes. I showed her my paper and asked if she would sign it so I could get library books. She smiled and I pushed the paper towards her. But she didn't take it. Instead, she said in a sugary voice, "then you'll tear up the books and I'll have to pay for them. No, I don't think so!"

That thought had never occurred to me. She closed the door in my face and my spirits sank to my toes.

My friend, Beth, offered no comfort. "What's the big deal?" she said. "We own our house, give me that thing, I'll get it signed."

She brought the paper back and it bore her mother's signature. "Does your mother know she'll have to pay if I tear the books?" I asked her.

Beth shrugged her shoulders, "so, don't tear the books."

I didn't ask any more questions. I didn't want to know the answers, but I wondered if that was really Beth's mother's signature.

Every Saturday afternoon I was in the library. Rows of books were on shelves higher than my head. Two people could hardly squeeze past each other in the long, narrow aisles. But sunlight usually streamed through the large windows, giving the barn-like room a pleasant atmosphere. I took home two or three books a week and read them all before the following Saturday. "Girl of the Limberlost", "Elsie Dinsmore" and "Pollyanna" were among some of those I checked out. My favorites were books by Christie, Rinehart, Bronte, Austin and Kathleen Norris.

One day, I must have been in the library longer than usual because the librarian asked if I needed help.

"I can't find a book," I said "I think I've read them all."

The librarian laughed and it sounded so loud that someone shushed her. Heat rose to my face because I felt that it was my fault. After that, the librarian saved books for me and they were always the kind that I was fond of reading. And I wondered how she knew what I liked.

Now, once again, it's time to renew my card. In that sacred inner room of my soul is a connection to reading that can never be broken. And there may be a time when the only important things will be "A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and"

A library card.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period. During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2011, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and Hayner materials only. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center— and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Members of Touched by a Canine, the local chapter of Therapy Dogs International. Therapy Dogs International (TDI) is an organization dedicated to bringing dog handler teams to people who can benefit from the love and attention a therapy dog can provide. Our local Touched by a Canine volunteers, all certified and insured by TDI, visit Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall the second Saturday of every month at 10:00 a.m. for a Bow-wow Pow-wow. Children of all ages are invited to come, visit, and play with the dogs. Books are provided so the children can choose a story to read to the dogs. Reading to therapy dogs has proven to dramatically increase a child's reading enjoyment, skills, and confidence. Come join us in the Multipurpose Room in the library in the mall for this unique (and adorable) monthly event. Bring your cameras!

Riverbend Head Start Receives Literacy Grant for Preschoolers

Riverbend Head Start and The Hayner Public Library District promote reading as fundamental for a fulfilling life in America, and to that end, children must have access to books. Recently, Riverbend Head Start received a $5,494 grant from Reading Is Fundamental, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that provides15 million new, free books to 4 million underserved children in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and U.S. territories.

Locally, Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) gives 945 children under the age of five 3,000 books to take home and keep. The books are distributed by Riverbend Head Start & Family Services, a nonprofit with a goal to prepare underserved children for kindergarten. The taxpayers' cost for this public service? Eight cents per year.

RIF provides an effective book distribution program, annually serving children in 17,000 locations across every U.S. state and territory with the help of more than 400,000 volunteers.

In March, Congress eliminated RIF's federal funding at a time when many families need RIF the most. Without this federal funding, RIF will not be able to serve America's children most at risk for academic failure.

To continue this critical work, RIF is pursuing opportunities to compete for federal funds approved in the 2012 budget. Learn more at www.rif.org.

Illiteracy is expensive. The cost of illiteracy to businesses and taxpayers is estimated at $20 billion annually.

Illiteracy is dangerous. Eighty percent of the inmates in America's prisons are either illiterate or low-level readers.

America's children are falling behind. Thirty-three percent of fourth-grade public school students are at or below the basic reading level.

Illiteracy will diminish America's workforce. Eighteen million adults don't read well enough to earn a living wage.

Reading Is Fundamental addresses these issues by granting funds to local nonprofits like Riverbend Head Start & Family Services to buy books and distribute them to children in need.

In July 2011, RIF awarded $5,494 to Riverbend Head Start. TheBANK of Edwardsville provided the required matching funds of $1,522.

Riverbend Head Start will buy over 3,000 books to give to the children enrolled in its early childhood education program. The books will build their libraries at home, motivate them to read, and prepare them for success in kindergarten and life.

Thank you to Riverbend Head Start for helping to give our local children access to books.

In Memorial

Sadly, The Hayner Public Library District experienced two significant losses late this summer. Theona "Spiv" Woefel passed away on August 29, 2011. Spiv and her sister, Ev, have been active volunteers in the Hayner Library Homebound Program for 23 years. Spiv and Ev as volunteers were loved by patrons and Hayner staff alike.

On Sept 20, 2011, Carla Scott passed away. Carla worked as a part time library assistant in the Hayner Branch library for almost 9 years. Carla retired from Hayner Library in 2007. She leaves her husband, Larry. Both Spiv and Carla will be sorely missed by Hayner Library staff. We send our sincerest condolences to their families.

Retirement

This past August Reynae Womack retired from The Hayner Public Library District after 35 years of library service. Reynae started her library career at the Hartford Public Library in 1976 and in 1992 accepted a full-time position with Hayner. During her employment with Hayner, Reynae worked in every library department, including Youth and Adult Library, Technical Services, the Business Office, and Programming and Events.

Reynae and her identical twin, Rynette, were born in Wood River and attended Hartford and Wood River public schools. Reynae, who has always loved to sing, was singing in her church's choir one day when a gospel singing group from Springfield were guests of the church. Hearing Reynae's beautiful voice, the group invited her to join them on their performance tour. After assuring her parents that the singing ensemble would have close supervision, Reynae became one of the three voices of the Gospel Sounds, performing in churches and communities throughout the south, particularly in Missouri, Mississippi, and Louisiana. Reynae toured with the group for three years. In 1973 Reynae and the other two members of Gospel Sounds cut an LP record album titled "Reaching Out to You." In 1974, when she learned that her twin sister was pregnant, Reynae knew it was time to come home and be with her family.

After returning home, Reynae met her future husband, Jim, who had started going to her church, Hartford Assembly of God. Within four months Reynae and Jim were engaged, and they married in February 1977. When Reynae met Jim, she was working part-time at the Hartford Library. Shortly after her marriage, Reynae accepted a full-time library position at the Bethalto Library, where she worked for the next 16 years. In 1981 Reynae had her first son, Jimmy, and a second son, Craig, was born in 1986. In 1992 Reynae joined the Hayner Library staff, working at the circulation desk. Her ready smile and outgoing personality quickly made her a favorite of Hayner staff members and patrons alike.

In 2009 Reynae's husband passed away very unexpectedly, a terrible loss. Jim was a friend to all who knew him and a beloved member of his church and community. Reynae continued working at Hayner and in 2010 was delighted with the birth of her first grandchild, little Boone, born to Reynae's son Jim and his wife, Casey. The following year Reynae's granddaughter, Audrey, was born to her other son, Craig, and his wife, Brandi.

Reynae was having so much fun with her grandchildren she decided to retire this past August. She has been busy from retirement day 1, visiting family and friends, helping out at church events, and caring for her grandchildren. Reynae struggled with her decision to retire for some months, knowing how much she would miss her job at Hayner; particularly, she worried about missing her Hayner colleagues.

Hayner staff members miss Reynae's cheerful presence every day, but we wish her well in her busy retirement. "The time is flying by," says Reynae, "and Hayner staff hasn't really let me stay away—they insist I come to visit often . . . but that isn't a hardship, since I enjoy seeing them all so much."

After 35 years of working in the library world, Reynae still has a love of books and reading but is so busy, she has yet to find time to catch up on the latest novels.

A Rule of Thumb

"The best trick I ever found for helping children choose books that won't be too frustrating is the "Rule of Thumb." Have a child choose a page in the middle of the book with a lot of text, and make a fist. Explain to the child to "read the page silently and if you come to a word you don't know and can't guess, put out your thumb. If you reach the end of the page and between three and five (fingers) are up, that means the book will be a challenge." The child can decide if they are motivated enough to try to read it anyway (you can offer help), or they can choose to save it for the future. A pleasure read should have 0 – 2 fingers up."
Adapted from How to Get Your Child to Love Reading by Esme Raji Codell
Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill, 2003

This seems like a great technique to help your child pick out reading material that will not overwhelm him and consequently diminish their interest in reading. Ms. Esme states that it was one of her great rewards, working as a librarian, teaching this technique to classes and then watching children check out books themselves.

Yesterday's Twitter

by Kathleen M. O'Donnell at Fathomaway.com

Are you familiar with The Traveler's Vade Mecum? It was written in 1853, as a witty and accommodating book to aid in sending short messages via telegraph or post. Its resemblance to modern-day Twitter and text messaging is uncanny, considering it was written in 1853. The code it contains enabled people to communicate on the (brand- new) telegraph in the most economical way possible- by assigning digits to 8,466 different things the writer might have wanted to say.

436. I fear I shall not be able to accomplish my object.

An excerpt from A.C. Baldwin's The Traveler's Vade Mecum

We can only imagine what might lie ahead for instant communication methods when traveling abroad. Sure, there's Skype and e-mail, but who wants to spend precious vacation hours writing to folks back home? Certainly not me! Twitter might come as close as we'll ever get to short bursts of correspondence, but the 19th century brought The Traveler's Vade Mecum: Or, Instantaneous Letter Writer, By Mail or Telegraph, or the Convenience of Persons Traveling on Business or for Pleasure, and for Others, Whereby a Vast Amount of Time, Labor, and Trouble is Saved, a monstrous title for A.C. Baldwin's tome about conveying concise messages.

In the book, 8,466 codes are arranged alphabetically via keywords on a variety of topics from "credit," to "murder," to "wheat." Baldwin's goal? To aid long-winded holiday travelers in penning quick telegraphs or letters.

It's quite simple really. Say you're a born and bred New Englander taking a business trip to Arizona. Instead of wasting a half hour writing to your sister about how you cannot possibly stand the heat anymore, all you have to do is write the code: #8153. Upon receipt, your sister would take Baldwin's book and find that #8153 corresponds with the message "The weather is very uncomfortable." Brilliant.

If you want a leg up on how to incorporate The Traveler's Vade Mecum into your own life, refer to our list of favorite codes followed by a letter incorporating some of them. Tell us what you think, or create your own numerical letter and send it to us. Download the book and start decoding, world travelers!

Books: Key Members of Your Family

One of the easiest ways to show your child the importance of reading is to make a special place to store your child's books. Assigning a place for your child's books shows your child that books are special and deserve an organized storage place all their own. Making room on a bottom shelf of the family bookcase or placing books in a drawer within your child's reach are great ways to create a home library. Parents and family members should model how to organize books on the shelf and teach children how to handle books as a way to promote ownership of the library.

Have you ever flipped through a friend's photos and imagined a story to go along with them? Young children love to use their imaginations to create stories to go along with pictures. One of the earliest literacy skills children develop is the concept of sequencing, or telling a story from start to finish in order. One way to practice this skill at home is to create your own picture books, or books without words. Using photos, pictures from magazines or your child's drawings, books can be created and placed in the home library for easy access. Family members can "read" the story with the child by asking him or her to take them through the story. As the child gets older, family members should have the child dictate the story to them so they can write it down and then move on to encouraging the child to write the words themselves.

Storytelling: Talking about Family History and Creating New Adventures

One of the best ways to help foster family literacy in the home is to encourage all family members to engage in storytelling. Not only is storytelling a great way to share family history, it is also a great way to engage all members of the family -- especially those who are building literacy skills regardless of their age. Start by having an older member of the family tell a story about a major family event (wedding, birthday, graduation). Afterward, ask a younger member of the family to re-tell the story in his or her own words. Family members should be supportive when the child misses an important element and help the child pronounce key vocabulary words like names of relatives, locations, etc. This activity helps build vocabulary, understand sequencing and recall information.

Writing Notes: Connecting Family and Friends

Learning to read and learning to write go hand in hand. It is important to practice and encourage emerging writing skills with young children and those new to learning a language. One way to encourage writing practice is to have family members leave notes for one another on a regular basis. Leaving a note in a lunch box, taping a note to the mirror in the hallway or slipping a note under a pillow are great ways to reinforce the importance of writing to communicate information. Children should be encouraged to send notes at every stage of their development -- from scribbles to sentences.

Another way to encourage written communication between family members is to send each other frequent e-mail or twitter messages. This is a great way to help young children keep in touch with distant relatives or friends. Working with an adult, have the child dictate or attempt to type a short message. If the child has typed the message without help, the adult can type a translation of the message underneath it. All attempts at typing and dictating should be encouraged. Engaging in a frequent email exchange with relatives and friends builds a child's letter recognition skills and provides practice organizing thoughts and ideas.

Using the Library with the Whole Family

Visiting the library together is a great way to foster family literacy activities. Not only do libraries often offer access to books on a wide range of literacy levels and subjects, libraries often have books in several languages as well.

Adults and children can improve their literacy skills by reading books in the family's first language and then reading the same book in English. By doing this, family members will build vocabulary, the ability to use context clues to learn new words, and enable adults to ask the child questions about the illustrations and predict what will happen next. Families should also visit the library to connect with community literacy projects, storytelling, tutoring and reading clubs and cultural programs. Computers are also available – use them with your children..

Learning to love to read starts at an early age and often starts at home. If families make the effort to encourage, support and engage all aspects of literacy in their homes, children and family members will enjoy reading and writing together for the rest of their lives.

An Extraordinary Citizen in the History of Alton, Eben Rodgers, Sr.

Alton's history has many tales of local heroes doing great things to make the community a better place to live, work, and raise families.

Eben Rodgers, Sr., seemed to have a magical touch when it came to business adventures, social connections, and the community affairs of Alton. Born to Edward & Ella (Hewit) Rodgers of Upper Alton in 1873, he attended local schools. At 14, he left Alton for North Carolina in pursuit of a three-year military education at Bingham's Military School and one year at the University of North Carolina.

Upon returning home, Eben went to work on the family farm, but that manner of work did not prove to be challenging enough. He was soon looking for business opportunities that would stimulate his mind and his pocketbook while making a place for himself within the community. He found this place by taking a position in his father's company, The Alton Brick Company. And so his success began there, under the leadership of his father. It was quickly established that Eben possessed a sharp business mind, as well as a socially conscious personality, a combination that helped him become successful in various activities involving people and industry. With keen leadership skills, he would tackle projects with a head-on approach, while always making sure the best interests of Alton were in the forefront. He willingly put himself at the helm of many social, civic, and religious organizations. His unremitting devotion to public service has made him one of the most distinguished men in Alton history.

Eben Rodgers was also a dutiful husband and father. In 1893, he married Annetta Schweppe, who was the daughter of a prominent local clothier. Their union produced three children.

Throughout a distinguished career, Eben served as president on many industrial and social boards of directors. Some of his most notable associations include: Alton Brick Company, Alton Board of Education, Piasa Bird Council of the Boy Scouts, Monticello College, Alton Park Commission, National Brick Manufacturers Association, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and his church, the First Unitarian Church of Alton He was also a board member with Alton Memorial Hospital and served as director of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis.

When Eben Rodgers became involved in a project, he gave unselfishly. He not only contributed his time and talent to the community, he was also known to have quietly opened his wallet during many times of economic crisis within the community.

On July 21, 1959, Eben Rodgers, Sr. passed away in a St. Louis hospital after years of failing health. He was 85 years of age. He had retired from public service only two years prior to his death. He had given more than 60 years of outstanding service to the City of Alton and its people. Eben Rodgers' life was a successful one-man crusade in making a difference in his community.

The Hayner Public Library District

Become Bilingual–Fun, Fast and FREE

Do you have a bucket list—things you want to do/accomplish in your lifetime? A popular objective for many of us is to learn another language. You have tried the selfhelp books and tapes, but they are way too dull and tedious. You like the idea of some of the commercial products available, the most recognizable named after the stone tablet that provided the key to the modern understanding of Egyptian hieroglyphs, but these are expensive. Now, The Hayner Public Library District provides you an easy FREE alternative for painlessly learning the language(s) of your choice. And you can do it from the comfort of your home using your computer or your hand-held device. You can even use it when you are traveling and out of town.

The Mango database, accessible through the Hayner Library's website, www.haynerlibrary.org, gives you anytime, anywhere access to a fast, easy, effective language-learning system that teaches real conversation skills for practical communication.

Your Hayner library card gives you access to Mango Basic and Mango Complete:

- Mango Basic: for the beginner in a new language. Teaches helpful everyday phrases. The self-paced courses, which require only two to five hours of time to complete, are available in 37 foreign languages (Spanish, French, Italian, Brazilian, Portuguese, German, Russian, Mandarin Chinese, Japanese, Greek, Arabic (Levantine), Farsi, Pashto, Urdu, Turkish, Hebrew, Korean, Vietnamese, Thai, Tagalog, Hindi, Irish, Dari, and more) and 14 English as a Second Language (ESL) courses.
- Mango Complete: a 100-lesson course that is designed to provide a full understanding of an entire language and its culture. It is available in nine foreign languages and three ESL courses.

You can access Mango from your iPhone, iPod or iPad, FREE of CHARGE.

How Mango works: There's science at the center of this Mango, and it's called INTUITIVE LANGUAGE CONSTRUCTION.

Every Mango course, chapter, and lesson incorporates the Intuitive Language Construction methodology, designed to simulate the way people learn when actually surrounded by a foreign culture through practical conversation.

Intuitive Language Construction increases what you learn AND your ability to use it. Each lesson covers all four key-language components—Vocabulary, Pronunciation, Grammar, and Culture—while maximizing comprehension and retention. A working knowledge of each component, and the ability to combine them correctly, is crucial to being understood and accepted by native speakers.

Vocabulary

Mango focuses on words and phrases that will be the most valuable in common, real-life situations for each specific language and culture.

Vocabulary words are taught through conversation, rather than just a list, to help users understand context and make the most of their time. After just one Mango lesson, you'll be speaking in your new language—and have fun doing it!

Pronunciation

Mango takes pronunciation to a whole new level, helping learners speak more accurately and conversationally. Mango audio is recorded by professional native-speaking voice talent, using the standard dialect, giving users the best possible baseline to model their own pronunciation after. Mango has also integrated a variety of interactive tools designed to help improve pronunciation. Users can interact with any word, at any time, to view its phonetic spelling. Mango provides two different pronunciation speeds. The fluent pronunciation is spoken at a normal conversational speed. In the articulate pronunciation, the narrator speaks more slowly and enunciates each syllable. The voice comparison tool allows users to speak into their microphones, see a visual representation of their pronunciation compared to the narrator's, and adjust until they are as close as possible.

Grammar

Grammar instruction is at the core of what makes the Intuitive Language Construction Methodology unique. Because each lesson is based on actual conversation, Mango students are CONSTANTLY learning about grammar and sentence structure at the same time they're learning vocabulary and pronunciation.

Through Mango's semantic color mapping, literal translations, grammar notes, and critical thinking exercises, users are able to easily identify and recognize linguistic patterns. As they learn, they begin to intuitively understand how the words and phrases are combined to construct meaning. They can then use what they learn and apply it to similar conversations. The knowledge is acquired without the user's even realizing it! This is called Stealth Grammar, because it just sneaks up on you.

Culture

Mango integrates cultural insight into every lesson, ensuring that users develop an understanding of the expectations, customs, and etiquette of the people they want to communicate with. Understanding culture helps students know which conversational tools are most appropriate for which situations and which audiences.

The Mango curriculum is developed by native-speaking professional language teachers, many of whom teach at the university level and hold PhDs. They understand the cultural challenges that a learner will face and carefully design each learning experience to help overcome those challenges.

You have no more excuses to put off learning a foreign language. Can you imagine how much fun it would be to be fluent when you travel outside the USA? Perhaps you are going overseas for a job or for the military, or perhaps you want to brush up on the language skills you started to build in high school. How great would it be at the next neighborhood block party to slip into fluent Farsi while gathered around the BBQ? For more information on Mango or the many other free learning tools available to you, go to Haynerlibrary.org and click on "Online Resources."

Researching Colorful Characters

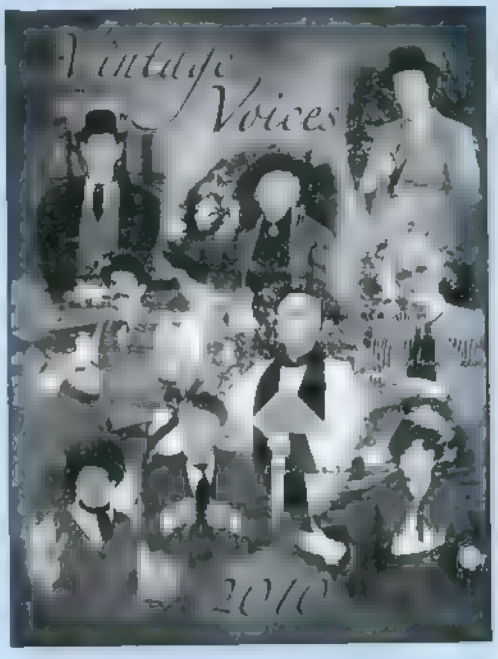
This past October 2011, Alton Little Theater presented the tenth annual Vintage Voices Living History Tour in the historic Alton Cemetery. If you have never attended this event, you are depriving yourself of an outstanding opportunity to watch history come alive. If I were king [ed.], I would make it mandatory for every school-age kid in our community to attend. The easy walking tour takes place each year on three Saturdays in October in the beautiful, historical Alton Cemetery and involves stops by various grave sites to see character reenactments of citizens from our colorful past. Hayner staff members Beth Phillips, Sue Hardin, and Stephanie Munson volunteered as guides for the 2011 tours.

Each year, members of Alton Little Theater volunteer to recreate the lives and times of those who settled and developed the river cities of southern Illinois. During the tour, visitors meet about a dozen different reenactors who, through a short monologue, recount issues, incidents, and anecdotes of their lives. Each reenactor is responsible for the research and scripting of his or her own monologue.

For their research, the volunteers turn most often to the resources available through the Illinois Room collection of The Hayner Public Library District. Every year, Hayner staff members contribute many research hours to help produce new character scripts for the Living History Tour. The staff uses the Illinois Room resources when researching deceased Alton citizens. The Telegraph digitization is always helpful, and the county history book also can contribute a large amount of information on prominent past members of River Bend society.

Hayner personnel also check cemetery interment records and obituaries from the newspaper to make sure the person being researched was actually buried in the City Cemetery, making him or her a candidate for Vintage Voices.

Hominy Tom was a local Alton character in the 1800s whose story Hayner staff helped research. Some of the Little Theater members remembered hearing the name "Hominy Tom," but no one knew much about him, including what was his given name. Through resources in the Illinois Room, Pam Bierman, Hayner Library Assistant, was able to locate his given name, Thomas Eustace, and verify his final resting place in Alton Cemetery. Pam confirmed that Hominy was an elderly gentleman who, for years, walked the streets of Alton calling "Hominy," to which housewives would leave their kitchens to buy a day's supply of hominy for meals. A plaque was subsequently raised in his honor and stands in the Alton Cemetery. Pam assembled her research into a book titled Hominy Tom, and it is now a part of the Illinois Room collection.



Hayner Library staff members also have assisted many out-of-state family members who are researching their Alton roots, including today's descendants of the Hayner family and the Levis family (original owners of the Alton Glass Company). Other interesting projects Hayner Genealogy staff members have undertaken include.

- Researching the steel beams manufactured at Laclede Steel that were used in the building of the World Trade Center
- Fulfilling requests from television crews and production companies
- Assisting out-of-state newspapers looking for specific articles and photos regarding Robert Wadlow
- Helping teams of paranormal activists in their research on alleged haunted properties
- Assisting the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in searches for prior land uses.

Dr. Pat Dailey, Educator and Artist

The next time you visit Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, be sure to look to your right as you enter the facility to view the artwork of Dr. Pat Dailey. Dr Dailey, an Alton resident, is a man of many talents.

Originally from Warren, Ohio, Pat attended Youngstown State University in Ohio and graduated with a BA in Education. He continued his education at Bowling Green State University, earning a Master's degree in Biology and a PHd in Entomology, the branch of zoology dealing with insects. As a graduate assistant at Bowling Green University, he worked part time as a biological illustrator. In 1981 he accepted a job at the SIUE Dental School in Alton. There he was employed as an electron microscopist. Electron microscopy is a function of cellular biology requiring the study of cells through an electron microscope. While employed by SIUE, he also illustrated a chapter in the medical text Ten Cate's Oral Histology. He illustrated the chapter on Bone Development written by Dr. Bill Witson of the SIUE School of Dental Medicine

In 1982, Pat accepted a full-time position as a professor in the Biology Department at Lewis and Clark Community College. There he created and taught the courses Human Sexuality and Reproduction, Ecological Principles, The Biology of Nutrition, Evolutionary Theory, Human Genetics, Field Biology, Fundamentals of Biology, Zoology, Medical Terminology, and Human Diseases.

Now retired from full-time teaching, Pat has more time to pursue his other passions, including painting, photography, and singing. Pat started painting as a child at age 10. Though never having formal training, Pat's artistic talents are remarkable. He mostly prefers to work with watercolors but also enjoys working in pen and ink and pencil.

For several of the paintings on display, Pat starts by creating an original watercolor template block that is then manipulated through computer graphic design programs to create exquisite mixes of patterns called tessellations. Look closely at the paintings. They are intricately interwoven mixes of biologically correct insect forms. See what you can find. There are dragonflies and ladybugs, insect wings, spider abdomens, damselflies, and more. On the side wall of the display are dramatic photographs of red belt and coral fungi that Pat captured during his explorations of The Nature Institute in Godfrey.

Pat also designed a print, "Celebrating the Renewal of Hayner Library." Copies of this original print were given out at the grand opening of the Hayner Library of Genealogy & Local History in the spring of 2011.

Pat's artistic talents also include musical performance. He has a beautiful bass voice and has been a member of the wonderful Lewis & Clark choral group Limited Edition and the Lewis & Clark Concert Choir for the past six years.

The next time you visit the mall library, be sure to leave time to view Pat's work. You will be mesmerized. These donated pieces will be placed in various parts of the library following the showcase of his works.

An ongoing design objective for the mall library is to rotate displays of work from local artists. Prior to the display of Pat Dailey's work, the library showcased the original oil prints of Alton artist Jeffrey Vaughn. These paintings are currently displayed in the quiet reading area of the mall library.

Ragtime and other forms of traditional jazz inevitably morphed into the popular jazz music of the 1930s and 1940s, which has influenced so many other styles in our culture today. The secret of the rags written by women of early 20th-century America wasn't discovered until the 1970s, by Max Morath, well-known ragtime pianist and historian. This is a fascinating, entertaining, and informative account of the music at the dawn of the 20th century and the women who, behind the scenes, contributed to it. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Illinois Terminal, An Album of Steam, Electric and Diesel Locomotives and Spanning the Mississippi: The Alton Bridge and Its Railroads

by Ronald Schmidt

Ronald Schmidt has always been fascinated by trains. As a boy he snapped pictures of the trains in Alton and on the Alton Bridge with his box camera. As an adult he wrote two history/photo books to help us remember. One book details the history of the Illinois Terminal Railroad. His second book tells the story of the Alton Bridge and its railroad. Mr. Schmidt has generously donated his books to the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Illinois Terminal, An Album of Steam, Electric and Diesel Locomotives is a photo history, complete with rosters of the steam, electric, and diesel locomotives operated by the Illinois Terminal Railroad. Many residents of Alton in the early 1900s heard the chugging wheels, huffing smoke, and shrill whistle calls announce the arrival of the steam locomotives in town. Some of them may have worked on these trains or in the rail yards. The railroad provided transportation of supplies and products to and from the Illinois Glass Company, Standard Oil, and other industries in the towns of the Riverbend area.

The Illinois Terminal Interurban Railroad also provided transportation for residents. These electric rail lines skimmed across the prairie, connecting commuters from central Illinois towns to Granite City and Alton and on to St. Louis. Many residents of this area rode the Dinky, a school bus modified to ride the rails, from Alton to Grafton on the Bluff Line.

Mr. Schmidt details how, by 1950, the Illinois Terminal Railroad had replaced steam locomotives with diesel motive power. By 1956, diesel-electric locomotives had also replaced the interurban lines, because diesel train travel was not restricted to overhead wire lines.

Spanning the Mississippi: The Alton Bridge and Its Railroads tells in words and pictures the history of the railroad bridge built in 1894 to cross the Mississippi River at Alton. The steam-powered swing span of the bridge was considered a modern marvel. Residents of Alton watched in fascination as it moved out over the water.

The trains and their bridge represent the sights, sounds, and smells of the early to mid-1900s in the River Bend. If your relatives lived then, you can relive part of their way of life as you browse the pages of Mr. Schmidt's books. Find them in the railroad collection of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street in Alton. IR 624.20977866 SCH

Location, Location, Location

Have you ever wondered how, or why, your family and friends live where they do? Have they always been in this area? Are they recent transplants to the area? People come to different regions for various reasons. Just as many birds move to warmer climates during winter seasons, people migrate to survive.

A few technical terms: An immigrant is one who migrates into a territory. An emigrant is what one is called at his or her departure point. People migrating into undeveloped areas are called settlers or colonists, while people displaced by circumstances such as immigration or colonization are called refugees.

Sometimes the situation is agreeable (change of scenery, charting new areas, finding new lands). Sometimes the situations are horrendous (war, famine, slavery). Regardless of the circumstances, the Genealogy & Local History Library has information to assist everyone from the most avid family tree plotter to the recently interested.

Our helpful staff can show you several maps of Migration Trails in the United States. These handy maps are divided into several regions. Was your family of Danish descent and lived around Albany, New York? Why did they move? What was the most-used trail? By using these maps, you may find that your family moved to Lake Erie areas. If this was during the early 1800s, they may have moved to find work on the construction of the Erie Canal.

Or maybe your family reached Illinois via the first National Road, the Cumberland Road. These trails aren't just interesting anecdotal stories; they also aid in discovering where your family began or travelled. You may have been stuck on a certain family member's location, and knowing the trails of migration can help you deduce where they went and why.

So, if you are looking for extra help in tracing family locations, or if you are just interested in the migration patterns of our American history, visit us at the Genealogy & Local History Library, located at 401 State Street. There are color copies of maps and trail information located in the information carousel near our counters. Come in and ask any of us for assistance— we love to help!

Happy Hunting!

Looking For St. Charles County, Missouri, Genealogy?

St. Charles County has always had a connection to Alton. In the 1800s, steamboats, packets, and ferries carried people and products between Alton and cities in Missouri. The bridge built over the Mississippi at Alton in 1928 made travel to St. Charles easier.

Some Alton residents traveled to St. Charles to get married and then set up housekeeping back in Illinois. Or they lived in West Alton and came to Alton to get married. Some people lived in St. Charles County, and then moved to Alton to work.

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library can help you find those traveling ancestors. The library has an extensive collection of records from St. Charles County. Find indexes or copies of births, baptisms, marriages, including legalized marriages of freed African Americans, naturalizations, obituaries and burials, censuses, early pioneer biographies, school and real estate tax lists, and St. Charles County histories. And that's just the books! The genealogy websites have more information!

The staff at Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library will be glad to help you. Call us or come in to see if we have the information you need.

The Eloquent President

By: Ronald C. White, Jr.

Abraham Lincoln was an excellent communicator. During his election campaigns, he convinced citizens to elect him with straightforward, sometimes humorous, oratory that appealed to their hearts as well as their minds. Some of his contemporaries regarded Mr. Lincoln as an awkward, ungainly frontiersman whose language was homespun and unpolished. Time proved them wrong. Author Ronald White describes the evolution of Lincoln's literary style from the "measured, lawyerly tones" of his First Inaugural Address to the stirring, poetic lines of the Gettysburg Address. Mr. White correlates the changes in Lincoln's literary style to his personal growth during his presidencies. The loss of his second son and the heart-rending challenges of leading the country during the Civil War refined Mr. Lincoln's personality, strengthened his resolve, and deepened his spiritual life.

Read The Eloquent President in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Thank You, Head Start Donors, RIF 2011

Riverbend Head Start & Family Services, a local nonprofit for disadvantaged children, believes that books in the home are a basic necessity. These generous donors helped give 3,000 free books to the nonprofit's children:

The Hayner Public Library District partners with Riverbend Head Start & Family Services in reading and literacy programs such as its Reading is Fundamental book distribution

Unfortunately, federal funding was eliminated this year for Reading Is Fundamental (RIF). It provides 4.4 million American children with free books at nearly 17,000 locations throughout the U.S. Locally, Riverbend Head Start & Family Services receives an RIF grant, matched by local donors, that puts 3,000 books in the hands of nearly 1,000 disadvantaged young children.

"When I visit RIF programs across this country, I see firsthand the joy children feel when empowered to choose their very own book to own," said RIF president and CEO Carol Rasco.

RIF operates through Head Start programs, schools, community centers, hospitals, military bases, and other locations that serve children from low-income families, children with disabilities, homeless children, and children without adequate access to libraries. For 44 years, RIF has provided millions of children the opportunity to choose free and high-quality books to read and keep for themselves.

Millions of children are living in the United States without access to books. Book distribution programs are a key factor in developing children to be readers at an early age and a gateway to greater student achievement. A study found that providing children access to print through book lending and book distribution programs improves their reading performance, is instrumental in helping them learn the basics of reading, causes them to read more and for longer lengths of time, and improves their attitude toward reading and learning.

RIF has been an authorized, national program by the U.S. Department of Education through the Elementary and Secondary Education Act for over thirty years. RIF has received bi-partisan support and has been funded by six administrations without interruption until now.

"Our educational programs are under attack, and it's time to fight back," said Rasco. "Investments in education are investments in our country's future—our children."

RIF is committed to ensuring that, despite the odds, all children have the chance to experience the joy of reading and have books to call their own. Reading is indeed fundamental, and you can support this cause online at www.rif.org

Large Print Collection Relocated in Downtown Library

The large print collection at the Hayner Downtown Library has been moved from its previous location upstairs; it is now located on the main level in the former Illinois Room. Aside from allowing more space for large print materials, the new space is nice and bright and best of all, no stairs! The space opened up by this reconfiguration will be used to shelve our teen and young adult collections, separating them out from the youth materials. This will also allow us more space for the youth materials currently occupying the old Reading Room space. Fresh paint and other cosmetic touches provide a great lift to the display of materials, and all three collections are more accessible. Visit us soon and let us know what you think!

Did Santa Bring eReaders?

One of the most popular items for holiday shoppers this year is eReader devices. Happily, for some time now, The Hayner Public Library District has been offering patrons eBooks that they can check out, free, with a Hayner Library card.

When you download an eBook from the OverDrive® eBook collection on Hayner's website, you will receive an electronic copy of the book on your reader that will disappear at the end of the two-week loan period. You will never have to worry about late fines. If you were not finished reading the eBook, you simply check it out again. If your book is already checked out to someone else, you can put it on your reserve list, and you will be notified when the book is available for you to download.

If you are not sure how to download a book from the library's electronic collection, there are instructions (hard copy) available at the Hayner Library circulation desks or on our website at www.haynerlibrary.org. Hayner circulation and reference staff can also help you get started.

Note: For Apple products only, to access eBooks from the library collection, you will need to have previously downloaded the free OverDrive® app from the Apple app store. You will not be able to download this app within the Hayner Library Wi-Fi.

Happy reading!

How Did They Get Here?

It never ceases to amaze me, the depth and breadth of the material collections of The Hayner Public Library District—bestsellers, classics, mysteries, science fiction, self-help, art, history, and on and on. From the most popular to the obscure, high literature to chick lit, weight loss to bridge building, the range is mind-boggling.

In the United States alone, approximately 24,000 new books are published each month. That number does not include all the titles that are now being published strictly as eBooks, or the thousands of self-published volumes that appear daily.

You might think that for a bibliophile, the best job in the world would be collection development (choosing the titles that will be purchased for library collections)—but think about it. You are not choosing for yourself; you are choosing for your readership. That obviously can be a whole different game. You also have to choose for all the categories of materials the library provides, not just cozy mysteries or whatever your favorite genre—quite a daunting responsibility.

Of the two thousand titles announced by publishers each month, how do you select the items that will be of greatest value to your community, always guided by strict budgetary allowances/restrictions? Additionally, the selection process includes identifying (out of thousands of titles) new CDs and DVDs for purchase.

This critical responsibility lies with the Collection Development Department of the Hayner Library District. This department's primary responsibility is to facilitate the purchase of new materials as well as track usage of existing collections and rotate non-circulating items off the shelves.

Collection Development personnel rely on industry tools, including professional review journals such as Publishers Weekly, Kirkus Review, Booklist, Library Journal, and School Library Journal, along with publishers' catalogs, "best lists," prepublication and reader's advisory websites, blogs, and listservs. They also use online media review and ordering sources for nonprint items, such as DVDs, CDs, audiobooks and eBooks. These are just a sampling of the information sources used as input to acquisition decisions. Once title selections have been determined, materials are ordered from distributors and wholesale booksellers.

The Technical Services Department handles all the order processing. Most titles are ordered months before actual publication. Very popular authors (James Patterson, for example) are available for prepublication orders up to 6 months before the actual pub date. The orders must be submitted to the bookseller and also placed in the online card catalog. The online catalog is a database shared by many member libraries. Sharing the card catalog allows patrons to request and receive materials that are physically held by other libraries throughout the state library systems. Once an on-order bibliographic record has been entered into the online catalogue, that item can accept patron reserves or "holds."

New materials arrive every day, all requiring immediate attention. The on-order record must now be updated with all the bibliographic information. This is called a full-level Bib record, a complex function that requires formal employee training and certification in cataloging, across all media, to worldwide cataloging specifications. As an example, when a Bib record needs to be created for a DVD, the record must be searchable by a myriad of parameters. Film name, director, and actors are the obvious, but the record also must be able to be searched by musical score, song titles and performers, producer, cinematographer, writers, awards, and more. The item record is then electronically attached to the Bib record by adding barcode numbers, call numbers, and location codes.

Technical Services has created and modified up to 2,000 Bib records in a month; however, often multiple copies of the same item are ordered, at least doubling the number of item records to be produced. Each item then requires identification stamps (called number labels), location stamps, and overdue fine information. RFID security labels must also be attached.

Items that have completed processing are then shipped by large plastic tubs to the appropriate holding library (Downtown, Alton Square Mall, or Genealogy & Local History). Tub delivery is made in the morning and then again each afternoon. Once the material is at its custodial library, circulation staff must check each item in and mark the computer record now as "available," at which point carts are filled with new items for library pages to shelve. The Technical Services Department also catalogs and processes each of the monthly 300 magazine subscriptions and provides all material repair services for the steady flow of books, magazines, and media requiring repairs and/or mending

So, let's recap· The Hayner Public Library District adds approximately 2,500 new items to our shelves every month, adding up to approximately 30,000 new items a year, all requiring the previously described processing. Because shelf space is finite, Collection Development must constantly monitor material by circulation frequency. Items that no longer circulate must be pulled from the shelves and then processed out of the catalog databases by Technical Services. Collection Development and Technical Services staff number 5 employees. That's a lot of heads-down productivity!

Congress Continues to Fund Literacy Program

In the last issue of The Hayner Public Library District's newsletter you read that funding for a national literacy program called Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) had been eliminated from the federal budget.

Good news—funding has been restored for national literacy programs.

What will change is how these programs access the funds. A total of $28 million will be awarded to literacy organizations and libraries through a competitive grant process administered by the U.S. Department of Education.

A local nonprofit, Riverbend Head Start & Family Services (RHSFS), is hopeful that the grant competition will result in a national grant for Reading Is Fundamental. And if it does, RHSFS hopes that it, in turn, will earn a grant from RIF to buy and distribute books to the local children it serves.

Children qualify for RHSFS's programs based on their family's income. It must be below the federal poverty line.

RHSFS has a goal to prepare our community's most vulnerable children for kindergarten via its early childhood education, health, and social services. Literacy is a major objective for reaching that goal.

For the past thirteen years, grants from RIF have enabled RHSFS to annually put three thousand books in the homes of one thousand children under the age of five. All for free.

A local match from TheBANK of Edwardsville for RHSFS's Reading Is Fundamental grant ensures that hundreds of children in The Hayner Public Library District start kindergarten ready to learn, excited about school, and prepared to succeed.

According to an RIF press release, "In 2010, RIF distributed 15 million books to 4 million children nationwide. More than 400,000 volunteers from Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs and other partners in every state contribute 25 percent of the organization's funding. Without federal support, a large national program, one that has distributed almost 400 million books since 1966, will begin to break down."

Thank you for making literacy a priority in our community, and in our nation by supporting your local library, literacy projects, nonprofits like Riverbend Head Start, and national programs like RIF Reading is indeed fundamental, and you can support this cause online at www.RIF.org.

Cursed Book!

Throughout the history of the world, libraries have been constructed, burned, discovered, raided, and cherished—and the treasures they've housed have evolved from early stone tablets to the mass-produced, bound paper books of our present day. The Library by Stuart A. P. Murray invites you to enter the libraries of ancient Greece, early China, Renaissance England, and modern-day America, and speaks to the book lover in all of us. The following excerpt was taken from Murray's second chapter titled European Libraries of the Middle Ages (page 39). In this chapter, he addresses the issue of patron loss or damage of library materials. After reading this excerpt, you may be grateful that The Hayner Public Library District charges a mere 10 cents a day for overdue books.

> [During the Middle Ages] with the appearance of cathedral schools and a dynamic mercantile class that sought both education and entertainment in reading, books were more sought after than ever before. It followed that books, both plain and fancy, were prime targets for thieves, whether criminals who broke into a library or impoverished students who could not resist pilfering and selling titles from the libraries they patronized.
> A library's most-used books were not only chained to desks and lecterns to prevent theft, but they were often protected by a "book curse" to scourge whoever damaged or stole them. After finishing the copying, the scribe usually added such a curse to the final page, warning that eternal damnation or prolonged physical suffering awaited any would-be perpetrator.
> Book curses are as old as writing—or at least as old as libraries. For all the reputed propriety and patience required of their calling, librarians have historically wished the worst of punishments on book thieves, as if they were no better than murderers or blasphemers. Ancient librarians called down the wrath of the gods of Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece and Rome upon book thieves and vandals. A comment on a Babylonian scroll threatened anyone who erased its writing in order to reuse the papyrus:
> In the name of Nabu and Marduk, do not rub out the text!
> (Nabu was the Semitic god of writing and Marduk was his father.)
> One ancient curse warned of the direst consequences if patrons even dared lend a borrowed book to someone else:
> He who entrusts [this book] to [others'] hands, > may all the gods who are found in > Babylon curse him!
> In medieval Europe, the most fearsome curse was the threat of expulsion from the church and eternal damnation. Librarians and scribes considered neither punishment too extreme for a miscreant. Calling down hellfire was considered a potent and essential protection for a library's books. One drastic (and still popular) curse invoked to protect an entire Spanish library warned:
> Him that stealeth, or borroweth and returneth not, this book from its owner, let it change into a serpent in his hand and rend him. Let him be struck with palsy, and all his members blasted. He is joined by his wife, cowriter, and musical collaborator, Kate. Her gentle presence, luscious vocals, and intuitive harmonies have endeared her to audiences. "A gem of thinking man's romanticism"–Rolling Stone; "David Massengill possesses a pure brilliance that is difficult to ignore"–Boston Globe; "David's… lyrical facility is the most astounding to appear since that of Elvis Costello. He can be wickedly funny and deeply touching in the same line."–The All American Music Guide. He weaves a blend of gentle wit and humor into his performances, and one reviewer wrote, "He has a sense of timing to match the best standup comic." Bill's music is a slice of Americana, reflecting with the same ease his feelings about the prairie people of the Midwest or the adventurers of the Yukon, the on-the-road truckers, or the everyday workers that make up this land. # Family History

Family history, genealogy, or family stories told and written down are preserved in booklets, soft- and hardbound books in the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Many of our ancestors from long ago and from not so many years back have written down their stories, their histories of births, deaths, and marriages in a sequence that shows lineage, immigration, wars, and heritage.

They might have lived on farms that are now the block on which you live. They might have fought in the Revolutionary, Civil, or World Wars. There might be pictures that tell where people lived, how they dressed, and how they worked. Some of these stories have been written down and now are on shelves in the Illinois Room.

We all have stories to tell. Some are good, some sad or hard to accept as truths. Some stories are the kind that you want to hide or deny Many of these people we never knew personally, but they made us and our city what we are today.

By doing genealogy research, looking at old pictures, remembering stories from our grandparents, parents, aunts and uncles, finding the old family Bible where dates of births and deaths were often kept, we find the beginnings of a family story.

These stories are not novels but usually simply written stories that were handed down. They often tell of simple joys, hard work, hardships, and often short lives. Some of the family histories are done with great detail and research. But all were done with a love of documenting and preserving a piece of history.

There are also books in our library written by genealogists, historians, archivists, and authors who have traced roots by race, nationality, country, states, and ports of entry. These books have documented many families and names. You might find relatives who already have been traced and preserved in history.

Come and look at these stories about people who lived in this area and see how extensive—and fascinating—these family histories are. They might inspire you to begin your journey.

The Keys to Happiness, and Why We Don't Use Them

"It requires some effort to achieve a happy outlook on life, and most people don't make it."
—Author and researcher Gregg Easterbrook

Psychologists have recently handed the keys to happiness to the public, but many people cling to gloomy ways out of habit, experts say. Polls show Americans are no happier today than they were 50 years ago despite significant increases in prosperity, decreases in crime, cleaner air, larger living quarters and a better overall quality of life.

So what gives?

Happiness is 50 percent genetic, says University of Minnesota researcher David Lykken. What you do with the other half of the challenge depends largely on determination, psychologists agree. As Abraham Lincoln once said, "Most people are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

What works, and what doesn't

Happiness does not come via prescription drugs, although 10 percent of women 18 and older and 4 percent of men take antidepressants, according to the Department of Health and Human Services. Antidepressants benefit those with mental illness but are no happiness guarantee, researchers say.

Nor will money or prosperity buy happiness for many of us. Money that lifts people out of poverty increases happiness, but after that, the better paychecks stop paying off sense-of-well-being dividends, research shows.

One route to more happiness is called "flow," an engrossing state that comes during creative or playful activity, psychologist Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi has found. Athletes, musicians, writers, gamers, and religious adherents know the feeling. It comes less from what you're doing than from how you do it.

Sonja Lyubomirsky of the University of California at Riverside has discovered that the road toward a more satisfying and meaningful life involves a recipe repeated in schools, churches and synagogues. Make lists of things for which you're grateful in your life, practice random acts of kindness, forgive your enemies, notice life's small pleasures, take care of your health, practice positive thinking, and invest time and energy into friendships and family.

The happiest people have strong friendships, says Ed Diener, a psychologist at the University of Illinois. Interestingly his research finds that most people are slightly to moderately happy, not unhappy.

On your own

Some Americans are reluctant to make these changes and remain unmotivated even though our freedom to pursue happiness is written into the preamble of the Declaration of Independence.

Don't count on the government, for now, Easterbrook says.

Our economy lacks the robustness to sustain policy changes that would bring about more happiness, like reorienting cities to minimize commute times

The onus is on us.

"There are selfish reasons to behave in altruistic ways," says Gregg Easterbrook, author of The Progress Paradox: How Life Gets Better While People Feel Worse (Random House, 2004).

"Research shows that people who are grateful, optimistic and forgiving have better experiences with their lives, more happiness, fewer strokes, and higher incomes," according to Easterbrook. "If it makes the world a better place at the same time, this is a real bonus."

Diener has collected specific details on this. People who positively evaluate their well-being on average have stronger immune systems, are better citizens at work, earn more income, have better marriages, are more sociable, and cope better with difficulties.

Unhappy by default

Lethargy holds many people back from doing the things that lead to happiness.

Easterbrook, also a Visiting Fellow at the Brookings Institute, goes back to Freud, who theorized that unhappiness is a default condition because it takes less effort to be unhappy than to be happy.

"If you are looking for something to complain about, you are absolutely certain to find it," Easterbrook told LiveScience. "It requires some effort to achieve a happy outlook on life, and most people don't make it. Most people take the path of least resistance. Far too many people today don't make the steps to make their life a more fulfilling one."

Food for Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

Please help our friends at the 5 A's—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Some of the dogs and their handlers that visit Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, the second Saturday of every month They are all members of Touched by a Canine, our area's local chapter of Therapy Dogs International. For more information about therapy dog work, go to the Therapy Dogs International website (www.tdi-dog.org) or contact Jerry Cooley at 618-558-7432 or e-mail jdcooley64@charter.net.

Do you know what PERSI is?

The Periodical Source Index (PERSI) is a large subject index for periodicals covering genealogy and local history articles. Created by the staff of the Allen County Public Library in 1986, this index can be found online on the HeritageQuest website and on Ancestry Library Edition at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. PERSI is not an every-name or every-word index; surname periodicals are not included in PERSI.

There are four categories for a search: People, Places, How To's, and Periodicals. The categories are self-explanatory: use surnames for People, Country/State/Province for Places, a research method for How To's, and a name of a publication for Periodicals. Places and How To's have a drop-down list of Record Types that can be chosen. Built in to a "Categories" search is a "Keywords" box that will allow Boolean operators (and, or, and not). Wildcard substitutions can also be used, such as an asterisk (*) for replacing several letters at the end of a word, a dollar sign ($) for a single letter within the word, and quotation marks (" ") for a group of words.

A search will list the article name, periodical title, publication place, date of periodical, and volume and issue number. With this information, we can check to see what libraries have the periodical you need, and then request it to be sent from a holding library.

We would be happy to show you how it works. Come in and try out this powerful search tool to discover your hidden ancestors. We are located at 401 State Street in Alton, Illinois.

Our Alton...175 years ago (1837)

There is little comparison between the Alton of 1837 and our Alton of 2012. The city has definitely seen her share of ups and downs, economic and otherwise. Looking at our present state of employment, it is hard to believe that at one time in history our city was an industrial mecca.

When reminiscing about this wonderful old city on the hills, one can smile at the simple life of a populace determined to build a society where fair business, quality education, and family values were most important in the establishment of a community. But not all of Alton's stories have happy endings.

The year 1837 saw a great tragedy unfold within the city limits. The malicious murder of Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy caused great agitation among the people of Alton as well as around the country. The tragedy caused many families and businesses to move and turn their backs on their beloved little town. Some historians declare the killing of Lovejoy was the catalyst for the Civil War. It was a sad and monumental history lesson.

The town of Alton was named after Alton R. Easton. Easton was a son of Col. Rufus Easton, who was not only an extremely successful businessman and political figure but also served as the first Postmaster of St. Louis.

By 1818 Col. Easton had laid out a small rough area along the river and commissioned Rev. Thomas Lippincott, a local business owner and Presbyterian minister, to map out the area. Easton then used the plat to advertise in the eastern part of the United States for buyers for parcels of land in his newly founded town.

The original plat extended from Market to Henry Street and from the Mississippi River to Ninth Street. (A photo of this plat is available at The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library.) Streets in the city such as Alby, George, Easton, and Langdon were named after members of Easton's family.

Easton had hopes that Alton would become a profitable river town, capable of producing abundant trade and commerce, thus giving St. Louis a little competition in big-city business.

Situated on the east bank of the Mississippi River, the town's natural surface was defined by hills, bluffs, forests, and ravines. The Illinois Confederation, also referred to as the Illiniwek or Illini tribes, inhabited the bluffs and wooded areas for hundreds of years prior to the founding of Alton.

The Illinois Legislature chartered the town on July 21, 1837, making Alton an official Illinois city. The first elected mayor was John M. Krum, who was paid an annual salary of $150. Population was 2,500, with most inhabitants emigrating from New York, New England, and Virginia. Dwellings consisted of 300 homes and nine boarding houses. There were four newspapers supplying citizens with their weekly dose of events, the Alton Telegraph, Alton Spectator, Alton Observer (Lovejoy's publication), and the Temperance Herald.

Seven physicians, eight clergy, and eight attorneys ministered to the sick, the sinful, and the unrighteous. Alton's success in trade brought her renown from St. Louis to New Orleans. Two fraternal orders, the Masons and the Odd Fellows, found lodge homes in the growing city of Alton. There were 20 wholesale stores and 32 retail stores, four hotels, two banks, and one insurance office. Homes were mainly one-story frame structures. Businesses and warehouses, along with the more prestigious and private dwellings, were highly regarded and therefore built of massive stone or fine brick.

The first and only penitentiary in the state of Illinois was also located in Alton during that time. Timber, coal, and vast beds of limestone bounded the town and provided limitless employment opportunities. Laborers, bricklayers, and stonemasons were making an outstanding wage of $1 to $3 daily. This was considered an exceptional salary when compared to the meager 40-cent wage being paid elsewhere.

The close proximity to the Mississippi, Illinois, and Missouri rivers gave the young town an advantage in steam travel and commerce. The land produced natural fruits such as plums, persimmons, and crabapples. Wild game and waterfowl were abundant.

One hundred seventy-five years have passed since the murder of Elijah Lovejoy, but despite this haunting event, Alton continued to grow, prosper, and become a city of diverse opportunities.

Family roots run deep in our town. Our local history is preserved by various agencies and very special people who respect the architecture, the history, and the labor of love that went into making Alton the city she is today. These citizens and groups strive to keep buildings from falling into disrepair and struggle to keep history preserved, even if only by gently tucking artifacts into boxes, attics, and hearts.

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library also plays a part in helping preserve Alton's past in the newly renovated 122-year-old Hayner building at 401 State Street. Come browse through this beautiful old building and the wonderful local history collection of the Illinois Room. Tour the museum-style display cases filled with artifacts and memorabilia. Look inside the pages of Alton history, and get a glimpse of a picturesque Alton through the eyes of our forebears.

Those tireless citizens who refused to give up when things became tough had a dream to build a prosperous city; and despite the hardship, turmoil, and odds, they came through with the City of Alton. It is due to their determination that today we are able to enjoy the 175th anniversary of a beautiful city full of history and charm.

How We Celebrated 75 Years Ago

Exploration, discovery, colonization, settlement, development—and those dramatic interludes in the play that is history—were portrayed in a procession that was conceived with intelligence, carried into effect with genius, and presented with efficiency; resulting in an attractive and colorful parade that doubtlessly surpassed any previous effort in the city's history, and was witnessed by the largest crowd ever to view such an event.

—Alton Evening Telegraph, July 24, 1937

On July 21, 2012, Alton will celebrate its 175th anniversary. Fireworks, parades, and concerts will provide entertainment for Altonians this summer much as they did in 1937 at Alton's centennial celebration.

The Official Program: Centennial of Alton, Illinois 1887-1937 (call number IR 977.386 OFF in the Genealogy & Local History Library) provides a wealth of information about life in Alton 75 years ago. The program tells the legends of Lover's Leap and the Piasa Bird, as well as the histories behind the Lovejoy, Confederate, and Wood River Massacre monuments. An article titled "Alton 100 Years Ago" gives a brief account of life in the early 1800s. Laclede Steel Company, Owens Illinois Glass Co., Standard Oil Co., and Western Cartridge Company took out full-page ads. Smaller ads publicized the Alton Brick Company, Bluff City Brewery, Acme Bowling Alleys, Alton Mineral Springs Hotel, and other local businesses.

The program provides fascinating details of the 1937 celebration. The centennial party went on for three days. There were sightseeing tours every day and a visit from Illinois Governor Henry Horner to Lincoln Douglas Square. Each night, a battery of antiaircraft searchlights performed a show followed by fireworks. The Three Milos, a team of acrobats on a 110-foot-high trapeze, dazzled the crowds, as did the DeKahl Troupe's globe-rolling act. Illinois and Missouri National Guard planes made daily flights over Alton. On July 23, a magnificent parade with floats carrying actors portraying Lewis and Clark, Elijah Lovejoy, and other historical figures wound through the streets. Robert Wadlow was a big hit at Noll's Ice Cream stand.

The total cost of the centennial celebration was $10,597.90. Any expenses not covered by ticket sales or concessions were picked up by local businessmen.

More photos taken at the centennial can be viewed in the library as part of the Bob Graul Photo Collection. Robert K. Graul started at The Telegraph in 1936 and was a photographer there for over 40 years. The full archive of The Telegraph (also called the Alton Evening Telegraph and the Alton Daily Telegraph at different points in history) can be accessed at any of The Hayner Public Library System locations and contains numerous articles about the 1937 celebration.

Celebrating Alton's 175th Anniversary Contest Winners

The year 2012 marks the City of Alton's 175th anniversary. Mayor Tom Hoechst, the Alton City Council, and community organizations are sponsoring many great community activities and events to celebrate this significant milestone.

In January 2012, as part of the events and to foster participation of Alton citizens of all ages, The Hayner Public Library District and the City of Alton cosponsored two competitions open to all school-age children in the Hayner library district (Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township). The two contests included an original poster design competition and an original essay competition.

The winners of Alton's 175th Anniversary Essay and Poster Contests were announced and prizes awarded at the Alton City Council meeting on April 11, 2012, in Alton City Hall with the winners, families, friends, and city officials in attendance. The awards were presented jointly by Mayor Tom Hoechst, City of Alton, and Jeff Owen, Executive Director of The Hayner Public Library District.

Each contest was judged within three age groups: elementary grades, middle school, and high school. Entries for the poster contest were judged on subject originality and artistic skill commensurate with age. Essays were judged on subject originality and creativity, grammar and composition, and historical accuracy. The essay contest theme for elementary grades was "What does Alton mean to you?" For middle and high school levels, the essay contest required a historical component highlighting the importance or consequence of a point in Alton's history to life today. Ties were announced for winners of two of the award categories.

The poster contest attracted 382 entries. The winners were: Abbie Hernandez, Ss. Peter and Paul Elementary School; Abby Day, Evangelical Middle School; Alexandria Jun, Marquette High School, and Evan Everitt, Marquette High School (tie).

The essay contest had 146 entries. The winners were: Katie Williams, Ss. Peter and Paul Elementary School, and Isabelle Droste, West Elementary School (tie); Rachel Staten, St. Mary's Middle School; and Madison Bemis, Alton High School.

Each of the winners received a Kindle Fire, and copies of their work will be featured in the Alton 175 Year Commemorative Booklet. The winning entries are also being displayed at various locations throughout the community.

How to Write

On September 7th of 1982, advertising legend David Ogilvy sent an internal memo to all employees of his advertising agency, Ogilvy & Mather. The memo was titled "How to Write," and consisted of the following list of advice.

The better you write, the higher you go in Ogilvy & Mather. People who think well, write well.

Woolly minded people write woolly memos, woolly letters and woolly speeches.

Good writing is not a natural gift. You have to learn to write well. Here are 10 hints:

1. Read the Roman-Raphaelson book on writing*. Read it three times.

*Writing That Works, by Kenneth Roman and Joel Raphaelson

2. Write the way you talk. Naturally.

3. Use short words, short sentences and short paragraphs.

4. Never use jargon words like reconceptualize, demassification, attitudinally, judgmentally. They are hallmarks of a pretentious ass.

5. Never write more than two pages on any subject.

6. Check your quotations.

7. Never send a letter or a memo on the day you write it. Read it aloud the next morning—and then edit it.

8. If it is something important, get a colleague to improve it.

9. Before you send your letter or your memo, make sure it is crystal clear what you want the recipient to do.

10. If you want ACTION, don't write. Go and tell the guy what you want.

Hayner Library Teen and Youth Services —A Terrific Community Resource

The Hayner Library staff of Youth and Young Adult Services is a vibrant and creative group. Youth Services develops the material collections and activities for kids ages birth to 12 years. The large KidsSpace room at the Alton Square Mall library provides an extensive collection of books and materials for birth to 12-year reading levels, kid-sized computer workstations, toys and games for onsite play, plenty of room for story times, and a Multi-purpose Room for special programs and craft activities.

There is also a great new KidsSpace at the Hayner Downtown Library, also with computers, reading materials, and "fun" space that is very kid- and parent-friendly

The TeenSpace area of Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall is a separate area where teens can meet and work on public computers or use their laptops in a comfortable seating environment. TeenSpace also offers a rich collection of teen reading materials, including popular fiction and nonfiction, graphic novels, magazines, and more. In the Downtown Library, a great new teen area has been developed in the space that was previously used for the large-print book collection. The space provides teens with privacy and quiet for study, comfortable seating, and Wi-Fi connection.

The Hayner Youth and Young Adult Services staff also staffs a Hayner Library outlet at the Riverbender.com Community Center in downtown Alton, where teens can play games, study, and even get tutorial help.

The staff prides itself on the great number of activities and programs they offer, all free of charge, for kids of all ages. Some of the 2012 activities kids (and parents) have enjoyed include:

Bow-wow Pow-wow: Every month certified therapy dogs come to the library for a reading time. Kids read to the dogs or just visit and play with these wonderful animals. This is a great way for a child to increase confidence in his or her reading skills and also learn how to interact with and enjoy furry friends.

Teddy Bear Sleepover: This spring, certain members of the library community got to enjoy a very special treat. Local teddy bears enjoyed a sleepover in the library at Alton Square Mall. Kids brought their teddy bears to the library and left them overnight. The teddy bears enjoyed all kinds of fun activities, including crafts and stories, which were recorded on film by library staff. The next evening the kids returned in their PJ's to pick up their teddy bears and enjoy stories and a bedtime snack and watch a slide show of the bears' festivities. The kids also received keepsake photo books of their teddy-friends' special night.

Guest teddies enjoying craft time.

Early arrivals waiting for fun to start.

Youth Services hosts lots of fun activities, including fresh-themed story times every week throughout the year. Ongoing events include.

"Mommy and Me Story Time" is geared to kids ages birth through 2. Stories, songs, and finger play are part of the fun. Held weekly.

"Movers and Shakers Story Time" invites kids 3–5 years of age to enjoy great interactive stories and often features special guests and hands-on activities. Held weekly.

"Spanish Story Times"—Join Library Assistant Hector Lozano for Stories with Hector. Preschoolers ages 3–5 enjoy a lively combination of books, finger play, and songs in both English and Spanish. Held monthly.

Janet Andrews and Hector Lozano teach kids in English and Spanish.

"After-School Fun" involves kids (ages 5 to 10 years) in a different creative craft activity every month (all craft materials are supplied by the library, funded through private endowment.)

"Itsy Bitsy Yoga"—Babies up to 12 months of age get to experience an introduction to the calm and relaxing effects of yoga. The class includes baby massage, holding baby during yoga postures, interactive song and dance, and sharing a story with baby.

This past spring, kids also enjoyed an Easter egg hunt in the library at the mall, including a visit from the Easter Bunny, and two special programs brought to the library by the Edwardsville Children's Museum. "Global Art," featuring artistic techniques from around the world and a workshop; and "Ladybugs," a fascinating hands-on science program. Other events in just the last year include Family Movie Nights, Family Reading and Family Game Nights, Tai Chi classes for children, professional storytellers, magicians, professional singers and entertainers, signing classes, puppet shows, wildlife programs, dance, cooking and baking, Halloween hauntings, holiday parties with a visit from Santa, and more.

For the Hayner Library Youth and Young Adult Services staff, however, the busiest time of year is just getting started as summer reading programs are being rolled out. Summer reading programs for kids and teens are consistently a huge success at The Hayner Public Library District. Last year over 500 kids enrolled in the Youth program and over 100 teens enrolled in the Teen program. The Youth summer reading program has been a mainstay at the library for years. The Teen program was initiated in 2010. During the Youth program, a different event with professional performers is scheduled every week. Activities and crafts are scheduled to reflect this year's reading theme,

A Merry Liberry Birthday

In March 2012, members of the Ducey family came into town from far and wide to congregate at Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall. The reason for the re-union? To celebrate the 80th birthday of Joe Ducey, father, grandfather, and overall "leader of the pack."

Joe's family wanted to surprise him with a gift that would have very special meaning for his milestone birthday, and so they approached Hayner Library with an unusual idea.

Joe, a former principal in the Alton School District, has always been an avid library fan. Now retired, Joe uses the library more than ever and visits Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall almost daily. The most meaningful gift to Joe would be a gift to support an institution he so clearly loves. Thus, the family pooled would-be birthday gift funds and donated the money to The Hayner Public Library District in Joe's honor.

Unaware of the family's plan, Joe was a bit confused when his daughter insisted on stopping at the library at Alton Square on the way to Joe's celebratory birthday dinner. What a surprise, to walk into the library and find his whole family waiting for him there, his wife, kids, their spouses, grandchildren—the whole happy clan!

A plaque was presented to Joe and has been mounted by the comfortable seating area of the mall library, where Joe often reads the morning paper. The plaque reads, "This seating area funded in part by the family of Joe Ducey in honor of his 80th birthday, March 9, 2012 "
Thank you to the Ducey family for including The Hayner Public Library District in recognizing Joe's special day

Ed. Note. Most of us in the library world HATE the mispronunciation of library as "liberry." The above usage was allowed for creative rhyming purposes only

Rev. John Mason Peck: a hero in the history of Alton

In February 1819, a young and energetic Baptist missionary under commission of the Triennial Convention of Baptists rode into the Alton area with hopes of finding a suitable site for a new school that would combine education with religious training. The Reverend John Mason Peck was that man. Unfortunately, Rev. Peck was so unimpressed by the primitive conditions of the Alton countryside and its inhabitants that it would take nearly 13 years for him to decide to transfer his school from Rock Spring, Illinois, to Upper Alton.

In 1832 the Alton Seminary opened, thus beginning a long and prosperous career in Alton. The reverend was a hardworking and tireless pioneer in many political, personal, and ethical pursuits during the 1800s. He was known to have a strong moral persuasion, which worked to his advantage as he labored to make social changes and create positive influences in some of the more unrefined Midwestern territories. He was a firm believer in making higher education available to all people. He exhibited a strong opinion against slavery by taking an active position in the fight to keep servitude out of the State of Illinois.

A deeply religious man, Rev. Peck was instrumental in establishing churches and Sunday schools throughout the Mississippi Valley. As early history records show, Rev. Peck is also credited with establishing the first Baptist church in the Upper Alton area on April 25, 1830, a church that is still active within the neighborhood.

The Reverend John Mason Peck was not a native of Alton, and only visited here for a short time, but the valuable contributions he made within the community have made lasting impressions and earned him many honorable references in Alton's history. The Alton Seminary is no longer in existence, but out of its history came the prestigious Shurtleff College, and it currently flourishes as the SIUE School of Dental Medicine. The Upper Alton Baptist Church has maintained over 180 years of service to its parishioners and local community. These well-established and historic institutions of Alton are an honorable legacy of the Reverend John Mason Peck.

Did you ever wonder...

If you have ever wondered where and who you came from, join the crowd. Most of us have experienced this feeling at one time or another. Looking back into our past to find out more about the early generations that came before us can teach us about ourselves.

Did you ever wonder why you love to play the piano, are passionate about gardening, or have some particular physical characteristic? By learning about your ancestors, you just might discover the answers to these questions and more. You may have had a grandmother who taught piano, or a great-uncle who was a master gardener. Maybe you have your great-grandfather's sky blue eyes.

There are several good websites available to begin your research, but many of them charge a fee. There is one place where you can do research at no charge: the Genealogy & Local History Library of The Hayner Public Library District in downtown Alton, Illinois, has experienced staff on hand to help you discover your own family history.

Our experienced staff will share their knowledge to help you uncover your roots. By having you share your known family history with us, we can help you take steps toward revealing your family heritage. Every piece of information can bring you closer to another discovery about family members of long ago.

We can assist you in discovering things you didn't know about your ancestors. It is wonderful to have a family tree all filled out with names and dates, but what about the persons? What do you know about them? We can help you add to the family tree outline with some real facts about the people on it.

We have online databases that you can use free of charge such as Ancestry Library Edition, Heritage Quest Online, Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps for Illinois, the digitized Alton Telegraph dating back to 1836, the National Newspaper Archive, and many other resources.

Our historic Illinois Room contains nearly 5,000 volumes of genealogical and historical information including maps, family histories, county and state histories, city directories, and school yearbooks. You are welcome to come in and use our databases and our collection at no charge. Print copies are $.15 per page.

Using our online databases, we have helped many people locate records of family members they had either lost or had no knowledge of at all. We can help you learn of the resources available to assist you in uncovering the mysteries of your family history. Because of privacy issues, we cannot help locate individuals who are still living.

Some of our researchers become very emotional about the discoveries they make in our library. Over the years, we have had researchers learn of a sibling they didn't know they had, or of a "friend" they learn is really a distant relative.

We hope you will come in to see us and the wonderful research resources we have available at the Genealogy & Local History Library. Please call 433-2865 to set up an appointment with one of our trained staff members. We would love to work with you in discovering your roots.

A Brief History of Reading

Spoken language is a natural, biological form of human communication that is over 6 million years old. Reading is an invention that is only 6000 years old. There simply hasn't been enough evolutionary time, yet, for the human physiology of reading to be perfected.

Speech is Natural ... 6,000,000 Years.
Text is an Invention ... 6000 Years.

Aristotle, the world's first psychologist, understood this fundamental difference and relationship between spoken language and written language.

Spoken words are the symbols of mental experience, and written words are the symbols of spoken words. Aristotle—On Interpretation

Over history, humans have found methods to represent their spoken words with written symbols. The first writing—Sumerian logographs from 4000 BC—were simply pictures of objects and activities.

In 2000 BC, the Phoenicians developed the first methods to represent spoken language—an alphabet consisting entirely of consonants:

SPKNWRDSRTHSYMBLSFMNTLXPRNCNDWRT TNWRDSRTHSYMBLSFSPKNWRDS

2000 BC—Phoenician alphabet contained consonants only.

In 1000 BC, the first major upgrade occurred in the technology of representing language—the Greeks added vowels to the alphabet. This is essentially the same alphabet we use today—and it is considered one of humanity's greatest inventions.

SPOKENWORDSARETHESYMBOLSOFMENTAL EXPERIENCEANDWRITTENWORDSARETHE SYMBOLSOFSPOKENWORDS

1000 BC—the Greeks added vowels

About 1000 years later, in 200 BC, the next major upgrade in writing appeared: punctuation marks. Punctuation was first observed in Alexandrian manuscripts of plays written by Aristophanes.

SPOKENWORDSARETHESYMBOLSOFMENTAL EXPERIENCE,ANDWRITTENWORDSARETHESY MBOLSOFSPOKENWORDS.

200 BC—Aristophanes' plays add punctuation.

Yet another 1000 years passed before the next improvement in text, namely the invention of lower case characters by medieval scribes.

Spokenwordsarethesymbolsofmental experie nce,andwrittenwordsarethesymbolsofspoken words.

700 AD—lower case

About 1000 years ago, in 900 AD, the last major upgrade in text took place. the insertion of spaces between words. Also developed by medieval scribes, this invention made it possible, for the first time, for the vast majority of readers to be able to read silently. Prior to this, most readers had to read out loud in order to be able to read at all. The few who could read text silently without these spaces between the words, like Julius Caesar and St. Ambrose, were viewed as so extraordinary that this ability is specifically recorded in historical records.

Spoken words are the symbols of mental experience, and written words are the symbols of spoken words.

900 AD—spaces between words

For the past 1000 years, there has been essentially no change in the formatting of text, the technology of spatially symbolizing natural spoken language, whether one considers the handwritten scripts of 900 AD, the Gutenberg Bible of 1500 AD, or the eBook of 2000 AD.

2012 Summer Reading Program
Reading Is Sooooo Delicious

Young patrons of Hayner Public Library had a fabulous time at this year's Summer Reading Program, "Reading Is Sooooo Delicious!" The KidsSpace staff kept them busy with craft times, performers, movies, a puppet show, and stories

The program drew in more than 400 kids over six weeks. Each participant was rewarded each week with prizes for their diligent reading. At the end of the program participants were treated to a party held at the Alton High School Commons

This year's top readers: Birth through five years category, Joshua Cordes; six through eight-year-old category, Dayzia Gray; and nine through eleven-year-old category, Tristan Turner. The Evangelical School won the trophy for greatest student participation.

Congratulations to our winners and all our readers this year! Hope to see everyone again next year.

The 2012 Teen Summer Reading Program, "Reading Is Sooooo Delicious," was a great success! Teens were offered the opportunity to catch up on some deferred reading. Participants won great weekly prizes for their diligent reading and attended a weekly fun day at The Riverbender.com Community Center. I would like to congratulate this year's grand prize winner for the most hours read, Annie Ruckman. I would also like to thank all the participants. We hope to see everyone back for next year's reading program.

The Dreamshop Experience

This past year, the Alton School District was the recipient of funding from the 21st Century Community Learning Centers After-School Initiative. This federal program provides grant dollars to support academic enrichment and a broad array of additional services, including drug and violence prevention, counseling, art, music, recreation and technology programs, and character education. With this funding the Alton School District sponsored after-school programs that successfully increased both reading and math scores across the district. Community partners also participated and contributed to facilitate additional summer programs for students.

The Hayner Public Library District supported a multiday workshop for 4th, 5th, and 6th graders, titled the "Dreamshop Experience," conducted by author and motivational speaker Victor Pacini. This workshop taught students tools to develop their V.O.I.C.E: Vision fOr Inspiring & Creating Excellence. The program provided the students a unique experience where they were given the opportunity to develop a confident voice while respecting the voices of others.

Victor conducted 2- and 3-day summer workshops by grade level, working with students entering the 4th, 5th, or 6th grades. Through a series of high-energy, interactive activities involving art, writing, and speaking skills, the students were given the tools to increase confidence, self-esteem, respect, and responsibility.

Victor is a dynamic speaker and through his own music and personal experiences connected with students immediately. The kids were entirely involved and excited and didn't want the workshops to come to an end. The Hayner Public Library District contributed copies of Victor's book/journal "Your V.O.I.C.E" to each student to help them continue to build self-actualization skills throughout the year.

At the conclusion of the workshops, the students clustered around Victor so he could sign their books. Attending teachers were amazed by the high level of involvement, enthusiasm, and excitement Victor generated in each workshop. Staff from The Hayner Public Library District and the Alton Public School District were delighted to observe over 100 students achieving character skills and growth while having a great time!

For more information on Victor and his various programs for kids (all ages, through college) and adults, visit his Web site at www.victorpacini.com.

Grant Writer Position Added to Staff

Patty Morrissey is the new part-time Grant Writer/Researcher for Hayner. In her position, Patty seeks out funding for projects involving such areas as family literacy, digitization, and technology. The most current projects include procuring funding for the digitization of our collection of rare books and documents as well as moving the library forward with technology.

In the past, she has researched and written grants for Saints Peter and Paul School and for Marquette High School. Besides her work for Hayner, Patty teaches an online graduate class at Webster University in Media Studies and an occasional class at Lewis & Clark Community College. She holds an MA in Speech Communications from SIUE, a Master's in Online Teaching from the University of Illinois, and a BA in English from Rockhurst University. Patty lives in Alton with her husband, Tom, and their three children, Anna, Claire, and Tommy.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need

From October 1 through October 31, 2012, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery, as well as at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 15, 2012, our community will participate in the national "Wreaths Across America" ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery, at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Local school children, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves. The ceremony will involve a number of other participants and include musical accompaniment. It will last approximately one-half hour.

In 2011, through community financial donations, 540 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. The fund-raising goal for this year is $5400. Every $30 of contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

Every dollar you can donate helps ensure a wreath at every veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to "Wreaths Across America," P.O. Box 181, Alton IL 62002. For more information, or to volunteer, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-474-2005.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission of "Hope, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us.

3. The more you shop, the higher the contribution to The Hayner Public Library District. For every dollar you spend, Schnucks will contribute up to 3% of your purchase amount.

Thank you so much for participating in this program, and thank you to Schnucks Grocery Stores for supporting our community and the library through their participation in the eScrip program.

The cemetery tours will run every 15 minutes, Saturdays in October (October 6, 13, 20, 27) from 1:00 p.m. until 2:45 p.m. Each tour will take a little over an hour. The cost of the tour is $12 for adults, $6 for students through high school. Guests will receive an informative program guide and have a chance to chat with local historian Charlotte Stetson at the conclusion of the tours. In commemoration of the city's 175th Anniversary, Alton Mayor Tom Hoechst will kick off the 2012 Vintage Voices event, welcoming guests at the first tour at 1 p.m. on Saturday, October 6.

If you don't care to walk the cemetery, you can also enjoy "Tea with Vintage Voices" on Sunday, October 14, held in the lobby of the Alton Little Theater, 2450 North Henry St., Alton, from 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m. You will enjoy a non-walking tour, meeting and listening to the historical figures from the cemetery walks Reservations are required for the tea and can be made by calling 462-3205. 150 years ago people traveled on steamboats. Traveling theaters entertained Altonians when the boat came to town. Packets carried the mail and merchandise. Love and romance blossomed aboard cruises up and down the river. Read about the glory days of steamboat travel in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library on State Street in downtown Alton. The river is only a few blocks away from the library. Imagine yourself aboard the Robert E. Lee or the Natchez during the great river race as you view the Steamboat Historical Display. See photos and read histories of early paddle wheelers and of the local Eagle Packet Company. Our shelves have the 100th Anniversary Edition of the Waterways Journal and the Way's Packet Directories. Learn why one steamboat became stranded in a cornfield! And of course, the Hayner Newspaper Archives have the newspaper accounts of local people who owned, worked on, or played on the river boats.

American Families, Genealogical and Biographical

Publisher: American Historical Society, New York, 1932

Many families crossed the Atlantic from England to build a home and start a new life in the American colonies. American Families, a set of 16 tall, lavishly decorated, leather-bound books, explains the meanings of some family names in Europe, prints their family coats-of-arms, and tells the stories of these people and their descendants in America. Poetry, portraits, and entries from diaries bring their stories to life. The American Historical Society also published 46 volumes of similarly designed surname books. Each book is dedicated to a different immigrant family and their descendants in the United States. The only local library that has these books, Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library has indexed all surnames in the 62 volumes. We welcome you to browse these elegant books and look for your family names!

Ben Bedford
"Sketches of America"

Tuesday, October 2, 6:30 p.m.

Through his music, Ben Bedford delivers intriguing sketches of America, its individuals, their victories and their struggles. Poignant, but never sentimental, Bedford's portrait-like songs capture the vitality of his characters and draw the listener deep into the narratives. Bedford's songs tackle scenarios including homelessness, the plight of a Confederate soldier's wife during the American Civil War, the aerial triumphs of Amelia Earhart, the life of Jack London, and the murder of Emmett Till in 1955. Often drawing upon history, Bedford's songs have a strong sense of time and place. They are rich in sensory detail that allows the listener to hear, see, and feel each narrative.

In July of 2010, Bedford was named one of the "50 most significant folk singer–songwriters of the past 50 years" by Rich Warren of WFMT Chicago. His second album, Land of the Shadows, had three songs in the top ten of Folk-DJ charts and finished as the fourth most-played album of the year in 2009. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Tim Grimm

Tuesday, November 6, 6:30 p.m.

Tim is an award-winning songwriter and actor on stage and screen. He co-starred for two seasons on the NBC drama Reasonable Doubts and appeared in several films, including Clear and Present Danger with Harrison Ford. Also, look for Tim in the upcoming feature film At Any Price starring Dennis Quaid and Zac Efron, which has received critical reviews at Cannes and the Venice Film Festival. His recording The Back Fields was named "Best Americana Album" in the 2006 Just Plain Folks Music Awards in Los Angeles (the largest and most diverse music awards in the world). Named 2000's "Best Discovery in Roots/Americana Music" by the Chicago Sun-Times and "2004 Male Artist of the Year" by the Freeform American Roots DJs, his songs and performances have established him as a unique voice in Americana music. Each of his past five recordings has reached the top of the Folk or American Roots charts. Grimm walks the fine line between folk and country, while maintaining a strong footing in tradition. We hear the rural rumblings that have shaped his life, but we are also invited into a bigger picture, as evident in so much of his work. Critics searching for comparisons most often cite Johnny Cash, Woody Guthrie, and (Nebraska-era) Bruce Springsteen. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Hayner Does Have eBooks!!!

A Pew Research study (June 2012) found that 62 percent of the general population don't know whether their local library lends ebooks (75 percent of libraries do), and the picture doesn't get much better for library card holders: 58 percent don't know whether their library lends ebooks or not.

So, let's straighten this out once and for all.

We Have eBooks!!!

The Hayner Public Library District belongs to the Lewis and Clark Digital Consortium in partnership with OverDrive, the platform application for ebook and audiobook accessibility. The Lewis and Clark Digital Consortium includes about 30 Southern Illinois libraries, a number that is steadily growing. The consortium provides a pooled database of ebooks and audiobooks for member libraries.

Even for libraries, ebooks are expensive, generally as expensive as paper copies, and often more so. As of now, some publishers only allow a limited number of circulations per ebook before the ebook must be repurchased.

Belonging to a consortium allows libraries to benefit from resource sharing and joint collection development in the most cost-effective manner. As part of the consortium, Hayner patrons can browse a system-wide digital collection with significantly more title selections than individual libraries could afford. Patrons who belong to member libraries and have a valid library card can check out selected titles to download to their PC, Mac, or portable device.

Hayner Library customer service staff is trained in the ebook download process and can help you with your ebook devices. For one-on-one instruction, contact Jean in the Reference Department. A list of step-by-step instructions for downloading to a wide variety of ebook devices (Kindle, iPad/iPod/iPhone, Nook, and Sony) is included on Hayner's Web site at www.haynerlibrary.org.

If you would like to sign up for the next Hayner ebook class, tentatively scheduled for the beginning of the year, call 1-800-613-3163, and you will be contacted on a first-come, first-served basis. Dates for the winter classes will be posted on Hayner's Web site at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Continuing Lovejoy's Mission

Reader, do you know the heart of a prisoner?
Are you a friend of convicts?
—George Thompson

This year, The Hayner Public Library District is memorializing the 175th anniversary of Elijah P. Lovejoy's murder with a new display at the Genealogy & Local History Library. In addition to many new and old items related to Lovejoy, the library has quite a few hidden gems written or published by the great activists with whom he collaborated. One such publication is the descriptively titled Prison life and reflections, or, A narrative of the arrest, trial, conviction, imprisonment, treatment, observations, reflections, and deliverance of Work, Burr, and Thompson, who suffered an unjust and cruel imprisonment in Missouri Penitentiary, for attempting to aid some slaves to liberty.

Written by George Thompson during his time as a prisoner, Prison life and reflections describes the hardships faced by Thompson, Alanson Work, and James E. Burr after they were arrested for attempting to help five slaves escape into the free state of Illinois.

In October 1837, Elijah Lovejoy and Edward Beecher (brother of Uncle Tom's Cabin author Harriet Beecher Stowe) held the Illinois Anti-Slavery Convention at the Upper Alton Presbyterian Church and at Thaddeus Hurlbut's Rock House. George Thompson and Alanson Work were present at the Convention, and both men admired Lovejoy. (Work went so far as to name his son Edwin Lovejoy Work.) Pro-slavery rioters murdered Lovejoy in Alton less than a month later, on November 7, 1837, for printing an anti-slavery newspaper, the Alton Observer. This martyrdom inspired many other abolitionists to action, Thompson, Work, and James Burr among them.

Thompson, Work, and Burr gained notoriety when they were arrested at gunpoint near the town of Palmyra, Missouri, on July 12, 1841, for aiding in the slave escape attempt. The escape had been planned in advance, but the slaves themselves betrayed Thompson, Work, and Burr to their masters. It is still unclear whether they voluntarily told of the escape plan or had it whipped out of them, but Thompson believed that the slaves likely thought the three men were kidnappers instead of abolitionists. The slaves came to see the men at the Palmyra prison, and Thompson states that "they looked very much ashamed, and seemed to regret what they did, since they have ascertained that we were friends, and wished to do them good."

At the time of their arrest, Burr and Thompson were studying for the ministry at the Mission Institute, near Quincy, Illinois. All three men were deeply religious. Thompson commented in a letter, > Lovejoy's death probably did more good than he could have done by his life. I have expected that there must be more sacrifices upon the altar of slavery, before it would come to an end, and if God sees fit to select one, so unworthy of the honor as myself, to suffer or die in this cause, I say, Amen.

The trio stayed shackled in their cell for the 58 days between their arrest and trial. Thompson was the unofficial secretary of the group. He mentions often that he has to write letters on the margins of newspapers and keep his journal on scraps of old letters. Friends brought the men paper, but the sheriff and guards would not give it to them. During the trial, a mob built a gallows outside the courthouse and planned to hang the men if they were acquitted. Ultimately, the three were sentenced to 12 years imprisonment for larceny of slaves, though they had broken no written Missouri laws. One of the jurors who convicted the three was John M. Clemens, father of Mark Twain.

Though Thompson, Work, and Burr were sent to the Missouri Penitentiary, they arrived with glowing letters of introduction. Thompson tells his readers,

> The jailer . . . wrote a letter to the Warden, commending our good conduct while with him, approving of our character, etc. The Judge also wrote to the Warden, stating that he believed us honest, conscientious men, who meant to do right in what we did—and he believed if we were at liberty, would do the same again. He thought we should not be treated as common felons, as other prisoners, but more leniently, etc.

The men remained behind bars for several years, ministering to sick prisoners and holding religious services, until they were finally pardoned separately by the governor of Missouri. By then, they had been jailed for approximately 3½ years (Work), 4½ years (Burr), and almost 5 years (Thompson, who was considered the most radical and outspoken). Work was pardoned on the condition that he travel back to his home state of Connecticut and never return. The Missouri statute that made it illegal to abduct, attempt to abduct, or entice slaves to freedom was only signed into law in 1845.

An historical note: there was another 19th-century abolitionist named George (Donisthorpe) Thompson. He was born in Liverpool, England, in 1804 and was a speaker and activist in the United States. The George Thompson who was imprisoned in the Missouri Penitentiary was born in New Jersey in 1817 and grew up in Ohio.

A Lovejoy Treasure Hunt

Because I became Museum Display Coordinator on the eve of the 175th anniversary of Elijah P. Lovejoy's death, I knew almost as soon as I started the job that he would be the topic of my first large display. Then it was time to start actually finding things to exhibit.

Most of the items we currently have on display have been borrowed from other museums or individuals. Hayner encourages donations and hopes to continue building its own collection of artifacts, but it does not yet possess enough items to create displays straight from its own storerooms. Fortunately for me, the outside community is rich in pieces of history.

I have to plan what I might be looking for generally, and then follow the trail to exhibit-worthy items. I've visited Lovejoy's grave and monument at the Alton Cemetery (originally called the Grandview Cemetery), toured the Alton Museum of History and Art, looked at the printing press fragment at the Telegraph's office, scoured the Missouri History Museum's archives, talked to some fabulous local historians, read numerous Lovejoy biographies, and even contacted the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia.

More than once, I've found myself making up artifacts that I think would be interesting to display, and then realizing that what I'm looking for may not have ever existed. For instance, I would love a pamphlet from one of the revivals of Reverend David Nelson, whose speeches inspired Lovejoy to attend seminary, or a model of the steamboat Missouri Fulton, which brought Lovejoy's printing press across the river to Alton. Alas, no luck on either of those so far.

Fortunately, I have also found some fascinating (real) items. One of these is a book written by George Thompson, called Prison life and reflections, which you can read more about in another section of this newsletter. I also realized that a Bible belonging to Enoch Long had been donated to the Hayner Library a few years ago. Long was by Lovejoy's side in the Godfrey & Gilman Warehouse when Lovejoy was killed. The Bible, from 1834, is in poor shape but includes handwritten notes of family births, marriages, and deaths.

I've also searched the Internet for mentions of Lovejoy and found a trove of digitized sources. Texas Tech, for example, has a huge collection of correspondence, sermons, lectures, newspapers, news clippings, and family memorabilia created by, or related to, Lovejoy and his family. It is available at http://swco.ttu.edu/location/Manuscripts/lovejoy/Lovejoy_Elijah_Guide.html.

One of my favorite surprises I've come across online is a graphic novel, The Death of Elijah Lovejoy, written and drawn by Noah Van Sciver. Van Sciver, an artist whose work has appeared in Mad magazine, takes some liberties with the dialogue and order of events during the riot that claimed Lovejoy's life, but the basic facts are accurate, and the drawing is wonderful. I contacted Van Sciver to ask about his work, and this was his response:

> I decided to do that comic to bring the Lovejoy story into the comics world. Most of the people who have bought that comic have told me that they didn't know about Elijah until then. Or that they had forgotten about him.
> It was important to do that comic as well because as the future of print seem[s] uncertain, I thought it would be interesting to tell a story about the early days of it, and I wanted to explore a piece of our country's early struggle for freedom of the press. Originally, it was going to be included in a graphic novel I recently completed about Abraham Lincoln's life…, but realized it would be most effective on its own.
> Noah

It has been a pleasure researching Elijah Lovejoy's life, and I hope that you'll come see the display at the Genealogy & Local History Library.

"Hand-Made Precision"

Do you know the name J. Q. Cummings? No? Are you aware of what he created in the basement of his home in 1944? Not sure about that either? This extraordinarily talented man researched, drew, and published what would be the pioneer in the plat book world! All by himself! This project began as a way to map farms and rural areas, by counties, listing waterways and owners of plots of land.

Now that you know the name of Cummings, and why his company has been famous for over 70 years, let me tell you why it matters at the Genealogy & Local History Library. I have personally used these plat maps to find interesting data on names and places. We have older plats, some in hardback collections and CD-ROMs, of Madison and surrounding counties. The new acquisition is the Farm Plat Book of Madison County 1950.

Yes, it is difficult to make a farm plat book sound interesting. But just take a look at the thing, if only for the advertisements (I have a favorite ad that makes me chuckle.) But what I really find interesting are the plats themselves. With each page, the viewer gets a clear-cut, easy view of each township and the surrounding lands. Each plat meets up with the next township, clearly and perfectly.

But again, why even look for this information? Let me tell you an experience I had with one of these plats. Several moons ago, an out-of-state couple (who moved to the U.S. from Europe) came to visit our library. They were looking for information on a family member who may have been a landowner on the outskirts of Alton. A family member had told them that all the information to be found was already found and their search would be fruitless.

After tracing family names/residences/ship logs back a ways, I pulled out a plat map of 1892. In the area between Upper Alton and Fosterburg, we found not only this relative's name on a decent-sized plot of land, but also another family member nearby! We did more research to make sure this was the same person (one always needs to double- and triple-check) and discovered that it was the woman's relative. The couple was elated.

All this from an old plat book!

Come visit the Genealogy & Local History Library. Maybe you can find something special in the plat books as well.

The Hayner Public Library District

Serving Alton, Godfrey & Foster Township Winter 2013 Vol. XXI, No. 4

How did Hayner become a library district? What is a Library System? Why should I care?

To answer these questions, a brief history:
The first Alton library was founded in 1853 and operated out of a room in Alton's original City Hall Building. It was funded through membership fees ($2 per year), augmented by donations and fund-raising benefits.

The library struggled financially over the years, but continued to grow its collection and patron base, and in 1890, local entrepreneur John E. Hayner announced he would bear the entire cost of building a new library as a memorial to his late wife, Jenny D. Hayner. The beautiful new library was constructed on the corner of State and 4th Streets and opened to the public in 1891 as the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library, also known as the Hayner Memorial Free Library.

The library grew and was embraced by the community but as a free library was supported only through fines, benefits, and occasional gifts. On several occasions the library had to shut down completely to conserve funds However, in 1952, the visionary members of the Hayner Library Association Board proposed the gift of the Hayner Memorial Library to the city of Alton to be maintained thereafter by the city as a public library. The Alton city council voted unanimously to accept the gift, establish a city library board, and fund public library services from municipal taxes.

By the 1950s, a series of conflicts between the library board and city government arose over funding and operating procedures. Issues were compounded by extremely high staff turnover due to poor salaries and city residency requirements, as well as by an increasingly severe lack of space. The board and city government were at extreme odds regarding improvements to and/or expansion of the current library facilities.

In 1970, a new state statute was passed that would allow the board to ask voters to approve the transfer of the library from city control to an independent self-governing library district with its own elected board of trustees and its own tax levy. In 1972, Alton voters approved the referendum to establish the independent Hayner Public Library District.

There are many great advantages to forming a library district. They include the following:
- Funding is secured directly from library users rather than competing with other city or county departments.
- Funding is relatively stable—based on property taxes, not sales taxes
- Because funding is more stable, so is the consistency of the planning process.
- Autonomy, greater independence in decision making, greater focus on library services, and greater freedom from political infighting are made possible. Budget and policy decisions are based on patron needs for library services without influence from County political priorities.
- A single-purpose district has greater taxpayer accountability and organizational focus.
- Unspent dollars can be retained for future years. No "use it or lose it."
- Generally speaking, library districts tend to be better funded than other public libraries.

As an independent library district, Hayner could now expand its service boundaries and today encompasses Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township.

As part of the system:
Prior to 2010, The Hayner Public Library District also participated as a member of the Lewis and Clark Library System. Established under the Illinois Library Systems Act in 1965, the function of a library system was to act as a hub of technology and resources for all libraries to share. A library system:

- Facilitates excellence in library services by providing consulting services to member libraries. It brings member libraries together to share best practices.

- Supports automated catalog sharing between member libraries, which makes the collections of Illinois libraries accessible online and available for sharing between member library patrons.
- Provides physical delivery of library materials to member libraries.
- Manages sharing of materials between libraries through Interlibrary Loan and Reciprocal Borrowing programs. These programs allow library patron access to materials held across all Illinois libraries as well as nationwide
- Saves tax dollars by providing cost-effective cooperative services to reduce duplicative costs and by negotiating discounts.
- Facilitates communication among library workers and with the general public regarding the value of libraries today and tomorrow.

Suppose you look up a book in Hayner's online catalogue. You will get a listing back of all the system libraries that have a copy of the item you want. If Hayner doesn't have the item or it is checked out, you can order from any of the other holding libraries that are members of the system. If it is an item that cannot be located within our system libraries, a Hayner librarian can use the programs of Interlibrary Loan or Reciprocal Borrowing to get your item from anywhere in the state or throughout the U.S. The library system manages the technologies and delivery functions that allow this sharing of resources. So you can request an item, and even if Hayner doesn't own it, it can be in your hands in just a couple of days.

And It Gets Better....

The Lewis and Clark Library System had 131 member libraries spread across 11 Illinois state counties. There were eight additional systems across the state of Illinois. In order to continue to offer services in the most effective and sustainable way, the nine Illinois library systems were encouraged by the state to embark on a restructuring effort.

In 2010, five library systems in the northern part of Illinois merged into one, the Reaching Across Illinois Library System (RAILS). In central and southern Illinois, four library systems (including the Lewis and Clark Library System) announced their plan to merge into the single Illinois Heartland Library System (IHLS). The four Library system staffs and technology centers began consolidation and completed the conversion process in July 2012.

The Illinois Heartland Library System, of which Hayner is a member, now includes 585 member libraries and covers 28,141 square miles in the southern half of Illinois. Patrons in the IHLS will have access to almost 10 million books, DVDs, CDs, and magazines from any other library in the system. The online public catalog will be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Illinois Heartland Library System is now the largest library consortium in the country and, as a single system, will provide significant cost savings to the state. The transition has been seamless, thanks to the hard work and careful planning of the four former library systems' staffs.

The Hayner Public Library District is committed to providing you the information and materials you need as quickly and easily as possible. Being a member of the Illinois Heartland Library System is a key component in providing you full service and tremendous selection within the increasing budgetary constraints of our state's fiscal position.

Thank You, Generous Patrons!

During the month of October, all fines were waived for late items borrowed from The Hayner Public Library District, with the contribution of a nonperishable food item. As a result, we collected over 1,300 items, which have been donated to the Alton Crisis Food Center. Thank you to all who participated in this annual event.

March is Women's History Month, which encourages us to recognize the history of an extremely important women's organization in our community. I recently met with Margarette Trushel, Executive Director of the Oasis Women's Center in Alton. Margarette is a founding member of the Center, was one of the drivers of its incorporation in 1976, and helped facilitate the first opening of the shelter, which has been in operation since 1978.

The Oasis Women's Center offers shelter to women (and their children) suffering from domestic violence. Domestic violence is the number one reason for police calls in Madison County, and the county averages 1,300 Orders of Protection annually, based on domestic violence incidents.

Prior to the Center's inception in 1976, domestic violence was regarded as a private family matter. Women were most often considered causes rather than victims of violence. They were terrified to speak about it and unaware of any services to help them. The original mission for Oasis in 1976 was to raise community awareness of the high level of incidents of domestic violence, encourage recognition of domestic violence as a crime, and highlight the serious harm inflicted on women and their families. The Center started out in offices at Elm Street Presbyterian Church, focusing specifically on education for community service organizations and individuals, and fund-raising.

Oasis was originally staffed only by volunteers, many from local hospitals, and social service agencies, which identified the high number of battered women needing support, shelter and services. The first board president was volunteer Barbara Shaw of Alton. Barbara has recently retired as the Director of The Illinois Violence Prevention Authority.

The Center opened able to offer "eats & sheets"—a place for women and their children to find refuge and a hot meal. Today, the Center has expanded to four service locations: the shelter in Alton; an office in Jerseyville to serve Greene, Calhoun, and Jersey counties; an Order of Protection office in the Madison County courthouse (which they share with Land Of Lincoln Legal Aid) and contract services with the Public Health Department in Macoupin County.

The Alton shelter offers safe haven for up to eight women and their children at any one time. The average stay is 29 days per individual or family. During this time women are aided in finding a job, a place to live, and child-care services.

When they first come to the shelter, the women are also offered counseling and support by Oasis staff and assistance to obtain an Order of Protection. An Order of Protection protects the victim by prohibiting contact by the abusive party at the victim's residence, whether at the shelter or her home. An Order of Protection is police enforced, which means that women do not have to first go to court to protect themselves from the physical presence of their abusers. Police are empowered to arrest abusers on the spot when called in under an Order of Protection.

Margarette served, in 1986, as the Public Policy Chair on the Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence. The group caused the state to pass the Illinois Domestic Violence Act, a 98-page law addressing domestic violence and identifying the active role of the police and the courts to aid violence victims. This act was responsible for creating the Order of Protection, which has been critically important in providing violence victims the first steps to extract themselves from the violent situation.

Violence can be present in the home in multiple forms, including husband against wife, children beating parent, parents beating children, wife against husband. Oasis offers services to all victims of domestic violence, though the majority of battered victims in Illinois are married white women.

A significant challenge for Oasis staff was in providing training to schools, hospitals, churches, and police in recognizing and assisting domestic violence victims. As a result of Alton Memorial's concern for victims they incorporated the universal screening technique in the admitting procedures for incoming patients. This screening requires the hospital to ask a number of questions including: "Do you feel safe at home?" and "Is anyone hurting you?"

Through the 3rd Judicial Circuit Family Violence Prevention Council, training sessions are presented every year, open to all community individuals and organizations, to aid in recognizing domestic violence and understanding the services available, so that violence does not have to be a way of life in our communities.

Today, Oasis has 13 full-time employees and six part-time employees. In addition to an excellent staff, Margarette is emphatic that from day one, Oasis's success has been the result of the hard work of generous and caring community volunteers. The Caravan Resale Shop, located at 112 East Broadway, Alton, provides an important revenue stream to the Oasis Center. Completely staffed by volunteers, the shop is open every day except Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.. Oasis funding also is provided through individuals, the United Way, state and federal grants, an annual Friends campaign, and fund-raising by local civic groups.

The shelter in Alton provides women a place to go when they have nowhere to turn. Margarette reports that so often she hears at the shelter, "This is the first time I've felt safe to sleep in years." She reminds us that the question is not "Why do women stay?" but rather "How can we help them get out safely and help them stay out?" and "What are we doing as a community to help women and families in need?"

For more information on Oasis and/or its volunteer opportunities, call the Center at 465-1978. Volunteers are always welcome in positions on committees, projects, and the staff of the Caravan shop. For information about the Caravan Resale Shop, call 462-6434.

Congratulations Riverbender.com Community Center

The Hayner Public Library District and the Riverbender.com Community Center have enjoyed a very successful partnership since the Center's inception. Hayner Library maintains a satellite library location on the second floor of the Community Center, staffed by Hayner employees. In this library, students can study, do homework, get tutoring help, or just relax comfortably. Hayner has also held many of its teen events at the Community Center, including the Teen Summer Read party, monthly teen movie times, teen advisory meetings, a teen book club, and Project Next Generation classes.

The Center's mission statement best defines its vital role in our community:

"The Riverbender.com Community Center will strive to provide for all teens a safe, fun, and affordable establishment free of alcohol, drugs, and tobacco.

The Riverbender.com Community Center will seek to maintain an environment in which all teens feel welcome and are free to have fun and be themselves. It will be a place where teens are free from negative peer pressure, intimidation, and mean-spirited comments and actions."

The Center received great news in early September. The following was posted by Riverbender.com: "On September 7, 2012, The Riverbender.com Community Center was made the beneficiary of its largest donation to date of nearly $50,000."

John Hentrich and Sharon Windham, Hayner Library Teen and Youth Services Manager

The Center is one of sixteen charities that will split the proceeds of almost $750,000 from a class action lawsuit award.

"The funds were redirected from the unclaimed portion of the award where members of the class could not be readily identified. Brad Lakin, a founding member of SL Chapman LLC, worked to redirect these non-allocated funds to worthwhile causes, all while waiving their attorney's fees and expenses for the six months of legal work required to accomplish this task."

"Lakin said, 'We are truly excited about so many great local charities benefiting from this settlement. We worked hard with Hilton and Judge Robert LeChien to make sure worthwhile organizations received these funds.'

"Michelle Pawloski, Director of Operations for the Center, beamed, 'This gift could not come at a better time. With classes in session again and with enrollment in our after-school program up from last year, our needs are greater than ever.'

"The Riverbender.com Community Center survives on contributions from individuals and local businesses. Although the community has been quite generous in its donations, additional support such as this award is needed to keep the lights on and the bills paid.

"'We are very grateful to Brad Lakin and his brother Kris for both the generosity of this gift, as well as their creative efforts to see to it that our mission continues,' said John Hentrich, Executive Director of the Center. 'It's so rewarding to see others in the community pitching in with what we're doing to help young people in our community.'"

The Hayner Public Library District congratulates the Riverbender.com Community Center on this well-deserved endowment. Congratulations and thanks to John Hentrich and all the staff for their hard work and dedication to supporting the youth of our community.

Alton Schools Recognize Hayner's Executive Director

This past summer, The Hayner Public Library District partnered with the Alton School District to sponsor a Dream Shop program to help increase kids' self-esteem and leadership skills. In recognition of the success of this program and past Hayner initiatives, such as Mission Recognition (a program that recognized kids for "doing the right thing"), Executive Director Jeff Owen was presented with an award plaque upon which was engraved, "The Alton School District would like to express our deepest gratitude to Jeffrey Owen for your ongoing innovation and dedication in support of our students and staff, October 16, 2012." Mr. Owen received the award at the October 2012 City Council meeting.

Hayner Goes Eco-Friendly

The Hayner Public Library District is going eco-friendly. In the past, when you visited any of the three library locations, you were offered a plastic bag to carry your library materials. These bags were made of a very thick-grade plastic to be strong enough to hold multiple library items. The last several times the library has had to restock the bags, there have been conversations about whether they were an expense the library needed to keep incurring. Both the cost of the bags and the shipping and handling continue to increase substantially. We have decided that now is the time to "go green." We will no longer offer you plastic bags to hold your library materials. Starting in early 2013, we will offer woven bags for purchase. The purchase price will be $.75. The bags are strong and roomy and will serve a myriad of purposes for you. We hope you will embrace this change. The rising cost of providing plastic bags is becoming prohibitive, and the new bags are certainly much friendlier to the environment.

Book Review:
Henry Horner and His Burden of Tragedy
by Thomas B. Littlewood

"Martyr to the cause of good government"

We have the unfortunate luck of remembering what has come before. "History repeats itself" is a well-known phrase, especially in today's political landscape. Controversies and issues have a way of repeating when those involved in the earlier occurrences are long gone and forgotten. Such is the case with this book. Eighty years have passed; yet the same struggles are apparent.

In the first chapter in Littlewood's book on the governorship of Henry Horner, the reader gets a sense of Illinois's problems during the Great Depression. Riots, marches, attacks on the rich and the poor could have been copied and pasted to form today's headlines.

Much of the rhetoric and ideas from our 28th governor (1933–1940) are just as controversial today as they were in the late 1930s and early 1940s. He fought leaders in both parties, constantly butted heads against party machines, and sided with the poor, especially those downstate.

Horner was born into financial privilege but was also an idealist. He did not take his upbringing for granted and wanted the poor and unfortunate to feel and be successful, much to the chagrin of others of his standing.

Littlewood is adept at describing Horner's feelings toward the less-fortunate and his empathy with those who had not been raised in the same level of comfort he had enjoyed. This is not to say that Horner didn't have his faults. He may seem to some to have been a hypocrite or flip-flopper, not consistent with his ideas and sometimes behaving in the same way as those he was constantly fighting in the political machine.

Just a few of the many interesting notes about Governor Horner:

He was eight years old when his mother took him to safety when the Haymarket Riot started.
He felt closer to his grandmother and mother than to anyone else.
He was the first Jewish governor of Illinois.
Before getting deeply into politics, he made friends with many prominent Republicans at the Standard Club, the German Jewish social club. These friendships lasted many years and worked in his favor when he became governor, in the Democratic Party.

He was a huge fan of Abraham Lincoln. He collected books and anything else he could find concerning Lincoln.

He modeled his ideas about politics and life itself on Lincoln. Horner said of Lincoln, "He was never willing to sacrifice basic principles of justice for self-advancement. All through his grueling experiences in private and public life, he never lost sight of the human equation. . . .His sympathy extended even unto those to whom a harsh fate made it his duty to oppose."

Littlewood holds the reader's attention with fine detail and down-to-earth storytelling. This is an Illinois political history book to be sure, but more importantly, the story of a lonely man who found the strength to fight for what he believed to be for the betterment of those for whom no one spoke.

A final word from Governor Horner: "Hold your head high, remember who you are, have pride in your ancestry, but be humble so you can help others." Great words to live by from a great new book in the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Come visit us at 401 State Street! Sit in a comfy chair by our fireplace and read about one of our lesser-known governors.

—Derek Alford

View Cemetery Records

The Hayner Library of Genealogy & Local History continues to grow its rich offering of historical research material.

Two patrons, Bette Flactiff and Sue
Williams, have spent hours and hours photographing grave markers in cemeteries throughout Madison, Jersey, and Greene counties. So far, they have photographed and archived over 19,000 images of gravestones. The ladies have generously gifted The Hayner Public Library District with the fruits of their labors.

This winter, patrons will be able to electronically access through the Hayner Library Web site the cemetery records and images of gravestones for the following cemeteries: Alton City Cemetery (including the Mausoleum), St. Joseph Cemetery /Madison County, Godfrey Cemetery/ Madison County, Melville Cemetery/ Madison County, Thompson Cemetery/Green County, Salem Baptist Cemetery/Madison County, Bott Cemetery/Jersey County, Cooper Cemetery/Madison County, Zion Lutheran Cemetery/Madison County, and Cummings Cemetery/Jersey County.

The records also identify all military personnel in their respective cemeteries. A patron will be able to access individual records by county, cemetery, and/or individual name.

This is a great resource for historians and genealogists who want to "visit" the resting places of their ancestors. It is also a wonderful resource for posterity, since Bette and Sue have found that about 50 tombstones per year are lost to pollution, weather, or vandalism.

Bette and Sue are continuing their cataloging of various area cemeteries and anticipate adding additional cemeteries to the Hayner collection in the future. The Hayner Public Library District thanks Bette and Sue so much for this very significant addition to our collections.

Lincoln-Douglas Debate Dress on Display

On October 16, 1868, Kate Foote Marsh attended the seventh and final senatorial debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas. Kate, who lived her whole life in Alton, Ill., knew that this was a pivotal moment in history. She saved the colorful floral striped dress she wore to the debate and passed it on to her son. He wrote a note describing the dress's importance and attached it to the collar before passing it on to his daughter, Ruth, when he died in 1985 at the age of 102. It is now in the possession of Ruth's daughter, Mary Jane Chapman.

Mary Jane grew up hearing the story of this dress but wanted to find proof that her great-grandmother truly wore it at the Lincoln-Douglas debate. She called Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library and made an appointment to come in and get help with research. The staff gathered a stack of relevant books for Mary Jane. She opened the book on the top of the stack and there, on page 36 of Alton: A Pictorial History, by Charlotte Stetson, was a picture of the dress. Even in black and white, the dress's pattern is distinctive enough that Mary Jane recognized it instantly. Mary Jane later realized that she actually already owned Stetson's book, so the evidence was on a bookshelf at her house, and she didn't even know it.

The picture in Stetson's book is a photo of the painting Last of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates by George I. Parrish. It was presented to the City of Alton by Illinois Bell on May 13, 1970, and is still on display at Alton City Hall. The shawl and bonnet depicted in the painting no longer exist (or may have been artistic embellishments), but the dress itself is in surprisingly good condition. There are no obvious tears or stains. The colors may have faded slightly, but the pinks, greens, and other bright hues still shine.

The dress complements our current Lincoln exhibit and will be on display in the Genealogy & Local History Library from mid-December through mid-February.

Hayner Moves to New Circulation Software Platform

In our last newsletter, you read about the merger of the Lewis & Clark Library System (of which The Hayner Public Library District is a member) and three other library systems in southern Illinois into one system known as Illinois Heartland Library System (IHLS). A library system stores libraries' item and patron records in a shared database. This shared database facilitates interlibrary loans and allows Hayner patrons to use their library cards at the other libraries in the system.

The newly merged IHLS system now encompasses 427 libraries throughout the southern half of Illinois. This translates to patron online availability of over 10 million items in the combined collection database, which you can access, quickly and easily. The IHLS is the largest library automation consortium in the country.

To accommodate this consolidation of library systems, all member libraries, including The Hayner Public Library District, will be using new circulation software. The conversion process to the new software system, known as Polaris, will start on April 1 and be completed on April 9, 2013. During that period, you will still be able to check out and return books from the Hayner Library collection, but new library cards will not be issued. Patrons can access the libraries' public computers, databases, and ebooks without service interruption.

Patron Holds on the items you've requested that are unfulfilled will have been canceled after March 22. This is a necessary step of the software conversion, and we apologize for any inconvenience. Patron holds may be resubmitted after April 9.

For those patrons who have enabled the Reading History function, these records also will not be available after the conversion to Polaris (3/30). You can print your reading history or export it to a hard drive or flash drive for your records prior to 3/30/13. The reading history function can be re-enabled upon the completed conversion.

Interlibrary Loan Requests (requests for books from other libraries) will not be accommodated between March 30 and April 8. Greatly expanded interlibrary loan service will be available following completion of the conversion on April 9th.

The OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog) terminals that you use to look up and request books will look different, but you will find the new screens easy to use, and they will provide the same functionality as the old terminals, with access to the collections of a much larger number of participating libraries. You also will still be able to access the OPAC from the Hayner Library Web site.

Staff training on the use of the Polaris system will have been completed prior to April 1, but we ask your patience as we become accustomed to our newly expanded library system software.

Further detailed information regarding the conversion is available at any library location or on our Web site, www.haynerlibrary.org.

The Hayner Public Library District staff is excited about the functionality of the new system and the incredible breadth of resources and materials that will be available to our patrons. Again, we appreciate your patience as we move forward to the new Polaris automation platform.

Western Military Academy on Parade

Does this sound familiar?

"Who is the guy who plays the fancy 'boogie-woogie' in the assembly hall?"

"Monticello College is opening this week. That means increased telephone business!"

If it does, then maybe you attended Western Military Academy—or knew someone who did.

Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library has a disk compiled by C. B. Jackson of the Western Military Academy Shrapnel from August 17, 1944, to May 24, 1945. The above quotes are taken from the "Bits of Shrapnel" section of the September 23, 1944, issue.

Read the news of classes, school sports, bios of seniors, tales of students in their free time, activities of faculty and staff, and news about alumnae, including the service of some alumnae and faculty in WWII. You can also peruse bound volumes of the Shrapnel in the library. These books include issues from September 1945 to May 1946 and from September 1947 to May 1948.

The library also has some issues of the Western Military Academy Recall on the shelves. History buffs will enjoy the catalogues of the Academy. They can also view the Academy memorabilia, photos, and artifacts, which bring this important part of Alton's history to life.

Find this wonderful Western Military Academy collection in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street in Alton.

Two-Wheeled Mystery

Most of us know local celebrities such as Elijah Lovejoy, Miles Davis, or Robert Wadlow, but what about Will Sachtleben, who lived in Alton as a boy in the late 1800s on the corner of Seventh and Langdon?

The Lost Cyclist: The Epic Tale of an American Adventurer and His Mysterious Disappearance, by David V. Herlihy, is part of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library's permanent collection, available to read while sitting in a comfy chair next to the inviting fireplace.

The true story begins in the pressroom of Paul Cousley at the Alton Evening Telegraph in 1952 when a man walked in who had been famous fifty years earlier for his three-year around-the-world trip on a bicycle. Mr. Cousley recognized him immediately. This man, Will Sachtleben, along with a friend, made an amazing fifteen-thousand-mile journey in 1893. Several years after his world tour, Sachtleben became famous for his dangerous search for another around-the world bicyclist named Frank G. Lenz. Lenz had gone missing in eastern Turkey. Herlihy tells Lenz's story and that of Sachtleben's journey to solve the mystery of Lenz's disappearance and subsequently bring about justice

Spanning the late 1880s to the early 20th century, this book reads quickly and keeps you on the edge of your seat. Herlihy has done his research. Not only does the reader get a sense of the excitement of the adventure, one also learns of the politics of the time, in this country and especially abroad. It is hard to imagine the nerve it would take to make an around-the-world bicycle tour in an age devoid of our technology and creature comforts, much less to undertake a second journey into a dangerous land where outsiders were suspect.

It can't be easy writing factual history and making it come alive as Herlihy does. The story of the twists and turns of the travels and the frustrations of all the players in this adventure/mystery are riveting. This book is a must-read for adventure fans and history fans alike.

Visit the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street, and spend some time reading the fascinating story of one of our rarely talked-about early local celebrities.

Don't Miss This Traveling Exhibit!

During the month of May, 2013, The Hayner Public Library District will host a traveling exhibit on loan from the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library in Springfield, Ill. Co-sponsored by the Looking for Lincoln Heritage Coalition, the exhibit, "To Kill and to Heal: Weapons and Medicine of the Civil War," also commemorates the 150th anniversary of the Civil War.

The deadliest weapon of the Civil War was the one that nobody could see, killing two soldiers for every one felled by gunfire. The extraordinary casualties caused by that invisible killer, disease; the conventional weapons used to create slaughter on an unprecedented scale; the horrific injuries suffered on the battlefield ; and the heroic efforts of medical personnel to treat soldiers on both sides are described in the "To Kill and to Heal" exhibit.

The exhibit kiosk features selected original images from the larger exhibit of the same name at the Presidential Museum. The experiences of actual soldiers are prevalent in the exhibit, including quotes and photographs, lending a human touch to the horror of war.

View this fascinating trip back in history during the month of May in the public space of Alton Square Mall, outside Hayner Library and across from J.C. Penney.

Images of Midwestern Architecture

Downstate Illinois

Author: Ronald E. Schmitt

Travelers in Illinois can find unexpected architectural gems tucked away in little towns, hidden in the countryside, or shining for all to see in the cities. Homes, churches, businesses, universities, libraries, old barns, covered bridges, even unexpected sculptures delight the eye.

This book is a must-read for all architecture buffs. Author Ronald E. Schmitt begins with landmarks in his hometown of Alton, Illinois. He then guides the reader on an architectural photo history tour of everything interesting he could find south of I-80 in Illinois. He grouped his discoveries by town in the table of contents, which makes it easy for the reader to look for a certain place. Some buildings are now gone, some are still standing, and some even have tours for the lucky investigator! Don't be surprised if browsing this book gives you ideas for some fun day trips this summer! ## Horse Prairie Cemetery, Sesser, Illinois: Tombstone Inscriptions and Family Records

Clara Crocker Brown and Ronald R. Stockton

The authors of this book have written a tribute to the people interred in this pastoral cemetery in the 1800s and 1900s. Clara Crocker Brown spent countless hours researching and recording information about family members. She searched for all information available about those buried with unmarked stones. The index of burials in the back shows the names of families who have lived near what is now Sesser in Franklin County, Illinois.

Ronald Stockton recorded poems and expressions written in honor of loved ones who had passed on. He also analyzed the mortality patterns shown by the burials in Horse Prairie. His research shows that illness and death were constant, unwanted companions of the early Illinois settlers; however, longer lifespans and a decline in deaths among the young occurred as sanitation and health practices improved.

The efforts of these two authors are noteworthy. They have given us a glimpse into the lives of the people who settled Horse Prairie and their descendants who continued to raise families in this quiet, country area of Southern Illinois.

Horse Prairie Cemetery is located in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library.

Blueprints from J.J. Wuellner Construction, Inc.

J.J. Wuellner Construction, Inc. is closing its doors after 110 years, and Augie Wuellner contacted the Genealogy & Local History Library about donating construction plans, blueprints, and photographs that might be of interest to library patrons. Many plans are of local buildings, but the company worked on projects all over the region. We took everything related to the Alton area and have also been able to share relevant plans and photographs with Principia College, Blackburn College, Lindenwood University, Wood River Refinery Museum, and the Jersey County Historical Society. Wuellner Construction's legacy can live on in this way.

Another exciting find at Wuellner Construction that is now in the possession of the library is the employment card for movie star Clint Walker (real name Norman Eugene Walker) from 1950. It even contains his signature. We are thrilled to be able to preserve these unique pieces of local history. We are currently in the process of organizing the plans and photographs but hope they will be available to view soon. Photographs will be used in the Vertical Files and Property Research Files and other items may be used in future display cases.

Going through over a century of plans and photographs was a monumental task, and Augie was an extremely gracious host. He patiently answered our questions, let us take over his conference room for several days, and always provided excellent coffee. Augie's father, Fred, even stopped by the office one afternoon to indentify photographs of work sites that Augie didn't recognize. We really enjoyed our time at Wuellner Construction.

Story Times Are Stupendous

The Youth Services Division of Hayner Public Library now offers four different story times for kids to enjoy.

Library Assistant Janet Andrews conducts the immensely popular Mommy and Me (Wednesdays) and Movers & Shakers (Mondays) story times in the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall. Once a month, Janet Andrews and Hector Lozano hold a Spanish story time. In 2012, two new story times were added. Both held downtown, an evening story time (kids are encouraged to wear their PJs) and Mary Kay Story Time (Thursdays), they have grown remarkably in popularity Story time schedules and information are found under KidsSpace in each quarterly newsletter.

Right: Janet Andrews reads at Mommy & Me Story Time

All the story times have grown dramatically in popularity, primarily due to the great job done by Janet, Mary Kay, and Hector. All three tell stories with such humor, enthusiasm, and animation, the kids are totally spellbound Everyone has a great time.

Don't miss this opportunity to start your little one on the path of reading. But PLEASE do not forget to register at 433 2881. Most of the story times include a craft or a snack for the kids, and if you don't register we may not have enough for everyone.

If you have additional questions, call 433-2881.

Therapy Dog Program Celebrates 10th Anniversary!

Hard as it is to believe for some of us, it has been 10 years since The Hayner Public Library District instituted Bow-wow Pow-wow, a program that brings therapy dogs to the library. The program arose after Hayner staff became aware of studies reported by the journal Public Libraries (volume 41) demonstrating dramatic improvement in kids' reading skills when reading to therapy dogs.

The program at Hayner was an immediate success due to the participation of the late June Walker of Walker's Wee Glen Obedience Training. June had been training dogs since 1986 and was also an evaluator for Therapy Dogs International (TDI). Dogs must pass a TDI certification test to be recognized as therapy dogs. Therapy dogs are fully obedience-trained and insured by Therapy Dog International. Owners/handlers can take their dogs to public places such as hospitals, nursing homes, schools, and libraries to perform a variety of therapy services

Working with June and her local group of handlers, Bow-wow Pow-wow became one of the first such reading programs in southern Illinois. Kids would come to the library to read stories to the dogs and interact with these gentle animals. The dogs, in their role as nonjudgmental listeners, help children overcome any self-consciousness they might experience in reading out loud. Along with improving their reading skills, children realize that the library is a great place to visit.

An additional important result of this program is that children (especially those who don't have pets at home) learn to socialize with the animals. They learn that showing the animals kindness and respect generates, in return, a love, trust, and friendship that can be a great joy in life.

For ten years, members of the original core group of handlers have visited the library every month along with more recently certified handlers. These volunteers cheerfully arrive at the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall the second Saturday of every month

Kids can pick from books that are set out or bring their own. They can read to any of the dogs or just socialize with the animals. Parents and grandparents love these sessions as much as the kids do. It's incredibly heartwarming to watch the interaction between the kids and the dogs. Join us at our next session and be sure to bring your camera. The program is free and does not require registration—we always have plenty of dogs!

Small Potatoes

Tuesday, April 9, 6:30 p.m.

The Chicago-based folk duo of Jacquie Manning and Rich Prezioso say it has taken them years of careful indecision to develop a repertoire they describe as "Celtic to Cowboy." Superb musicianship and showmanship, award-winning songwriting, and a strong sense of tradition have made them, as Dirty Linen magazine once said, "one of the most polished, inventive, and entertaining shows on the circuit." Accompanying themselves on the fiddle, guitar, banjo, and mandolin, they bring fresh harmonies and impeccable craftsmanship to their performances that draw the listener close to the heart of Appalachia and beyond. Dana's songs reflect the essence of rural America, and their concerts are virtual road-trips across our United States. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Mr. Reid has written articles for Wildfowl magazines and is very knowledgeable about the life of successful businessman John M Olin. Mr. Olin was also an avid sportsman, who owned one of the most recognized dogs in sporting history, "King Buck," a black Labrador Retriever who was the first dog to appear on a postage stamp and notably the most famous dog in the world of duck hunting. John Olin was also owner of the 1974 Kentucky Derby winner, Cannonade. This is sure to be a fascinating local history program with enough twists and turns to entertain a diverse audience! A wordsmith and poet of rare clarity, he evokes our shared humanity as he addresses the times we live in, through songs that resound with awareness, irony, humor and compassion. Note: This program will be held in the Benjamin Godfrey Chapel on the campus of Lewis & Clark Community College, 5800 Godfrey Road, Godfrey, Ill.

Switchback returns! Two of our favorite performers on the circuit! "A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian Fitzgerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." Fitzgerald and Martin McCormick showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots. They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to see and hear these amazing performers! Register at 1-800-613-3163.

The Richest Woman in America by Janet Wallach (Doubleday, 2012) tells the story of Hetty Green, who at the time of her death was worth about $2.5 billion in today's money. The reviews are intriguing.

"Dubbed 'the Witch of Wall Street,' this nineteenth-century capitalist parlayed her initial inheritance into a substantial fortune, famously eschewing the glamour and the excesses of the Gilded Age. Despite her shrewd investment acumen, her remarkable achievements were often overshadowed by her well-publicized eccentricities. As the mythology of her gratuitous frugality swelled, she was gleefully caricatured in newspapers and magazines as a miser of epic proportions. While she was a popular-culture icon for many of the wrong reasons, most journalists failed to acknowledge her blistering business savvy and the tremendous power she wielded in a male-dominated arena. Wallach does Green long-overdue service by providing an evenhanded account of her professional accomplishments and her personal peculiarities."—Booklist

"A richly textured biography . . . Wallach's account is both close-grained and broad . . . A vivid, almost novelistic narrative."—Chicago Tribune

"This colorful, romantic biography . . . vividly evokes a memorable personality."
—Publishers Weekly, starred review

The Richest Woman in America will be enjoyed particularly by fans of the Gilded Age, of eccentric personalities, and of stories about self-made men and women.

The book concludes with an appendix titled "The Wisdom of Hetty Green." Her business tenets are as relevant today as they were a hundred years ago. Here are some examples:*

"Watch your pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves."
"Before deciding on an investment, seek out every kind of information about it."
"In business, generally, don't close a bargain until you have reflected on it overnight."
"It is the duty of every woman to learn to take care of her own business affairs."
"Common sense is the most valuable possession anyone can have."

* Janet Wallach, The Richest Woman in America, Nan A. Talese / Doubleday, New York, 2012, pp. 229–239

Read more about this woman who triumphed in the male world of business and left her mark beside Carnegie and Morgan, Vanderbilt and Rockefeller. Check out The Richest Woman in America by Janet Wallach at any Hayner library or online. (Call number B GREEN)

Books, Books, More Books!

Certainly, if someone asks, "What is the best book you've ever read?" most readers would find that a question nearly impossible to answer. But if someone asked, "What books have you read more than once?" that would be a much more easily identified list. Polling the staff at The Hayner Public Library District with this question brought many interesting responses and identified yet more titles to add to my "must read" list! —Ed.

In December of 2012, the Friends of Hayner Library presented The Hayner Public Library District with a check for $9,000! This represented money the Friends raised through quarterly book sales and also purchases from the "For Sale" book carts at the Downtown and Alton Square Mall libraries. In fact, of the $9,000 donation, $7,500 was generated by sales from the book carts!

The carts display very gently used items that have been donated to the Friends and are being offered for sale for various prices, most $2 or less. The carts are stocked with a wide variety of books from popular fiction and nonfiction to cookbooks, coffee table books, and kids' books, as well as CDs, videotapes, and more. Over 10,000 items were sold off the carts last year, the bulk of which came from the cart at the mall (9,000). Keeping the carts stocked with merchandise is accomplished by Friends volunteer Carole Conley for downtown and the husband-and-wife team of David and Jane Zimmermann for the mall cart.

The Friends' book sales (held in February, May, August, and October) are popular events and recently have been expanded to quarterly events from the previous biannual schedule. These sales are held in the Friends' building at 327 State Street in Alton. The question arose, however, "How can we continue to move inventory throughout the year with a finite number of volunteers to facilitate sales?"

Jane Zimmermann met with Stephanie Munson (Hayner Library Volunteer Coordinator) in 2010 and, with a subset of other Friends volunteers, initiated the practice of using book carts to sell the Friends' inventory from the library locations year-round. Books were soon flying off the shelves.

Today, David and Jane restock the carts three times a week, keeping the shelves full of ever-changing selections. They have been active volunteers for the Friends for six years, and like other Friends volunteers, are great supporters of the Hayner libraries as well as our community.

Godfrey residents, David was born and raised in Alton, and Jane grew up in Grafton and Jerseyville, where her father was Grafton Elementary School principal. David retired last year from the phone company after 39 years of service. In fact, he did most of the phone wiring work for the library facility at the Alton Square Mall. Jane was a stay-at-home mom for the Zimmermanns' three children.

The couple's oldest daughter, Andrea, recently returned from working for the Peace Corps, spending three years in Ukraine. She works for the Dept. of Education in Washington, D.C. Their middle child, Amy, is married, resides in Alton, and works as a dental assistant. Their youngest, Timothy, is in the U.S. Navy, currently on his second deployment to the Persian Gulf.

David and Jane were foster parents, caring for several children over the years. Today, they are members of Calvary Baptist Church in Alton and both are involved in a variety of areas of charity work. Jane is an avid seamstress, and in spring 2005 she started making blankets for various charitable organizations. She has made over 1,200 blankets that have gone to veterans homes, homeless shelters, Ronald MacDonald House, Shriners Hospital, Pregnancy Resource Centers, and victims of Hurricane Katrina. Jane has also made more than 100 dining scarfs to allow Alzheimer's patients to "dine with dignity" and over 150 pairs of shorts for children in Haiti.

David volunteers for the Missouri Veterans Home, helping with recreational activities and events. The well-being of veterans is a high priority for David. This summer he was a guardian for his own father on an Honor Flight to Washington, D.C., where his dad was recognized for his service during the Korean War. David and Jane also sent personalized Christmas greetings to over 600 service people deployed on ships overseas.

David and Jane greatly enjoy their volunteer work for the Friends, especially the camaraderie and friendships shared among the volunteers. There is always plenty of work to be done. Last year they sold more than 25,000 books, all of which had to be inspected, sorted, and shelved. The group meets in the Friends building each Monday from 9:30 a.m. to noon to do this work. David and Jane note that they often find interesting memorabilia left in the books, such as letters (including love letters), postcards, bills, and so forth.

The Friends accept donations of books at their building on State Street, or you can drop off donations at any library location. There is a limited capacity for pickup, which can be arranged by calling 618-462-4396.

Of the donations that come to the Friends, those books that go through several sale cycles without selling are sometimes donated to veterans homes, homeless shelters and other charitable groups. Some books are not usable due to mold or other damage, and these are all 100 percent recycled.

If you have questions about the Friends organization or are interested in volunteering, call 618-462-4396. Leave a message on the machine, and David Strasser, Friends president, or another volunteer will call you back. The Friends are always anxious to welcome new members.

We send a great thank-you to Jane and David and all the members of the Friends of Hayner Library who provide such a valuable service to the district.

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 As Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals.

From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

Please help our friends at the 5 As—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Our Hayner volunteers are great!

From January 2012 to December 19, 2012, our volunteers have put in 2,158 hours for Hayner Library. We have volunteers who greet patrons in the Genealogy & Local History Library. Many have adopted sections of books to keep in order. Other volunteers deliver books to the homebound. Some take care of the book drop during the summer. We have volunteers who help with the children's programs and a couple who come in once a month and just check with the manager to see what needs to be done.

We at Hayner Library are so blessed to have our volunteers. We appreciate each and every one.

Share your story.....Branching Out

It is natural to wonder about our past and just where we came from. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library in Alton, Illinois, is embarking on a new adventure. Collectively, our staff has over fifty years of experience doing genealogy research. In order to assist the most people in finding their family roots, we have put together a set of classes to teach just how to get the most out of your research time. These classes include many aspects of genealogical research and are suitable for the beginner as well as the more experienced researcher.

There are twelve classes in all, and you can sign up for one or all of them. The classes will be taught on the second Wednesday of the month at 6:30 p.m. with the same class being offered on the following Saturday morning at 10:30. This will give everyone the opportunity to attend one of the two different days, depending on which is most convenient for them. Class size will be small, and seating is limited, so reserve your seat early. Be sure to specify which class and day you want to attend.

Each session will last for approximately one hour, depending on how many questions are asked. Questions will be answered as time permits. Remember, you can always schedule an appointment for more in-depth research. There is never a charge for an appointment, and we are happy to help

Babysitting Basics

Summer jobs for kids may be at a premium this year, but there is always a need for qualified and responsible babysitters

If you have a child who is 11 or older, there is a great online course provided by the American Red Cross that will give your child a strong edge as a responsible babysitter This course will prepare students to be better babysitters, and those who complete it will receive a printable diploma they can share with parents and prospective employers, validating their qualifications.

Topics include how to provide care for infants and children; how to stay safe; what to do in an emergency; how to choose age-appropriate activities; and how to recognize and handle a variety of behaviors. Students will also learn the basics of starting a babysitting business.

The course consists of six interactive modules featuring video, activities, games, and tools babysitters can use to build their knowledge and skills and manage their babysitting business.

This course, which includes a final exam at the end, takes about four hours to complete. There is a registration fee of $25. Find the course at redcross.org/sitter. Remember, if you don't have a computer at home, there are plenty of computers at both the Hayner Downtown Library and the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall that the kids can use free, with a Hayner Public Library card.

Let the Library Come to You!

Love to read, listen to books on CD, watch movies, but don't have transportation to the library? Or are you going to the hospital and need something to read while you recuperate? Well, it can be accomplished by taking advantage of the Hayner Public Library Delivery Service.

The Delivery Service can provide you with any library materials that are currently available in the system—large print or regular print books, audiobooks on CD, magazines, DVDs, and music CDs. The service can be for a short period of time or ongoing—depends on your needs.

Just give us a call at 433-2863, and let us bring the library to your home.

In early April, The Hayner Public Library District, along with all the other SHARE member libraries in the Illinois Heartland Library System, migrated to a new automated platform known as Polaris Polaris allows each SHARE member library to access nearly 10 million items in their online catalog—giving Hayner Library patrons membership in the largest library consortia in the country!

So what are the benefits that come with being a member in the largest library consortia in the country?

- Access to nearly 10 million items available for circulation via interlibrary loan (nearly five times the amount available with our previous platform)
- Access to the collections of 427 libraries
- Quicker turnaround for interlibrary loan requests from other libraries in our new, expanded library consortia
- Access to your library account 24/7 at www.haynerlibrary.org : request items, renew items, maintain your reading history, save searches, view your fines and fees, and much more
- You can use your library card at any public library in Illinois

Pathfinders at the Genealogy & Local History Library

One meaning of the word path is: "a course of action, conduct, or procedure."

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library has put together an extraordinary book to help genealogists and local history buffs get on the right path to quickly locate information on specific topics. This book is appropriately titled Pathfinders, and it has been organized in handy, quick reference sections to help guide you in achieving success in your family or history research. Various subjects are divided into individual sections, and each section is chock-full of helpful tips, Web sites, outside contact information, and bibliographies. Individual sections include subjects such as: cemetery research, military information, locating vital records, the history of Alton funeral homes, and finding genealogical societies in Illinois.

The information we have gathered for our Pathfinders book is to be used as a quick guide to learn what resources are available and easily accessed through Hayner Library, surrounding counties, and the states of Illinois and Missouri. In the vital records section, we have included the forms needed to request copies of birth, marriage, and death certificates. No need to drive to the courthouse!

In our newspaper section, we have a complete listing of the newspapers kept on microfilm at libraries, societies, and academic schools in the surrounding counties. These include some of the small-town newspapers, like the White Hall Register that was published from 1869–1917. These small older publications were full of local history, news, and gossipy family stories.

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library wants to invite you to come downtown to our 401 State Street location and look through this gem of a book. Our Pathfinders book is updated annually by staff, assuring that the information contained in each section is up to date with the most useful, reliable, and readily available resources. Unfortunately, Pathfinders isn't a miracle guide or an all-inclusive problem solver. Pathfinders is a quick reference guide on a wide variety of genealogy and local history subjects. Subjects that will help researchers understand a specific topic more clearly and locate what is available to the public.

This one-of-a-kind book is only available at the Genealogy & Local History Library location at 401 State Street, Alton, Illinois. Our Pathfinders book does not circulate, but individual pages can be copied. If you need assistance in getting on the right path in your research, or you just want to take a look at what subjects are available to scope out, come see our Pathfinders book. It may be your first step forward in the right direction for your research!

History of the Swedes of Illinois, Parts I and II

Edited by Ernst W. Olson

A large number of Swedish immigrants migrated to Illinois in the 1800s. Many of these pioneers settled in Chicago, while others formed settlements throughout the Prairie State. History of the Swedes of Illinois describes the material development, religious life, artistic and literary contributions, and military and political accomplishments of these early pioneers. Pictures and biographies describe the struggles and triumphs of these resourceful, talented people.

Book Review

Divorces and Separations in Missouri (1808-1853) is a small, 35-page, soft-cover book with a bold yellow cover. Unfortunately, it may be overlooked because of its size, but the information contained within its pages can be a genealogist's dream come true. Early divorces and especially separations are not the easiest records to locate, but when we do find something relating to family disputes and marital breakups, we get a glimpse of our families in a little different light. If you have Missouri ancestors who you think may have had a marital matter resolved through divorce or separation during the years covered in this book, you will want to look at this little yellow genealogical gem. It just may hold the information you need to locate the missing link in your ancestry. (IR 977.8667 STA) PB

New Displays on The Nature Institute and John M. Olin

By Lacy S. McDonald, Museum Display Coordinator

The Genealogy & Local History Library's newest history display was set to debut near Earth Day this year, which inspired me to choose The Nature Institute as my topic. The Nature Institute (TNI) is a nonprofit land conservation and environmental education organization based in Godfrey, Ill. Much of the land that is now part of TNI was owned by businessman and philanthropist John M. Olin. At first I planned to incorporate information on Olin into the Nature Institute display, but it quickly became apparent that there was enough material to create a whole display on Olin himself. Olin expert and local radio host Larry Reid was coming to give a talk at the library in April, so the timing was perfect.

Founded in 1980, TNI now owns and manages over 450 acres of protected land in Godfrey and Alton, including the Olin Nature Preserve, the Mississippi Sanctuary, the Kemp and Cora Hutchinson Bird Sanctuary, and the Heartland Prairie Project at Gordon Moore Park. Over the last 150 years, portions of the land have belonged to the Long family, who helped escaping slaves on the Underground Railroad; the YWCA for use as Camp Talahi; Jim and Aune Nelson, whose legacy continues with the Nelson Foundation; and John M. Olin. Historic landmarks like Hop Hollow and the Blue Pool lie within TNI property, and the Discovery Day Camp has been held at TNI's Talahi Lodge since 1982.

TNI's staff was incredibly generous in helping me assemble this display. I walked out of the Talahi Lodge with a mounted fox and groundhog, various animal skulls, beekeeping equipment, and as many photographs and camp lesson plans as I could carry. I also had a chance to examine the souvenirs that Jim and Aune Nelson brought back from their travels, and I borrowed everything from a kangaroo hide postcard from Australia to a salt hammer from Algeria. There wasn't enough room for everything in my trunk, so I left the stuffed fox in my passenger seat. It was quite a shock to find it looking out at me from inside my car the next morning.

I got many of the artifacts for the John Olin display from Larry Reid, but my quest also led me to local taxidermist Steve Bollini. I made an appointment to go by Steve's taxidermy studio and was absolutely floored. Not only is he an impressive artist when it comes to his taxidermy work, but his basement resembles a natural history museum. Pheasants were one of Olin's favorite game animals, and Steve was kind enough to let me borrow a beautiful specimen. It too spent a day greeting other motorists from the passenger seat of my car.

I encourage you to come learn more about the most famous dog in the sporting world, admire the male pheasant's stunning plumage, and see John M. Olin's shooting stick. Come meet Harry Hotdog the groundhog, see the YWCA camp as it was in the 1940s, and look at souvenirs from Aune and Jim Nelson's voyages around the world.

Both displays will be up until April 2014. And, as always, if you have any questions, I am happy to be your tour guide.

Hey, Four Eyes!

Whether they are used for protection or inspection, or just a hipster fashion statement, eyeglasses have been a common sight whose history has been taken for granted.

As a child in the fourth grade, I cursed the person who invented these infernal things that sat heavily on my face. Okay, yes, I could actually see the blackboard now, but that was little consolation to a child whose classmates thought them "uncool."

For years I was led to believe the inventor of my glasses was our own Ben Franklin, but he invented the bifocal lens. In reality, lenses for eyesight originated in 11th-century Arabia. Marco Polo observed elderly Chinese men wearing them in 1270. The idea of our "modern" specs is credited to the 13th-century Italians—possibly a Florentine optical physicist named Salvino Armato, or Friar Alessandro della Spina of Pisa.

Regardless of the inventor, a movement was born. Styles were various (some with stems that were held, some just worn on the nose), and they were heavy (made of actual glass), but the basic design hasn't changed in 600 years.

Find out more interesting tidbits concerning the history of this clever and necessary contraption (colored lenses in the 1800s? What?!) in the November 2012 issue of American Spirit magazine at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street. While you're here, check our collection or speak to our friendly staff about genealogy and the area's interesting local history.

Rose Lawn Memory Gardens, Bethalto, Illinois

This compilation of interment records was a patron donation, and it has proven to be a great tool in helping many genealogy researchers locate death information on ancestors buried in this cemetery. The records consist of an alphabetical listing of interments from 1955 to 2007. The information given for each name varies for each listing, but most entries give birth and death dates, as well as lot and plot locations. Other information may include marriage dates and military involvement.

Interment records such as this are a quick way to locate deaths of family members when you are not sure of the cemetery in which they are buried. It is also helpful when you know which cemetery but need the date of death. This book is a part of the Illinois Room collection. It does not circulate, but pages can be easily copied. ## What Can Families Do to Keep Children Reading During the Summer?

As children's first and most important teachers, families have a major role to play in motivating children to read during the summer months. There are many strategies families might employ to encourage summertime reading.

Combine activities with books.

Summer leaves lots of time for kids to enjoy fun activities, such as going to the park, seeing a movie, or going to the pool. Why not also encourage them to read a book about the activity? If you're going to a baseball game, suggest that your child read a book about a favorite player beforehand. In the car or over a hot dog, you'll have lots of time to talk about the book and the game.

Visit the library.

If your child doesn't have a library card, summer is a great time to sign up for one. In addition to a wide selection of books to borrow, many libraries have fun, child-friendly summer reading programs.
[The Hayner Public Library District offers kids and teens summer reading programs and great free events both educational and entertaining.]

Lead by example.

Read the newspaper at breakfast, pick up a magazine at the doctor's office, and stuff a paperback in your beach bag. If kids see the adults around them reading often, they will understand that literature can be a fun and important part of their summer days.

Talk it up.

Talking with your kids about what you have read also lets them know that reading is an important part of your life. Tell them why you liked a book, what you learned from it, or how it helped you—soon they might start doing the same.

Help kids find time to read.

Summer camp, music lessons, baseball games, and videos are all fun things kids like to do during the summer. However, by the end of the day, children may be too tired to pick up a book. When planning summer activities with children, remember to leave some time in their schedules for reading. Some convenient times may be before bedtime or over breakfast.

Relax the rules for summer.

During the school year, children have busy schedules and often have required reading for classes. Summer is a time when children can read what, when, and how they please. Don't set daily minute requirements or determine the number of pages they should read. Instead, make sure they pick up books for fun and help find ways for them to choose to read on their own. You may even want to make bedtime a little bit later if you find that your child can't put down a book.

Have plenty of reading material around. Storybooks aren't the only thing that kids can read for fun. Be sure to have newspapers, magazines, and informational material on hand that might spark the interest of a young reader.

Use books to break the boredom.

Without the regular school regimen, adults and kids need more activities to fill the hours. Books that teach kids how to make or do something are a great way to get kids reading and keep them occupied. Don't forget to take your kids' favorite reading series along on long road trips.

Read aloud with kids.

Take your children to see a local storyteller or be one yourself. The summer months leave extra time for enthusiastic read-alouds with children, no matter what their age. Don't forget to improvise different voices or wear a silly hat to make the story that much more interesting!

Remember, it is critical that kids find books that THEY want to read. Graphic novels, vampire sagas, sporting journals are all great —anything that gets kids reading! There are many online resources that will provide both genre and age-specific reading lists and recommendations. Just a few include ReadKiddoRead.com, DropEverythingandRead.com, www.reading.org/resources/booklists/youngadultschoices.aspx, and www.storytimeforme.com.

Hayner Library also makes available the monthly book review journal BookList free of charge for you to pick up at any Hayner location. Besides adult reading recommendations, BookList also provides reviews of the latest and best releases of teens' and kids' books. And remember, the librarians at all Hayner Library locations are a great resource for finding books for all ages.

How Literate Are You?

We love brain teasers, and as bibliophiles, this is one of our favorites. We will give you the initials of an author and one of his or her books, and you need to list the author's full name and the full title of the book that matches the acronym. Here's an example:

| | Author: WC | Title: TWIW |
| Answer: | Wilkie Collins | The Woman in White |

This will be a two-part contest, to be continued in the next newsletter. Let us know how you did. The first three people who answer each clue receive a library tote bag! Submit your answers to any library circulation desk. If you just want the answers, you can pick them up at the circulation desk also.

Oxymorons

An oxymoron (plural oxymorons or oxymora) (from Greek meaning "sharp dull") is a figure of speech that combines contradictory terms. Jumbo shrimp, fresh dried fruit, invisible ink are popular oxymorons. Comedians such as George Carlin and Steven Wright use oxymorons to demonstrate the absurdity of language translation in the brain.

In today's world, it seems that proper grammar is a thing of the past. Text messaging and Twitter are leaving an entire generation(s) oblivious to the rules of grammar to which many of us more seasoned folks were subject. If you are frustrated that your kids or friends are grammar-impaired, help is on the way. . . .

Fumblerules of Grammar

Late-1979, New York Times columnist William Safire compiled a list of "Fumblerules of Grammar"— rules of writing, all of which are humorously self-contradictory—and published them in his popular column, "On Language." Those 36 fumblerules can be seen below, along with another 18 that later featured in Safire's book Fumblerules: A Lighthearted Guide to Grammar and Good Usage.

Trivia: Safire previously worked as a speechwriter and was, in 1969, responsible for penning Nixon's thankfully unused and incredibly chilling "In Event of Moon Disaster" speech. (Source: Maximum Awesome; Image: William Safire in 1968, courtesy of NYTimes.)

O's Declaration of Reader Independence

With thousands of books landing in stores [and libraries] every year, it's all too easy to go with the flow and let group-think choose what you'll read and treasure next. But here's one thing about reading: it's very personal (at least if you're doing it right!). In other words, there are no rules beyond the ones you care to make—and choose to follow. With that in mind (and with July Fourth upon us), we propose that you declare your independence from common wisdom, lore, and the opinions of others and that you hold as self-evident your right to:

1. Not finish a book, whether you've read to page 10, 50, or 250. (But if it's Ulysses, you get points just for getting past page 1.)
2. See the movie first—especially if you've heard the book is kind of lousy; the movie just has to be better.
3. Read two books at once—and occasionally get the plots mixed up.
4. Reread a childhood favorite. But be forewarned: Charlotte still dies.
5. Judge a book by its cover. Or its title. We defy you, for example, not to pick up Mary Roach's Bonk, which, um, scores on both counts.
6. Wish that Cormac McCarthy would use a little punctuation now and then.
7. Be miffed if your friend doesn't like a book you recommend. On the other hand, you have our permission to be miffed if she gets miffed when you don't like the one she recommends to you.
8. Ignore memoirs by people who have barely cracked their 30s.
9. Declare yourself unmoved by the existential struggles of vampires, zombies (even those in league with Jane Austin), talking dogs, or what we worry is the next trend: scary-smart monkeys.
10. Believe that books can be magic carpets to enchanted lands, even while realizing that they're inanimate objects made of ink and paper. (Unless they're e-books. And it's okay to love those, too.)

Volunteers Enjoy Luncheon

A good time was had at My Just Desserts for the annual Volunteer Luncheon. Twenty of our active volunteers were able to attend the party. Everyone was recognized for the hours volunteering at Hayner. From January 2012 to February 2013 the volunteers worked a total of 3,118 hours for the library.

Iris Saaf was honored for her 22 years of volunteer service for Hayner.

I am very honored to have worked with these volunteers for the last eight years. We have developed wonderful friendships along the way.

Congratulations, Hayner Volunteers, for jobs well done. You are all great assets to Hayner Library!

. . . or more accurately, a floor lift. After more than 30 years (really!) we are replacing the carpeting in the downtown library. The main floor will be entirely re-carpeted in one project period. This will necessitate the closing of the downtown library from Thursday, October 24, through Tuesday, November 5, reopening Wednesday, November 6, at 8:30 a.m. During this period, books that have been ordered and are on hold for pickup will be routed and available for pickup at our Alton Square Mall location. We apologize for any inconvenience, but closing the library is the safest and most expedient way to get this big job done.

Join us on our reopening on November 6 to enjoy our new look!

2013 Summer Reading Program "Have Book – Will Travel"

Young patrons of Hayner Public Library had a wonderful time at this year's Summer Reading Program, "Have Book – Will Travel." The KidsSpace staff kept them busy with craft times, performers, movies, puppet shows, and stories.

The program drew in more than 400 kids over 6 weeks. Each participant was rewarded each week with prizes for their diligent reading. At the end of the program participants were treated to a party held at the Alton High School Commons, where they were entertained by Babaloo Music and Fun. Each participant also received a free book, snacks, and a certificate for all their hard work.

This year's top readers: Birth through five years category, Leah Maggart; six- through eight-year-old category, Mackenzie Jones; and nine- through eleven-year-old category, Tristan Turner.

Congratulations to our winners and all our readers this year! Hope to see everyone again next year at our 2014 Summer Reading Program, "Paws to Read."

2013 Teen Summer Reading Program "Have Book—Will Travel"

The 2013 Teen Summer Reading Program, "Have Book—Will Travel," was a great success! Teens were offered the opportunity to catch up on some much-needed reading. Participants won great weekly prizes for their diligent reading and attended a weekly fun day at the Riverbender.com Community Center. I would like to congratulate this year's grand prize winner for the most hours read, Kristina Shelton-Montez. I would also like to thank all the participants. We hope to see everyone back for next year's reading program.

"Have Book – Will Travel" Summer Reading Program a Huge Success

Thank you to our Community Partners for supporting Hayner Library's Summer Reading Program. Two local department stores, Dollar General and Kohl's, have generously donated time and funds for improving literacy in our area.

Dollar General donated $500 to support the weekly incentives, which included travel items, fun activities, and performers.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary in 2013, the Dollar General Literacy Foundation is proud to support initiatives that help others improve their lives through literacy and education. Since its inception in 1993, the Dollar General Literacy Foundation has awarded more than $81 million in grants to nonprofit organizations, helping more than 4.7 million individuals take their first steps toward literacy or continued education.

We also had a great partner in Kohl's Department Store. Kohl's employees volunteered at the End-of-the-Summer Reading party. Kohl's Associates in Action program supports organizations through both the volunteer efforts of their sales associates and through funding. Thank you to Kohl's Associates in Action: Tammy Wagenblast, Mary Ann Morris, Mike Tadlock, Laurel Hollister, and Sheley Doerr! In addition, the Associates in Action program will gift Hayner Library with $500 to support further literacy efforts.

The Summer Reading Program was a huge success, with more than 466 children from birth through high school participating in a travel-themed summer of books and literacy. Of these, 328 children completed all five weeks and achieved and/or exceeded their reading goals.

Starting October 1, the Health Insurance Marketplace at HealthCare.gov will be the official site for finding health coverage through the Affordable Care Act. A Marketplace (also, called exchanges) will be set up in every state, some run by the state, and others by or in partnership with the federal government. The Illinois Marketplace is run in partnership between the state and federal government, and residents will access the Marketplace at HealthCare.gov.

Open enrollment in the Marketplace starts October 1, 2013, and ends March 31, 2014, with coverage starting as soon as January 1, 2014. Illinois will have private insurance providers listed on the HealthCare.gov site for you to compare their plans.

Plans in the Marketplace will be offered by private companies, and every health insurance plan will cover a core set of benefits called essential health benefits. For example, there will be dental and pediatric plans for children. You'll be able to compare your options based on price, benefits, quality, and other important features. With one application, you can see all your options and enroll.

There are four categories of Marketplace insurance plans to choose from: Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Platinum. The categories offer the same set of essential health benefits. They do not reflect the quality or amount of care the plans provide. The category you choose affects how much your premium costs each month and what portion of the bill you pay. Most plans cover recommended preventive care without cost-sharing.

You can save money in the Marketplace based on your income and family size. You can learn whether you qualify for free or low-cost coverage through Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP), or lower costs based on your income. Fill out one Marketplace application, and you'll see all the programs you qualify for. Applications can be filled out online, in person, over the phone, or by mail.

Community Health Centers in all 50 states have received federal grants to help enroll uninsured Americans. The Southern Illinois Healthcare Foundation plans on having in-person enrollment counselors in the Alton area to assist people in enrollment, if help is needed. These enrollment sites include Alton Women's Health Center, SIHF Good Samaritan Health Center, Central Illinois Health Center, and the Bethalto Health Center. The library can refer you to these sites for help in enrolling. More help is available by calling HealthCare.gov at 1-800-318-2596, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. (TTY: 1-855-889-4325.)

Information brochures on the Health Care Marketplace are located at the Reference Desk at the Hayner Library Alton Square location, and at the Downtown library. For more information, you can contact the Reference Desk at 618-462-0677, ext. 2864.

You can learn more about the Affordable Care Act by attending a free seminar in the Multipurpose Room of the Hayner Library at Alton Square on October 22 or November 12 at 6 p.m. The seminar will cover how the Affordable Care Act works, what the marketplace is, the different plan levels, and more. Register for the seminar at 1-800-613-3163. Be sure to specify which date you would like to attend.

Don't Miss "Vintage Voices"

This fall, the Alton Little Theater will present the 2013 Vintage Voices, an annual event that has become a favorite fall activity for our community. Much of the actors' research on their characters is conducted at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. We are glad to be a critical resource for this great event.

The 2013 Vintage Voices program, titled "Faith, Hope & Charity," will be held in the Alton City Cemetery at 6th and Vine Streets on Saturday, October 5, 12, 19 and 26, with tours from 1–3 p.m.

The leisurely guided walking tours will include eight stops that highlight former citizens of Alton who inspired others with their courage, conviction, and compassion. Actors/docents from the theater will range in age from 8 to 80, with four new performers making their debut.

Tickets are just $12 for adults and $6 for students and will be available at the main gate, beginning at 12:30 p.m. each Saturday. Advance tickets can also be purchased at the Alton Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Alton Little Theater will also host two non-walking presentations at the Alton Little Theater Showplace on Sunday, October 13, at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sixty reservations will be taken for each performance, which will include a dessert buffet. Tickets for these special performances are $15, and reservations must be made at the ALT office at 462-3205.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2013, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery, as well as at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 14, 2013, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Local school children, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves. The ceremony will involve a number of other participants and include musical accompaniment. It will last approximately one-half hour.

In 2012, through community financial donations, 540 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. The fund-raising goal for this year is $5400. Every $30 contributed enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

Every dollar you donate helps ensure a wreath at every veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton, IL 62002. For more information, or to volunteer, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-474-2005. More information is also available on the Web site www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission of "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us.

A New Cemetery Web Site

Have you heard?? You can now view over 55,000 photos of tombstones from 78 cemeteries in Madison, Macoupin, Jersey, and Greene counties free online! Also included are photos of the Smallpox Island Confederate POW Memorial in West Alton, Mo., and of cemeteries in Leelanau County, Michigan.

Bette Flactiff and Sue Williams both know how vital burial information can be to family historians who are looking for their elusive ancestors. Two years ago they began photographing the Alton City Cemetery, and the project just blossomed! We are grateful to Bette and Sue for spending their time, energy, and money to photograph so many tombstones and share them with us. The Hayner Public Library District has uploaded the photos, and they are now available online.

View the photos by typing the Web site URL (http://graves.haynerlibrary.org/zenphoto/) directly into your browser bar. If you are on the Hayner Library Web site, click on Our Services and on Genealogy Help. Scroll down to Illinois Research, and click on Regional Cemeteries and Graves.

There are several ways to search for a gravestone on the Web site. You can click on the county in which the cemetery is located, and then click the name of the cemetery. The tombstone photos are arranged in alphabetical order by last name.

Another option is to search for a tombstone by the name of your ancestor. In the search box at the top of the page, type the person's surname and then their first name. When you click Enter, all graves with that name will appear.

You can also search the Military section. Tombstone photos of veterans are organized by the name of the war in which they fought, including the Civil War, World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict, and the Vietnam War. Burials of veterans who served between wars or who fought in more than one war are also included.

Enjoy searching for your ancestors on this free Web site provided by The Hayner Public Library District!

Do you have a child just entering school? What an exciting time! For many children, school will afford them their first formal experience in learning how to read. Your child's success in developing strong reading skills will be strongly affected by the encouragement to read that he/she receives at home. The following articles are from a terrific Web site, readingrockets.org. This site provides tips and information about reading, writing, and language skill development for children ages newborn to teen and is a great resource for both parents and educators.

Beginning Readers: Look! I Can Read This!

As a parent of a beginning reader, it's important to support your child's reading efforts in a positive way and help them along the reading path. Here's a little information about beginning readers, and a few pointers to keep in mind.

It can be so exciting when a child begins to read! Beginning readers are starting to put it all together and are often eager to do it by themselves.

A beginning reader:

- can name the letters in the alphabet and can tell you many of the letter sounds
- understands the concept of a "word"
- is beginning to recognize a few words within text or from a list
- is beginning to represent the first and maybe last sound of a word when trying to spell

When reading with a beginning reader:

- Model finger-point reading. That means to follow the words with your finger from left to right as you read them. Your beginning reader will do the same thing for a while.
- Practice patience! Beginning readers may read slowly. Give your child time to decode the words, and avoid jumping in too quickly.
- Encourage attention to letters and sounds. If your child is stuck on a word, prompt them to look at the first letter of the word and make the letter's sound. Of course, only do this for words that can be sounded out! If the word can't be sounded out, just supply the word for them.
- Talk about the story. When your child is finished with a book, be sure to talk about what happened in the story, and maybe reread favorite parts.
- Let them know how proud you are! By sharing a book with a child, you're sharing the joys and excitement of reading

And for the children still at home... Reading Tips for Parents of Toddlers

Being a toddler is all about action. Encourage continued language development and interest in books and reading by keeping things lively and engaging. Everyday experiences are full of opportunities to engage in conversation and develop language skills. The tips below offer some fun ways you can help your child become a happy and confident reader. Try a new tip each week. See what works best for your child.

Don't expect your toddler to sit still for a book
Toddlers need to move, so don't worry if they act out stories or just skip, romp, or tumble as you read to them. They may be moving, but they are listening.

Recite rhymes, sing songs, and make mistakes!
Pause to let your toddler finish a phrase or chant a refrain. Once your toddler is familiar with the rhyme or pattern, make mistakes on purpose and get caught.

Choose engaging books
Books featuring animals or machines invite movement and making sounds. Books with flaps or different textures to touch keep hands busy. Books with detailed illustrations or recurring items hidden in the pictures are great for exploring and discussing.

Keep reading short, simple, and often
Toddlers frequently have shorter attention spans than babies. Look for text that is short and simple. Read a little bit, several times a day.

Encourage play that involves naming, describing, and communicating
Set up a zoo with all the stuffed animals. Stage a race with the toy cars. Put your toddler in charge and ask lots of questions.

Every day is an adventure when you're a toddler
Choose books about everyday experiences and feelings. Your child will identify with the characters as they dress, eat, visit, nap, and play.

Ask questions
Take time to listen to your toddler's answers. Toddlers have strong opinions and interesting ideas about the world. Encourage your toddler to tell you what he or she thinks. You'll build language skills and learn what makes your toddler tick at the same time.

Play to their favorites
Read favorite stories again and again. Seek out books about things your toddler especially likes — trains, animals, the moon. These books may extend a toddler's attention span and build enthusiasm for reading

Not having fun?
Try a different story or a different time during the day. Reading with a very young child is primarily about building positive experiences with books, not finishing every book you start.

Bobby Norfolk
Shadowball

Bobby Norfolk's latest living history performance takes us on a fascinating journey through the heyday of the Negro Baseball League, a time when this country was segregated by Jim Crow laws, and America's "National Pastime" wore two faces, the whites-only Major Leagues and the upstart Negro National League. In this powerful and riveting performance, Bobby brings to life an important but sometimes forgotten era in baseball history, telling passionate, humorous, and often unbelievable stories of exploits both on and off the field, focusing on the St. Louis Stars' own James "Cool Papa" Bell, and the Kansas City Monarchs' Leroy "Satchel" Paige. Bobby invites his audience to experience the harsh discrimination, adversity, and eventual Hall of Fame triumph for some of these players. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

HAVE YOU HIT A LANGUAGE ROADBLOCK?

Have you spent some time working on your family's genealogy? Did you stop when you needed to go to another country to continue your research? Was language the roadblock that stopped you? We can help you with language issues in your genealogy research.

We have materials to help specifically with genealogy letters to other countries. These materials can help with several languages including Czech and Slovak, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish. Materials in the Letter Writing Guides of the Family History Library can help you compose a letter to a foreign country where one of these languages is spoken. Whether you are writing to a church, an individual, a registration office, or a genealogical society, we have the phrases you will need to use to ask for help with your research. In some of the language guides, you will be advised on what you need to do before you write your letter, what questions to ask, how to address your envelope, how to send payment, and what to expect from your inquiry. Information is also given on how to follow up after you receive a response regarding the letter you sent.

This information is enormously helpful for those who do not speak the language of their ancestors; so don't let language be a problem in your genealogy research. The staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library in downtown Alton will be happy to help. Call us at 618-462-0677, Ext. 2865 to schedule an appointment for help.

How Literate Are You?

In our summer newsletter, we offered you part one of this brain teaser contest. Patron Jeanne Truckey was able to crack the code and identified every book title and author correctly. Congratulations, Jeanne!

Here is part two:

How it works: We will give you the initials of an author and one of his or her books, and you need to list the author's full name and the full title of the book that matches the acronym.

Here's an example:

Author: WC Title: TWIW

Answer: Author: Wilkie Collins
Title: The Woman in White

Let us know how you did. If you just want the answers, you can pick them up at the library circulation desk.

Trinity Lutheran Church, ELCA of Alton, Illinois

In May of 2012 the Trinity Lutheran Church at 801 Blair Street, Alton, closed its doors after 110 years of dedicated service. Over the years, the Trinity Lutheran Church provided spiritual guidance to their members and established a kinship with the community. They stood out as a welcoming beacon.

Through a generous donation from a local resident, the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library has been able to compile a book titled Trinity Lutheran Church, ELCA, Alton, Illinois with photos (black and white as well as color) of pastors and confirmation classes that span the last 110 years.

Church records are commonly overlooked when researching family history. Putting together a book with such significance can help genealogists in a number of ways. Locating photos of family members is always a rewarding treat but can also help determine age, and offers information about the religious affiliation of our ancestors.

The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library gladly accepts donations such as local church registers, photos, or items that contribute to local ancestry or community history. The historic Illinois Room collection located at 401 State Street holds other church books of various denominations that may help in finding more information about your Alton ancestors. Trained staff is available and always willing to help guide you through the exciting world of genealogy!

Iris Saaf interview

By Stephanie Munson
Volunteer Coordinator

Iris Saaf has been volunteering for Hayner Library for 23 years. She began by working for our new Homebound program in 1990 She delivered books for many years to our homebound patrons.

Later the library started a program called Readers to Go. We had a few volunteers who went to nursing homes to read and have discussions with some of the patients. Iris started reading to residents at the Eunice Smith Nursing Home when her mother was still alive and living in a nursing home in North Carolina. She hoped that others would do the same for her mother. Iris is still going to Eunice Smith each month to read, sing, and visit with the residents. She is very fond of them and is thankful to be able to give something back.

In past years Iris has helped the library with the Great Move to the mall library and by sorting books for soldiers, and until recently she worked as a greeter in the new Genealogy & Local History Library.

Iris was raised in North Carolina. She earned her teaching degree from Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C. As a young southern girl Iris did pretty much the normal things a young person would do. She was very active in her church. She played the organ for evening services. She sang in her high school choir. She loved to read, sew, and knit, as she has done throughout her life.

Iris and her husband, Arnie, have two grown sons, Len and Michael. They also have two granddaughters in Albany, Calif., whom they try to visit a couple of times a year.

Iris retired twice from teaching, once when she and Arnie wanted to start a family. Arnie was transferred to McDonnell Douglas in St. Louis. They moved to our area, and she began teaching at Evangelical School in Godfrey. She retired from Evangelical after teaching a total of 15 years. Some of her best teaching experiences came from watching six-year-olds learning to read, knowing that some of their parents could not. In the 29 years that she taught, she says she had fun going to work every day! Each new day was an adventure.

Since retirement, Iris is still active in church activities. She loves to bake and really enjoys a good mystery. She has become quite interested in nature, getting a kick out of the birds and deer in her backyard. She says the best thing about being retired is the freedom to do whatever pleases her.

I asked her what she would tell someone about her experience as a volunteer for Hayner. She said, "To use a familiar phrase . . . 'try it—you'll like it.' I sure do!"

DAR "FRIEND-RAISER" OPEN HOUSE EVENT

Saturday, November 2, 2013
1:00-4:00 p.m.
401 State Street, Alton, Illinois 62002

The Daughters of the American Revolution is a volunteer service organization dedicated to promoting patriotism, preserving American history, and securing America's future through better education for children.

The Ninian Edwards Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library invite you to a special Open House event for anyone interested in researching their genealogy and interested in becoming a DAR member.

Last year's event was a huge success, and we are pleased to be able to offer this great opportunity again this year. Feel free to look around our beautiful facility and see our many excellent resources to help you with your research.

We will once again have experienced researchers available to help you get started or to help you conclude your search for the Revolutionary War patriot in your family. These researchers can also help guide you through the application process for joining DAR.

One success story from last year's event involves Elizabeth Bauer. She came to the event after seeing it advertised in the Hayner newsletter and was hoping to learn how to go about joining DAR. Elizabeth's mother had been a member, so it was a fairly easy task to connect Elizabeth to the previously completed research. Since that time just one year ago, Elizabeth's connection was approved by the National Society of DAR in Washington, D.C., and she has been inducted into our local Ninian Edwards Chapter. Congratulations, Elizabeth!

Admission to this event is free, and registration is not necessary. If you have questions, please call us at 462-0677, Ext. 2865. All are welcome to join us for this event. We hope to see you there

Libraries are changing and dynamic places.

Today's libraries go beyond books. While still offering traditional print resources, CDs, DVDs, and eBooks, libraries have free computers, access to the Internet, free wi-fi, special programming and entertainment for children, teens, and adults, free databases for research and reference, and more. Plus, libraries offer the trained professional services of librarians.

Libraries are places of opportunity.

Libraries are places for education and self-help. And because they offer free and open access to all, they bring opportunity to all.

Libraries change lives.

Libraries have more than information. They have the power to transform lives.

Libraries change communities.

Libraries support community and civic engagement. As noncommercial institutions that welcome everyone equally, libraries offer a unique place to stay in touch, engage with others, and find a place to contribute.

eRead Illinois

The Secretary of State and Illinois State Library awarded a $985,219 grant to the Illinois Heartland Library System (IHLS) and the Reaching Across Illinois Library System (RAILS) for the E-books for Illinois Project, named eRead Illinois. The two-year grant project will increase access to e-books for Illinois residents and grow e-book expertise among library staff, library system staff, and Illinois residents. It includes an e-book collection and the 3M Cloud Library software platform for IHLS SHARE members (of which Hayner is one).

What does this mean to you? Now when you use the online card catalog, you will see titles that are marked with the 3M icon. This indicates that this title is an e-book that can be downloaded from the 3M Cloud Library. These titles will augment the e-book selections that you already have access to through OverDrive. Downloading is extremely quick and easy, and step-by-step directions are available at the circulation desks. 3M Cloud Library e-books are compatible with PCs, Macs, iOS devices, NOOK Tablets, Android devices, and the Kindle Fire. Users can download the app on up to six devices and can easily move from reading on a phone, to a tablet, to a laptop.

The 3M Cloud Library application is an innovative way to browse, borrow, and read popular fiction and nonfiction e-books from your library. You will need a valid Hayner library card to use 3M Cloud Library e-books. With your Hayner library card, you will then have access to thousands of e-book titles.

e-Book Help – 3M Cloud Library and OverDrive e-Books

Get e-book help for the new 3M Cloud Library e-books and for OverDrive e-books! Now with the addition of 3M Cloud Library e-books, you will have more e-books to choose from!

For help downloading these e-books to your reader from the library catalog, Reference Librarian Jean Shimunek will conduct a class on Saturday, January 18, on the basics of downloading e-books.

The class will be held in the Multipurpose Room of Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall from 10:00 a.m. until 11:00 a.m. Jean will review the basics of downloading e-books and will demonstrate the process on multiple platforms, including the Nook, Kindle Fire, and iPad.

This class is free of charge but does require registration. To register, call 1-800-613-3163. Please leave your name, phone number, and the number in your party.

Hayner Downtown Gets New Carpeting

It was a big, sweaty, dusty job, not just for the carpet layers but also for the Hayner Library staff who disassembled and then put the library back together again! Preparing the library shelving and books, moving furniture, disassembling security gates—these are just some of the tasks that needed to be accomplished before the carpeters could start removing the old carpet.

After the new carpet was down, the process was repeated in reverse. Shelving went back up, books were re-shelved and dusted, all the furniture was moved back in, computers were reconnected, security was reinstalled—and it all went forward without a hitch. Hayner staff used teamwork and elbow grease to ensure that the downtown library reopened in time with its sparkling new look.

And sparkle it does! The new carpet looks great It brings warmth and brightness to the facility. Stop by and see for yourself.

We want to thank all our patrons for your patience and cooperation while the downtown library was closed. We hope when you see the new carpeting you will agree that it was worth any inconvenience.

Over 50 Ways to Love Your Library

Visit any branch of The Hayner Public Library District with your children and teens and sign up for a library card. For residents of Alton, Godfrey, and Foster Township, library cards are free and quick to procure. Just bring a valid photo ID with your current district address. If your photo ID does not have your current address, you will need to provide a piece of business mail (utility bill, bank statement, etc.) dated within the last 30 days as proof of residency. A parent or guardian is required to sign up children under 18 years of age. If you live outside the library district but pay taxes to the Alton school district, you can procure a fee-based nonresident card.

There are so many benefits to having a library card; and remember, a library card is a key resource in achieving academic success. The library also is the perfect place to spend quality family time together. Check out these great ways to use your library card at The Hayner Public Library District:

1. Your library is where you can get e-books and other digital content. Download now.

2013 Library Card Drive

This fall, The Hayner Public Library District partnered with local businesses in Alton, Godfrey, and Fosterburg to hold a library card drive. From Saturday, November 30, to Saturday, December 7, these businesses offered a discount or other incentive to customers showing their Hayner library cards We wanted to encourage more people to get library cards and to show current library card holders that their card is worth even more than they might have realized. We're thrilled with the level of participation this year and hope to make this an annual event. A big thank-you to all of these businesses for supporting The Hayner Public Library District!

Share the Joy of Literacy

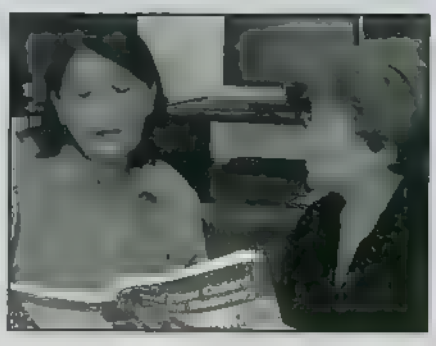
Did you know that the American Community Survey found that more than 14% of Illinois residents do not have high school diplomas? Did you know that 45% of our residents who speak a language other than English in their homes report that they speak English less than well, or that 19% of Illinois residents could benefit from adult literacy instruction?

Project READ, a volunteer adult literacy program, is looking for volunteer tutors in our area. If you enjoy reading or math or would like to help someone improve their English language skills, it can be incredibly rewarding to serve a community member requesting support in one of those areas.

Our tutoring requirement is that you have at least a high school diploma or GED certificate, be a minimum of 17 years of age, attend a stimulating and informative group training, and have a willingness to share the joy of learning with someone in need for an hour a week.



This project is made possible by a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library (ISL), a division of the Office of the Secretary of State, using funds designated for literacy.

Please call 468-4153 for information about our Project READ tutor training schedule, and share the joy of literacy.

IN MEMORIAM

The staff of The Hayner Public Library District mourns the passing of one of the library's staunchest friends and longest-serving Foster Grandparents, Minnie Lee Hutchinson, who passed away at the age of 82 on August 20, 2013.

Minnie, who came to us through the Senior Services Plus program, started at Hayner Children's Library in the spring of 1997, working until health issues forced her retirement in 2012. She assisted the staff in a wide variety of ways, including participating in children's programming and community outreach activities, reading and cleaning shelves, "weeding" out old and duplicate books, and determining whether titles contained in lists of best children's books were a part of Hayner's holdings.

A great favorite of the children, Minnie loved most the story hours when she read to a rapt audience of little ones in her warm, lilting voice She also excelled at puppet shows, taking on various personalities and voices that delighted the kids.

Minnie is fondly remembered by staff members for her unfailing optimism and ready smile. She could always be depended upon to find the best in any situation and to leave anyone she encountered with a sense of well-being and gratitude.

Born in Earl, Arkansas, Minnie moved to Alton as a child and attended Alton High School She married here, had two daughters, and worked for a number of years at Campbell's Pharmacy.

A woman of rock-solid faith, Minnie served in a number of positions in the two churches with which she was affiliated through the years, including director of the Hallelujah Glory Singers and founder of the Touched by Angels praise dance team.

Minnie is survived by a daughter, Karen Hughes of Alton, still a devoted Hayner patron, and three grandchildren.

For her quiet humor and sense of fun, her unfailing willingness to help, her generosity, her joyful spirit—for all these attributes and more, Minnie will be missed at Hayner.

In the words of the old song, "Thanks for the memories."

We are saddened to announce the passing of another good friend of The Hayner Public Library District. Marylin Bromaghim, 89, passed away on Monday, November 4, 2013.

Marylin was born in Alton, Illinois, on May 5, 1924, the daughter of the late Everett F. and Mary Harriett (Vedder) Butler. She married Andrew Richardson in 1944 in Alton. He preceded her in death in 1946. She married Harry Leon Bromaghim in 1949 in Alton. He preceded her in death in June 1955.

She received her Bachelor's degree at Shurtleff College and her Master's degree at Washington University. Marylin was a librarian for the Alton Public School District, a position from which she retired before coming to work as a part-time Library Assistant in the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall.

Marylin was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Alton. She played trombone in the Civic Orchestra, was active in the Alton Area Business and Professional Women's Organization, was the head of the Health Education Program at YWCA, and was actively involved with the Oasis Women's Center, sitting on their board from its inception. She loved working at The Caravan Resale Shop.

She is survived by two sons, Robert Andrew Richardson (wife, Barbara Jean) of Bethalto and David Charles Bromaghim (wife, Jacqueline) of Godfrey; one daughter, Ann Bromaghim of Alton; one sister, Gladys Virginia Butler of Godfrey; one sister-in-law, Bea Butler of North Hills, Calif.; four grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Marylin's wit and warm personality made her a favorite of Hayner staff and patrons alike. She will be greatly missed.

Reflections
Agnes Millen Richmond (1870–1964)

By Lacy S. McDonald

The Hayner Public Library District has existed in some form since 1852, and construction of the Hayner Memorial Library, today the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, was completed in 1891. The library has had many generous benefactors over the years, and there have been several major donations of artwork. Because the library has been around for so long, sometimes the provenance of that artwork gets lost in the passage of time.

This year, I assisted Robert Morrissey, proprietor of Clark Graves Antiques in St. Louis, in completing an appraisal of our art collection for insurance purposes. There were several wonderful discoveries, and you can hear about all of them at the Highlights of the Hayner Art Collection program being held in March (see the Events section of this newsletter for more information), but the most exciting for Robert and me was realizing that we had a painting by Agnes Millen Richmond.

The painting in question was signed "A. M. Richmond," so we searched an online art database for an artist named Richmond, and Agnes Millen was the third entry we checked. It was a light bulb moment. The example painting was clearly done by the same hand as our painting, and the first line of the biography read "Born in Alton, Illinois, Agnes Richmond was a specialist in portraits of women in a variety of social strata."

Armed with this new information, and with the help of the staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library, we were able to find a letter from Richmond that had accompanied the painting when it was donated to the Hayner Library in 1941. This letter gave us the painting's title: Reflections Richmond wrote in the letter, "The figure reflected is a self-portrait so I will be again in Alton & I hope you will all like it."

Born in Alton, Illinois, in 1870, Agnes Millen Richmond was considered one of the key women artists who taught art students in New York in the early 20th century. Richmond began her training at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts prior to moving to New York in 1888. In New York she studied at the Art Students League under John Twachtman, Walter Appleton Clark, and Kenyon Cox. She then taught at the League from 1910 until 1914.

Richmond and her husband, artist Winthrop Duthie Turney (1884–1965), settled in Brooklyn. Turney was a realist painter and WPA muralist who was noted for his Brooklyn themes—backyards, waterfront scenes, portraits on the subway, and streets of Brooklyn In the summers, Richmond and Turney painted in Mountainville, New York, and Gloucester, Massachusetts. Richmond is best known for portraits of women and children in pastoral scenes in Gloucester and Mountainville as well as more urban New York interiors.

Richmond exhibited extensively, including regular showings at the National Academy of Design from 1908 to 1927. Her paintings were also featured at a World's Fair· the 1915 Panama–Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco. The 1914–15 Woman's Who's Who of America notes that Richmond "favors woman suffrage," and her portraits and figure paintings from the 1910s and 1920s reveal her subjects' sense of pride and confidence. Richmond died in Brooklyn, New York, in 1964.

In recent years, Richmond's paintings have gone up for auction at many famous auction houses, including Sotheby's New York, Christie's New York, and Christie's London. Her paintings appear in several leading collections of art by American women artists, including the Edgemarle Collection, the Neville-Strass Collection, and the Sellars Collection. The Huntsville Museum of Art recently acquired the Sellars Collection, and Richmond's painting A Young Friend resides there now.

We are happy to report that Reflections is on display at the Genealogy & Local History Library, and Agnes Millen Richmond will be forever in Alton.

Whitney Howland, Volunteer

Whitney Howland has been coming in to the Downtown library for many years. I really just got to know him in the last year. As our friendship grew, I decided to ask him if he would like to volunteer. He accepted right away. He has been straightening and keeping the mystery section in order. He also has been our house detective, searching for lost books on our shelves.

Ironically, Whit is an author of pulp fiction and crime novels. He publishes e-books. The mystery section is a great fit for Whit.

Whit was born in Pasadena, California. His family moved to Connecticut when he was five. He spent his high school years at a boarding school in Greenwich. He was a quiet child. Always busy reading and building and inventing things. He loved board games and played a lot of Dungeons & Dragons.

He played stick ball, capture the flag, kick the can, and flashlight tag with the neighborhood children. His childhood was very much like mine right here in Alton.

Whit spent summers at Camp Owatonna in Maine. When he wasn't camping he was visiting his father in Los Angeles. His mother was a lawyer, and his dad and stepmom were teachers.

Whit had three sisters, two brothers, and one step-brother, who passed away. What he remembers most about his siblings is the fun at Christmastime. It was the one day when his brothers and sisters were all happy for one another and supporting one another and sharing the joy of Christmas. His most memorable gift was a disguise kit his father gave him.

I asked Whit what the difference was between growing up when he did and growing up in the 21st century. He remembers that he and his siblings were easily entertained. He thinks they had more of a sense of wonder. They believed the world to be a much better place than kids do today. He was allowed to roll in the dirt. He thinks that children today aren't allowed to fail and learn from their mistakes. He says our children are too sheltered.

Whit wanted to be a Magnate of Industry or a weatherman on TV. He went to Principia College, and in his junior year he took an American Literature class and discovered poetry. That summer his dreams of the Magnate and weatherman flew away. An aspiring writer was born.

While at work he met his wife, Kimberly, and discovered they had gone to college together. I wanted to know what his wife was like. He told me that she is beautiful, strong, and puts up with his silly, absurd humor. She fully supports his desire to write and helps him by editing for him.

Whit's favorite book is The Nick Adams Stories because Ernest Hemingway wrote it. His favorite movies are the Godfather Trilogy because he loves sagas and Mario Puzo. His favorite things to do are writing, going to the movies, and getting together with his friends.

In my interview with Whit, I asked him to name three people in history that he admired. He chose George Washington because he wasn't a natural leader and had to demand that of himself. Whit also respects Abraham Lincoln because he was the right President for the right time in history. He also has great respect for Walt Disney and his creative and brilliant mind.

Not only does Whit write, but he also has a love for acting and the theater. One of his highest honors was getting best supporting actor for his performance in a college play.

I found Whit to be a warm, funny, creative, and witty person. He carries with him a great sense of wonder. You can see his mind working through his eyes.

My last question for Whit was how you define a good and successful life. I leave you with Whit's profound advice:

"Surround yourself with people who bring out the best in you  Write down what it is you hope to achieve every day. And work on having a positive effect on others."

–Stephanie Munson, Volunteer Coordinator

Harold "Bud" Meisenheimer

Devoted library patron and lifelong Alton resident Harold "Bud" Meisenheimer must have listened intently in kindergarten when the teacher taught the class about sharing. There is no doubt about it; this gentleman has a knack for sharing!

The Hayner Public Library District has benefited greatly from Harold's unselfish nature  He is a consistent patron, and on most visits he comes bearing some sort of "special treat." That treat can be anything from a handful of newspaper articles to be used in our vertical file collection, to a paper bag bursting with fresh garden vegetables. No matter the gift, the intent is to share.

With every visit, Harold walks through the door with a smile and a willingness to help. His time, talents, and amazing knowledge of local history have aided staff in serving patrons for many years.

Born, raised, educated, and employed in Alton, Harold is a tried and true Altonian. When talking with him, one quickly realizes he is very proud of his community. But Harold doesn't just talk about his passion to maintain history, he puts actions into words. For many years he has preserved the history of Alton and her citizens by collecting newspaper clippings, artifacts, and memorabilia. He has assembled volume upon volume of "scrapbooks" documenting many subjects of both local and national interest. Harold doesn't compile these books and then lay them on a shelf to collect dust. He shares them!

To date, Harold Meisenheimer has donated a total of 136 scrapbooks that he has compiled by his own hand. But those astounding 136 scrapbooks aren't all he has donated. He has also presented the library with artifacts, published books, and many photographs on a variety of subjects too numerous to list.

On many of his visits to Hayner, Harold has been known to stop his own research to assist patrons with their questions. His enthusiasm on any particular subject is contagious, and when he is "on the hunt" for research information, he can easily engage staff to help him research and compile his newest scrapbook.

The 136 scrapbooks in our Illinois Room collection range through a wide variety of subjects. Just to name a few, there are books about military veterans, Alton schools, businesses of the past including the larger industries such as Owens-Illinois and Duncan Foundry, multiple volumes of Alton histories, cemeteries, local legends, citizens, and mayors. These scrapbooks cannot be checked out but are available for use at Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street.

A patron recently used some of Harold's scrapbooks for personal research, and upon leaving she expressed her thoughts about this remarkable and generous man by simply stating, "He is a treasure!" The staff agrees! Through many years he has helped to fill our bookshelves and brighten our workdays.

We look forward to countless more visits from Harold. Whether he arrives bearing special treats or empty-handed, his visits are always welcome and much enjoyed!

–Pam Bierman

Project Next Generation
In today's world, nearly anything that's done is touched, in some way, by technology; specifically, computers and computer-assisted technology. You want to have that cutting edge; the one that gives your profile the kind of attention it needs to land you wherever it is that you're wanting to be: in a great job that you love, with lots of potential; at the top of the list of people that college you're wanting to attend is considering for admission; or, in a position to start your own business, where you'll be in charge. The Hayner Public Library District has resources available to give you experience, skills in using current cutting-edge technology, and the poise and presence to be able to sell your talents to others.

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its sixth year of implementation at Hayner. We are excited to be able to offer Saturday workshops once per month using the newest technologies. Our winter and spring workshops are filling up fast, so don't wait to sign up! Meeting dates are Saturday, January 25, 2014, Online Cookbook Maker class #1; Saturday, February 8, 2014, Online Cookbook Maker class #2; and Saturday, March 15, 2014, Inside a Desktop Computer. In addition, we are hoping to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and technological equipment.

Come join us for one of our Saturday sessions! There is no cost involved, and the payoffs are huge. Call 433-2861 for more information or to sign up for our next session! Limited space is available!

• Funding for this grant project was awarded from the U.S. Institute of Museum and Library Services to the Secretary of State/Illinois State Library under the provisions of the Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA).

How Genealogy Affects Your Health

by F. Clarke Fraser

We all have our own reasons for researching and creating our family tree. As we attempt to trace our roots, we may be trying to find that famous relative or find the country where our family originated. These are good reasons, but there is another aspect to family tree research that many aren't aware exists. Besides family history and places in time, family trees may also offer a greater understanding of your health and that of your family. Along with family traits, health-related predispositions and difficulties may run in families

In How Genealogy Affects Your Health, by F. Clarke Fraser, the author blends science and history to give the reader some insight into the family history researcher's past and possible future problems. Using the genetic code of the Human Genome Project as a basis, Fraser delves into the nature of diseases and disorders and our proclivity to receive the traits or tendencies from our ancestors.

The author does more than just mention diseases and disorders; he also discusses the genetic traits that are passed down through generations. Are you right- or left-handed? Do you have perfect musical pitch? What about the direction of the swirl of your hair? Do Alzheimer's disease or mental disorders run in your family? A family tree may help explain some issues one has noticed or should be concerned about in the future.

Although Fraser's scientific information may seem daunting at first, the book is enjoyable to read, with easy-to-follow text. This is a quick and fun read, despite the fact that the subject matter is as complex as the double helix design of DNA. Come visit us at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street to research your family tree today!

A Special Thank-You!

During a recent "Friend-Raiser" program hosted by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, the Ninian Edwards Chapter of the DAR donated a three-volume set of books relating to women in the Revolutionary War era. The books are titled America's Women in the Revolutionary War Era: A History through Bibliography by Eric G. Grundset. Like African American research, records for women (particularly during this time) can also be hard to locate, so we are extremely pleased to be able to offer this set of books as part of our Illinois Room collection.

A Graveyard Preservation Primer

by Lynette Strangstad

Have you ever driven by an abandoned rural cemetery and thought to yourself that it would be nice if someone could do something to keep the cemetery up? Upon reading A Graveyard Preservation Primer by Lynette Strangstad, one begins to understand that tombstones of yesteryear are important monuments to the past that should be preserved. This book will guide you through all aspects of proper graveyard restoration and maintenance.

The historic preservation process begins with a basic cleanup and assessment of the general condition of the site. Mapping of the cemetery and documentation of the inscriptions are important steps to take. You may have to deal with dislocated stones or some that are so weathered they are illegible Stones such as limestone or sandstone are softer than granite or marble and therefore will need special care when handling, cleaning, and/or rebuilding. During the restoration project the initials or name of the stone carver can often be discovered somewhere on the tombstone.

Some older cemeteries have very interesting motifs decorating the stones, which can give insight into the lives of the early settlers. The book describes the possible meanings of these motifs and speculates on the reasons for the symbols' changing over time.

If you would like to read more about tombstone motifs and cemetery preservation, come to the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street.

If you are a "word-junkie" as are many of us bibliophiles, you should enjoy the following:

I Like Words

When copywriter Robert Pirosh landed in Hollywood in 1934, eager to become a screenwriter, he wrote and sent the following letter to all the directors, producers, and studio executives he could think of. The approach worked, and after securing three interviews he took a job as a junior writer with MGM.

Pirosh went on to write for the Marx Brothers and in 1949 won an Academy Award for his Battleground script.

Dear Sir:

I like words. I like fat buttery words, such as ooze, turpitude, glutinous, toady. I like solemn, angular, creaky words, such as straitlaced, cantankerous, pecunious, valedictory. I like spurious, black-is-white words, such as mortician, liquidate, tonsorial, demi-monde. I like suave "V" words, such as Svengali, svelte, bravura, verve. I like crunchy, brittle, crackly words, such as splinter, grapple, jostle, crusty. I like sullen, crabbed, scowling words, such as skulk, glower, scabby, churl. I like Oh-Heavens, my-gracious, land's-sake words, such as tricksy, tucker, genteel, horrid. I like elegant, flowery words, such as estivate, peregrinate, elysium, halcyon. I like wormy, squirmy, mealy words, such as crawl, blubber, squeal, drip I like sniggly, chuckling words, such as cowlick, gurgle, bubble and burp.

I like the word screenwriter better than copywriter, so I decided to quit my job in a New York advertising agency and try my luck in Hollywood, but before taking the plunge I went to Europe for a year of study, contemplation and horsing around. I have just returned and I still like words. May I have a few with you?

The 2014 KidsSpace Reading Program "Paws to Read"

This year's Summer Reading Program, "Paws to Read," will get your kids excited about reading. The theme will give participants the opportunity to read some fantastic books about our fuzzy, hairy, and feathered friends.

The program kickoff will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 7, 2014. On this day participants will enjoy a visit from the Bow-wow Pow-wow dogs, and some surprise guests will also drop by throughout the day. During the five weeks of the program, participants can expect performers and presenters such as World Bird Sanctuary, Animal Tales, Steve & T.V., White Rabbit Productions, and WildHeart Music. They will also enjoy story times, puppet shows, crafts, movies, and prizes that reflect the theme.

Each week participants will be asked to read at least five books, magazine articles, or newspaper articles, or listen to five books on tape to earn some awesome prizes. This year's program will partner with local animal agencies such as 5A's and TreeHouse Wildlife Center. Participants will have the opportunity to visit the TreeHouse Wildlife Center and will also get a chance to meet some of the wonderful animals that call the 5A's their home. Animal lovers will love this year's theme!

All participants who continue over the five-week program will be invited to our End-of-the-Summer-Reading Party at the Alton High School Commons. There they will enjoy a free book, reading certificate, snacks, and entertainment by WildHeart Music. Emmy Award–winning educators and entertainers Jan & George Syrigos make up the musical group WildHeart. This duo captures young audiences with a strong science message exploring wildlife, habitats, and natural history. WildHeart energizes their original award-winning music with motion, media, and a conservation message for a wild and unforgettable journey through our natural world.

Hayner Raffles iPad Air!

Through the generosity of an anonymous donor, from April 15 through June 3, The Hayner Public Library District will be raffling off two Apple iPad Air tablets, models iPad Air Wi Fi + Cellular for AT&T 128 GB.

The iPad Air device, the latest tablet offered by Apple, offers incredible power, is 7.5 millimeters thin, and weighs just one pound. The device CPU and graphics performance is up to two times faster than its predecessor device. It uses two antennas instead of one, offering twice the Wi-Fi performance.

iPad Air comes with great built in apps for the everyday things you like to do, like checking e-mail and surfing the Web. Also, apps such as iPhoto, iMovie, Garageband, Pages, Numbers, and Keynote are now available free, and there are more than 475,000 iPad apps available through the App Store.

Camera and video recording are also features of the iPad Air. Lightweight and incredibly powerful, the iPad Air is the Cadillac of tablet devices. Retail value for these iPad Air models is $928 apiece.

Raffle tickets are only $10 apiece, 3 for $20, and will be sold at each Hayner Library location. The winner will be drawn on June 3, 2014, during a remote broadcast by WBGZ in the library in Alton Square Mall.

SELECT SCIENCE

$5000 Grant Will Increase Science Resources at Hayner

Hayner Library Executive Director Bernadette Duvernoy is pleased to announce the reception of a $5000 grant from the Illinois Secretary of State to purchase new books related to science. The Hayner project is called Select Science and reflects Hayner's commitment to providing informational resources for students and lifelong learners.

This grant will allow the purchase of approximately 150 nonfiction print books for the library's collection. Recommendations are being sought from science-oriented community organizations, school librarians, science teachers, the general public, and library staff for books to be purchased this spring.

In the future, community organizations that hold seminars and presentations will be encouraged to contact Hayner Library for a display and list of books that relate to their particular activity.

"We hope to engage the community in selecting science as a preferred reading choice and complement the science-related activities of our many community organizations," said Duvernoy.

In addition, as Common Core standards go into effect, it is hoped that the collection will supplement and complement the needs of area students. Particularly helpful will be new or updated books that will provide background information for hundreds of students who participate in science fairs each year. A list of the new books will be distributed to teachers in August.

The library presently provides guided tours of its collection and instruction on how to locate materials. Individuals, students, and community groups may request an information session on the new and present resources, or request a tour by contacting the library.

"Science is exciting. It is the process of exploring things we don't understand. Curiosity and need drive science. We at Hayner are excited about this opportunity to purchase updated science books," Duvernoy said.

The grant, part of "Another Opportunity for Back to Books," was awarded to The Hayner Public Library District by the Illinois Secretary of State, Jesse White, who is also the Illinois State Librarian. Secretary White has always been a strong advocate for the libraries in the state. The grant received is part of the $500,000 Library Services and Technology Act funds provided to states by the United States government.

Food for Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5A's Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

Please help our friends at the 5A's—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Cold Memory

It's a cold memory now, but remember the snowstorm of January 5th? We got up to 10 inches of snow and had subzero temperatures. The Illinois Heartland System that delivers items requested by our patrons from other libraries made no deliveries for two days. On the third day after the storm we received 39 tubs of books, CDs, and DVDs to satisfy your requests—over 800 items were held up in that short period of time. This is an example of the volume of requests we fill for you—and we do it every day!

Project Next Generation

Project Next Generation, a program sponsored by the Illinois Secretary of State, is now in its eighth year of implementation at Hayner Library. This grant-funded program, originally started to give technology training and life skills to tweens in the sixth through eighth grades, has recently been opened up to fifth graders.

We are excited to be able to offer Saturday workshops for children 10–14 years of age once a month during the fall, winter, and spring in the Multipurpose Room at our Alton Square facility.

This year's workshops covered a wide variety of technology-based topics. In the fall of 2013 we offered: Social Media Trends for Teens, giving teens information to keep themselves safe while using a number of social media sites; Trimble SketchUp, which gave teens the basics to use a 3D modeling program that could help with architectural, interior, and mechanical or civil engineering design; and Building with Snap Circuits, which gave students the ability to use snap circuitry to build a number of fun and useful magnetic, solar-powered, and computer-interfaced projects.

The fun continued in the winter and spring of 2014 with Online Cookbook Making, which taught students and their parents how to use Matilda's Fantastic Cookbook software This software helped students download, organize, share, and save recipes to their computers; and Inside a Desktop Computer, which gave students a look inside a desktop computer and taught them how each component contributes to its functionality. Each class offered participants practical and useful skills they could use in their daily lives.

These classes have been very successful, and we hope to be able to offer them and new classes in the upcoming year. In addition, we hope to develop a cadre of Project Next Generation graduates to be mentors to the younger patrons who want to learn how to use our computers and other technological equipment.

For more information on upcoming programs, please watch for announcements in The Hayner Public Library District fall 2014 newsletter or on the Hayner website at www.haynerlibrary.org/ TeenSpace.

Scouts, Students, and Art Lovers Visit the Genealogy & Local History Library

For quite some time we have welcomed Scout groups to the Genealogy & Local History Library, but, happily, things have been even busier than usual lately. Tiger Scout Pack 3073 came to the library for a local history scavenger hunt. Cub Scout Pack 3073 earned their heritage belt loops by filling out family trees and doing research in the digitized Alton Telegraph newspaper archive and in our collection of city directories. Scouts from Boy Scout Troup 137 have used the library to work on their genealogy merit badges, and Genealogy & Local History Manager Lacy McDonald attended one of their troop meetings to describe the various resources available at the library.

In February we also welcomed a group of middle school students from the City Garden Montessori School in St. Louis. The students are completing a term-long project on their individual heritages and came to do research. The students are creating scrapbooks that include things like photos, illustrations, newspaper articles, letters, pressed flowers, material swatches, and other family information such as maps of countries, cities, or towns in which their ancestors lived, and recipes of heritage foods While they were on this Alton field trip, the students also got to see the Rocky Fork exhibit at Lewis & Clark Community College.

The Genealogy & Local History Library also got lucky enough to be put on the Alton tour of the Saint Louis Art Museum docents. Forty docents came to the library to tour the building and see some of our artwork. It was a mutually beneficial visit; we mentioned that the fireplace tiles are original to the building, but that since the building is over 120 years old and comprehensive records were not kept from construction, we have had trouble figuring out the provenance of these tiles. One member of the docent group knew quite a bit about historic tile and gave us the name of a possible tile maker. We were at a dead end in our research, so it's nice to have a new prospect. The docents also gave us a book as a thank-you for the tour: Saint Louis Art Museum Handbook of the Collection, which is now available to read in the Illinois Room.

We have really enjoyed our time with all of these groups, so please get in touch with us if you'd like to bring your group to the library. If you're interested in local history, genealogy, art, architecture, or food (we have an extensive cookbook collection, after all), we're happy to plan something special for you.

E-reading Rises as Device Ownership Jumps

Most American adults read a print book in the past year, even as e-reading continues to grow
The proportion of Americans who read e-books is growing, but few have completely replaced print books for electronic versions.

The percentage of adults who read an e-book in the past year has risen to 28%, up from 23% at the end of 2012. At the same time, about seven in ten Americans reported reading a book in print, up four percentage points after a slight dip in 2012, and 14% of adults listened to an audiobook.

Though e-books are rising in popularity, print remains the foundation of Americans' reading habits. Most people who read e-books also read print books, and just 4% of readers are "e-book only." Audiobook listeners have the most diverse reading habits overall, while fewer print readers consume books in other formats.

Overall, 76% of adults read a book in some format over the previous 12 months. The typical American adult read or listened to 5 books in the past year, and the average for all adults was 12 books. Neither the mean nor median number of books read has changed significantly over the past few years.

More also own dedicated e-reading devices
The January 2014 survey, conducted just after the 2013 holiday gift-giving season, produced evidence that e-book reading devices are spreading through the population. Some 42% of adults now own tablet computers, up from 34% in September. And the number of adults who own an e-book reading device like a Kindle or Nook reader jumped from 24% in September to 32% after the holidays.

Overall, 50% of Americans now have a dedicated handheld device—either a tablet computer like an iPad, or an e-reader such as a Kindle or Nook—for reading e-content. That figure has grown from 43% of adults who had either of those devices in September.

In addition, the survey found that 92% of adults have a cell phone (including the 55% of adults who have a smartphone), and 75% have a laptop or desktop computer—figures that have not changed significantly from our pre-holiday surveys.

People read e-books on other devices, too
E-book readers who own tablets or e-readers are very likely to read e-books on those devices—but those who own computers or cellphones sometimes turn to those platforms, too. And as tablet and e-reader ownership levels have risen over the past few years, these devices have become more prominent in the e-reading landscape.

I Found a "Gandy Dancer" in My Family Tree!

When researching family history, it is easy to find all sorts of strange terminology that makes you step back and say, "Huh?" This is especially true when we are looking at illnesses, occupations, and any foreign document.

Here is an account of my most recent "Huh?" moment. While researching one of my many family lines a short time ago, I came across an ancestor who had been declared a "Gandy Dancer." Well, being my family's only dedicated genealogist, I had a driven need to find out what it meant to our ancestral line to find someone with such an unusual title. What steadfast ancestor detector doesn't want to find that one oddball ancestor who just might be capable of ruining Grandpa's good ol' family name?

So, with enthusiasm mixed with a little bit of hesitation, I went off to search out exactly who my "Gandy Dancer" had been and, more importantly, what circumstance gave him such a peculiar label. Depending on what I found, I wondered if I would even consider adding such a person to my beautiful untarnished family tree.

For my first stop in search of the infamous "Gandy Dancer," I went straight to Google for an answer, and this is what I learned: a "gandy dancer" is a slang term for an early railroad worker. I also discovered that the "gandy" in this title was the tool used to keep the rails straight as the tracks were being laid. The movements made by the work crews while using the "gandy" effectively resembled the actions of a dance. Combine all this, and what do you have? You have a "gandy dancer."

Whew, big sigh of relief! My Gandy Dancer was not a "Fred Astaire wannabe." He was a hardworking, labor-intensive railroad worker who laid and maintained the tracks that ran across the southern states of the growing countryside.

With this new information, my family tree holds more than just names, dates, and memories. Now, nestled within the branches, it cradles one very special "Gandy Dancer."

Start your genealogical search today at the Genealogy & Local History Library of The Hayner Public Library District. You never know who you may find waiting for you! Now, I am off to hunt for an explanation of how "podagra" caused the pain in Grandma's toes!

VOLUNTEER PROFILE

June Weinrich has been a volunteer with Hayner Library since 1989. She has been a wonderful asset and friend to me and the library. I gave her some questions to answer about her life. Below are her answers. We thank June for her long friendship and dedication to our library.

—Stephanie Munson, Volunteer Coordinator

I was born in Alton and have always lived in Alton or Godfrey. I had just one sister, who was 12 years older than I, and in many ways she was like a second mother to me during my early years. No doubt I was spoiled by her and my parents, as well as by a grandmother and other family members who lived nearby.

I was rather shy and quiet as a child. I liked to play with dolls and paper dolls and have tea parties, serving make-believe food. I remember making little mud pies and serving flower seed pods that looked like green beans to my dolls, on little tin plates. I also liked to roller skate on the sidewalks, jump rope, and ride bikes.

Life today is very different for young children and teens. I think it is unfortunate that children don't seem to play outdoors as much as we did. So much time is spent texting rather than communicating face-to-face with friends and family that I think they are missing the pleasure of personal contacts.

My mother chose the unusual name of Ilda (pronounced with a long I) as my first name because she had a childhood friend named that, and she thought it was pretty. The only other time I have ever seen that name was in the credits before an old movie that read "Costumes by Ilda." My family usually called me by both names, Ilda June, or by a nickname my grandmother gave me. I was told that after I was born she said, "Isn't she a cute little Butzie" (which I think was an old German endearment), and Butzie became my nickname.

Throughout my years in elementary school, I used my first name, but because it is unusual, it was often misspelled and mispronounced, so I decided when I entered junior high school, I would be called by my middle name, June. I dearly loved one of my elementary teachers, and when she learned of my plan to change my name, she said something to me I will never forget because it was such a sweet comment. She said, "June is a pretty name, but Ilda is a fairy princess name." This teacher married and moved to the Chicago area, but she often wrote to me, and we stayed in touch for years.

I learned early from my parents to be considerate of others, particularly elderly people. My mother always prepared food to take to families when there was illness or a death. She was a good cook, and I got my enjoyment of cooking from her. I got my love of Cardinals baseball from my Dad. We used to listen together to the games on the radio when I was a child, and he would tell me about some of the great players of that era.

Holiday celebrations were always spent with family members. I especially remember 4th of July barbecues in my uncle's backyard, with lots of barbecued ribs. He was my mother's brother, and his birthday was on July 4th and my mother's was July 3rd, so Independence Day was also a big birthday party. Since my immediate family was small, we also spent Christmas and other holidays with extended family. After she was married, my sister lived in another state, so we often traveled there or her family came to be with us.

Although my husband, Gail, and I grew up in this community, we didn't meet until after high school. We became acquainted at a young couple's club at the YMCA called the Co-Ed Club. The group held a lot of parties, picnics, and cookouts that we attended, and before long we became a "steady couple."

Shortly after, Gail was inducted into the Army during the Korean War. We knew he would be going overseas soon, and we decided we wanted to be married before he left, so we were married later that year. He spent 17 months in Japan and when he returned, he resumed his college education and we started our family. We were blessed with three daughters and now have two granddaughters. Gail has always been loving and attentive to our children and grandchildren. Since retirement, he volunteers much of his time to several service organizations. I especially appreciate how supportive and encouraging he is to me in anything I do. We have been married for 62 happy years.

My favorite movie is To Kill A Mockingbird. It is hard for me to choose a favorite book—there are many that I love, such as Gone With the Wind and Sarah's Key; and as a mother and grandmother, I am very fond of all the Dr. Seuss books. I have saved our old copies and hope someday to read them to a great-grandchild when we have one. I like to read mysteries and legal/courtroom stories. For fun, in addition to reading, I enjoy sewing and doing craft projects of various kinds and researching family history. I also like to travel, and we have been fortunate to travel to a number of countries.

I enjoy volunteering with several organizations. My favorite volunteer job has been delivering books from Hayner Library to homebound people. Many of those people became very dear to me, and my life has been enriched by the visits and conversations I have had with them. I learned about this service many years ago when I was visiting a disabled friend and while I was there she received a box of books delivered to her by Dr. DuVivier. I inquired about it and learned this was a service provided by Hayner. Immediately, I knew this was something I would like to do, so I went to the library and volunteered and have been doing it ever since.

One honor I have received was being appointed to serve as chairperson of a pastor search committee for my church and being asked to participate in the installation service of that pastor.

The two most difficult things that have ever happened to me were when my father died in an accident when I was 17 and also the unexpected death of my sister when she was only 57.

My best advice for living a good life is to remain as active as possible and participate in organizations and projects that benefit the community. Try to do what you can for others when needed, especially by being a compassionate listener when someone needs a friend to talk to.

EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT

Cathie Lamere, a longtime employee of The Hayner Public Library District, retired this past January 2014. Cathie worked as the Manager of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, a department that Cathie built from one part-time person to a staff of two full-time people and three part-timers.

Cathie first joined Hayner Library in 1996 as a part-time Library Assistant in the Children's Library and after a year took a full-time position working at the circulation desk in the Downtown Library. While working the circ desk, Cathie was asked by her manager if she would also take over genealogy, a fledgling service.

Cathie remembers that initially most of her time was spent looking up obituaries for patron inquiries. Soon she was spending half her day answering genealogy inquiries and half her day on a cataloging project. Then, in 2001, Cathie was asked by management to take on genealogy full time and grow it. Cathie's only question was "How big?"

Grow it, she did. Cathie started taking appointments with patrons to help them with their genealogy research, using the tools available through the library. Word of mouth spread quickly, and soon Cathie had more appointments than she could handle She also had plans for the department to extend its services into the community.

Cathie's responsibilities also grew to include the management and growth of Hayner's local history collections and overseeing the large project of digitizing past issues of the Telegraph back to 1836.

By 2011, the services provided by Cathie and her staff were relocated to the refurbished Hayner Building at 401 State Street. Built in 1891, this beautiful building was restored to its original grandeur in 2011. Today it houses museum-quality displays featuring various facets of the Riverbend's local history. It also houses all of Hayner's local history research collections and is home to the Genealogy staff. Here, the staff meets with patrons to provide one-on-one training in completing genealogy research.

Quarterly programs feature talks by local historians and researchers. Tours of the library and museum displays are provided for the public. There is a gallery that features the digitized photographs of Bob Graul, renowned photographer for the Telegraph for 42 years. Computers allow free public access to online databases, including Ancestry Library Edition, Sanborn Maps, and Heritage Quest as well as the Telegraph archives.

Cathie also designed and implemented an ongoing series of monthly classes that teach different aspects of building your family tree, suitable for beginners to advanced researchers. Along with many outreach community programs, the staff has also partnered with Lewis & Clark Community College and the Ninian Edwards Chapter of DAR to train the public in researching tools and skills.

Upon retirement, Cathie looks forward to traveling the country with her husband, Frank, and enjoying spending more time with her three married children and seven grandchildren. She also is an avid quilter.

Cathie's position will be filled by Lacy McDonald, previously Hayner's Museum Display Coordinator. Lacy has a Bachelor's degree from Carleton College in Northfield, Minnesota, a Master of Library Science from University of Illinois, and a graduate certificate in Special Collections Librarianship. Lacy and her husband live in Godfrey, Ill.

Cathie will be missed by staff and patrons alike. We wish her a happy and healthy retirement!

Cookbook Display at the Genealogy & Local History Library

"If you really want to make a friend, go to someone's house and eat with him . . . the people who give you their food give you their heart."— César Chávez

If there's one thing that brings people together, it's food. In March, we welcomed Donna Pierce, a Road Scholar with the Illinois Humanities Council, for her program "Meals on Wheels: Great Migration Recipes Ride the Rails North." This event was produced in part by the Illinois Humanities Council's Road Scholars Speakers Bureau, a program that provides organizations statewide with affordable, entertaining, and thought-provoking humanities events for their communities. Ms. Pierce's program description is provided below:

> Before the Great Migration, 90 percent of all African Americans in the U.S. lived in the southern states. Between 1915 and the Civil Rights Movement of the 1970s, six million black people changed their addresses from the segregated South to the urban North. Several Illinois cities have come to be known as destinations of the Great Migration, including Alton, Peoria, and Chicago. Using cookbooks and oral histories, Donna Pierce explores migrated recipes such as smothered chicken, chitterlings, black-eyed peas, barbecue, biscuits, caramel cake, and more. She discusses how these recipes transport many people back to a South (with ties to Africa) they have never known.

The Genealogy & Local History Library possesses many cookbooks compiled locally. The most recently acquired cookbook is the Black Pioneer Cookbook, which tied in nicely with Donna Pierce's talk. The Committee on Black Pioneers, through the Alton Museum of History and Art, published the Black Pioneer Cookbook in the late 1980s, and it was recently reprinted. The cookbook contains recipes for all of the foods mentioned in Ms. Pierce's program description above (and much more) and also includes household hints, information about the Underground Railroad and Rocky Fork, and photographs and biographies of prominent black citizens from years past. The Alton Museum of History and Art generously donated a copy of the Black Pioneer Cookbook to the Genealogy & Local History Library, but if you'd like your own, it is available to purchase for $12 at the Museum.

All of our cookbooks are housed in the Illinois Room, but several, including the Black Pioneer Cookbook, will be on display through July. If you come into the Genealogy & Local History Library while the display is up, we will provide you with free copies of the recipes featured in the display. After all, cooking from traditional recipes is a wonderful way to connect to ancestors and others who lived here long ago.

Hayner Library Databases Provide Help to All Ages

Hayner Library has a wide array of online resources to help teachers, students, and anyone interested in topics for research or for self-improvement. Library databases, sometimes called online resources or online databases, are organized collections of electronic information that allow you to search for a particular topic, article, or book in a variety of ways (e.g., keyword, subject, author, title). When you search one of these databases, you are not searching the Web; you're searching pre-selected material that is the equivalent of what you might find on a library shelf in print format.

Subscription databases consist of published journals, magazines, documents, newspapers, books, image collections, and more. Hayner Library has purchased subscription access to a variety of online databases. These resources are accessed online through the Hayner Library website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Why do libraries subscribe to databases?

- To help students doing research papers by providing accurate, authoritative articles on a wide variety of topics. Each article found is cited and can be converted to a selected citation style (MLA, APA, etc.), making it easy for students to copy and paste the citation into their papers.
- To offer access to thousands of articles from hundreds of journals and magazines, many more than a library could physically have on hand.
- To offer patrons a quick, easy way to obtain reliable information on topics of interest.

Hayner Library subscribes to more than 20 subscription databases. Some of these databases are as follows:

- Biography Reference Center is a comprehensive collection of full-text biographies.
- Literary Reference Center offers book summaries, author information, and more.
- Academic Search Premier offers peer-reviewed, full-text journal articles from many academic areas, including biology, chemistry, physics, psychology, and religion.
- History Reference Center offers articles, images, videos, and primary source documents on American and world history.
- Science Reference Center includes biology, chemistry, Earth and space science, environmental science, health, medicine, life science, physics, scientists, and technology.
- Points of View Reference Center provides students with a series of controversial essays that present multiple sides of a current issue.
- Auto Repair Reference Center has repair information for model years 1954 to 2010.
- NoveList Plus is a reader's advisory for fiction and nonfiction. NoveList K-8 Plus is designed for teachers and kids. Features Grab and Go book lists, Picture Book Extenders
- ConsumerReports.org provides the most current reviews of consumer products.
- Hobbies & Crafts Reference Center offers detailed "how-to" instructions and creative ideas for hobby enthusiasts provided from leading hobby and craft magazines.
- Home Improvement Reference Center has articles, videos, and images to help homeowners tackle home repairs safely.
- Legal Information Reference Center provides full text for many of the top consumer legal reference books and contains thousands of legal forms.

These reliable, accurate information sources are free with your Hayner Library card number. You can access them from home or within the library at www.haynerlibrary.org by clicking Online Resources on the home screen.

*To learn more about Hayner Library databases and how to use them, attend the Database Class/Library Tour held on Saturday, September 20, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the Multipurpose Room at Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall. ## Staff Development Day

On April 11, all Hayner Library locations were closed so that staff could attend our annual Staff Development Day event. This is a day set aside to bring the entire staff together for educational and skills development presentations and activities. This year's agenda featured three keynote speakers.

Detective Dustin Christner of the Alton Police Department presented a session on Workplace Safety highlighting considerations and the appropriate actions staff must take in a threatening situation to protect both themselves and our patrons.

Anne Craig, Director of the Illinois State Library, presented "The Community as Collection: The Future of Illinois Libraries." Her talk focused on the need to follow the community's lead in developing the best services that libraries can offer. Today's world is divided into users "before" and "after" the Internet. The "before" group are those people who remain in a world largely without technology. "After" users are wrapped in a world where there is nothing but technology. Libraries must address the needs of both these groups, making sure that services are relevant, convenient, and useful. There is also a need to provide guidance in the area of self-service, a growing sphere of interest for patrons today.

Chris Dawdy, SHARE staff Services Manager, Illinois Library Heartland System, discussed Zinio, a new product offering for library patrons. Zinio offers a digital database of over 100 popular magazines for patrons to check out onto their computers, tablets, or smartphones. This service will be available through The Hayner Public Library District online catalog starting in August 2014.

The event was held at the Riverbender.com Community Center, the space generously donated by owner John Hentrich.

In memory of my dear friend, Dr. Ned DuVivier

Dr. Edward DuVivier of Alton passed away on May 21, 2014. He was a retired Alton pediatrician and a volunteer at Hayner Library for twenty years.

Our life is a long journey. Along the way we meet people who change us in the best way. They have something to teach us about life. Dr. Ned was one of my best teachers. He taught me how to grow old with dignity. He taught me we are never too old to learn. He showed me how to accept getting older. He understood why our bodies do what they do. He taught me to look at aging as one of life's many roads we must take on our journey.

When Dr. Ned retired from being a pediatrician, at 70 years old, he called me at the library and asked if he could deliver books for me. He was one of the first volunteers to deliver books for Hayner. He came every week to pick up boxes of books to go to nursing homes and senior high-rise apartments. He volunteered for me for twenty years.

Dr. Ned was a huge advocate for AARP. He fought for senior citizens. He made many trips to the capital in Springfield to stand up for the rights of seniors. At 90, his eyesight began to fail, and he had to quit volunteering for us.

I stayed in contact with him these last few years. I would see him at church every Sunday, moving slowly but always ready for a kiss and hug from me. Even though his body slowed down, his brain kept working and was always ready to learn something new. If I had a problem, I knew I could go to him and he would give me good advice.

My last visit with him was this winter. My granddaughter, Brooklyn, and I made cookies and delivered them to a few friends who were under the weather. We stopped by Dr. Ned's. He was in his wheelchair reading. He looked up and saw Brook and right away wanted to know all about her. He had so many questions for Brooklyn. He talked with her as if he had known her forever. He wanted to know about her school, what she liked best in school. He talked about where she lived. He asked if she played sports. We left him with a kiss and hug from both of us.

So when you meet those special people on your journey, take time to listen to them. They will touch your life in ways you never dreamed possible.

I will always have Dr. Ned's lessons tucked away for ready reference. I am so happy to have known this kind and gentle man . . . Ned.

Our Local History — The Great River Road

Warmer weather is finally here. Time to get out the shorts and tee shirts, dust off our bikes (motorized as well as chain-driven) and hit the Great River Road for some fun in the sun! Most of us have driven down, ridden over, or walked along that beautiful stretch of pavement, but do you know the history of this scenic highway? Here are some amazing facts!

Beginning at the headwaters of the "Big Muddy" in Lake Itasca State Park, Minnesota, the Great River Road ends at the mouth of the "Old Man" in Venice, Lousiana, giving it nearly 3,000 miles of highway through ten states. The Great River Road winds its way through all sorts of terrain, coursing across state parks and through vibrant metropolises. It runs alongside lush prairies, thick forests, and towering limestone bluffs. Few realize that this beautiful "highway" is not one stretch of continuous road, but segments of designated routes that follow the Mississippi River. The road changes direction often, crosses over the river in many places, and lingers in small towns and down dusty paths other roads have forgotten.

The construction of the 13-mile strip between Alton and Grafton began as a Works Progress Administration (WPA) project in 1940. WPA was a national work relief program aided by state and local governments to generate jobs for the unemployed between 1935 and 1943. The road was officially named the McAdams Memorial Highway, in honor of John D. McAdams, the man responsible for its inception. The opening of this expanse of road in 1964 brought the small touristy villages and towns between Alton and Grafton together and made traveling to them a pleasant experience.

Clifton Terrace Park is a charming little rest area off the Sam Vadalabene Bike Trail. The small park boasts a playground, memorial trees, and a stone kiosk with the story of the Christopf Louis Stiritz family. Visitors at the park can also get a glimpse inside the remnants of the family's underground wine cellar.

Elsah, a quaint, charming, and quiet little community nestled between the towering bluff walls of Mt. Radiance and Mt. Pisgua, is rich in history, architecture, and beauty. In 1973 the entire village was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Sometimes referred to as "a town that time forgot," this little hamlet dances to a much slower life

Chautauqua is a small private community near Elsah. During the late 1800s it was a summer resort destination for the upper classes and only accessible by steamboat.

Most travelers along this stretch of the Great River Road are destined for the river town of Grafton. Located at the confluence of the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, the town is full of character and appeal. Founded in 1836, the community provides an indulgence of entertainments packed together in a small walkable area. Visitors find enough attractions to satisfy all ages, from antique shopping and parasailing to fish sandwiches and wine.

Leaving Grafton, a stretch of the Great River Road loses sight of the water as the highway begins to tighten, with disarranged curves and more frequent glimpses of wildlife. The Marquette Monument, a large white cross made from a solid piece of dolomite, sits along a bluff between Grafton and Marquette State Park. This monument was constructed in 1929 to honor the site where European explorers Marquette and Joliet crossed the river to enter into the present state of Illinois in 1673.

If you do not take the Brussels Ferry across the Illinois River into Calhoun County, the Pere Marquette State Park comes into view. This is a magnificent 8,050-acre park with attractions such as miles of hiking trails and an impressive limestone and timber lodge built during the Great Depression by the Civilian Conservation Corps. The park is also the residence of Native American burial mounds, a substantial visitor center, picnic areas, and a campground.

Continue on until you reach the small town of Kampsville, and you have completed the entire ride along our area's portion of the 3,000-mile Great River Road. The 50-mile span between Alton and Kampsville received national recognition in 1998 by the Federal Highway Administration when it was designated a "National Scenic Byway," making it one of only 21 roads in the United States with this title.

To learn more about this remarkable road or the history of the area in which we live, visit the historic Illinois Room in the Genealogy & Local History Library at the 401 State Street location.

African American Allegiance in the Revolutionary War

Throughout the course of American history, African Americans have had a long, hard struggle in the fight for freedom. Not many people realize this struggle stretched all the way back to the Revolutionary War (1775–1783). Both slaves and freemen fought during this war with the hope of gaining freedom for their people while making a monumental change in history.

The well-known painting of George Washington crossing the Delaware on Christmas Day in 1776, by German American artist Emanuel Gottlieb Leutze, shows a black patriot helping to row the boat. Historians dispute the question of whether this figure represents any one particular person or patriot, but the artist's choice to include an African American figure is historically important in that it supports the significant role they played in the American Revolution.

African American men served in a wide range of positions while helping to carry on the war. Positions included combat soldiers, spies, laborers, and cooks. Free and enslaved blacks served alongside white patriots as well as serving in all-black militia units of the Continental Army and the Navy.

They not only served with American forces as patriots of the Continental Army; after Great Britain promised freedom for all African Americans who enlisted for wartime service, many risked death as they made their way to the English lines to enlist with the British Army. After the war's end, these eager Loyalists were surprised to find that this was nothing more than an empty promise.

It is no surprise that not all African American males were eager to enlist and serve an administration that denied them the right to free citizenship, and some did not enlist by their own choice. Some states allowed a slave owner who had been drafted to send a substitute in his place. With little hesitation, many of these men sent slaves to be their replacements during the war

African Americans were part of many key events during the war. As early as April 1775 black Minutemen were fighting at Lexington and Concord, they participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill, and many died during the harsh winter at Valley Forge.

Black troops fought in most of the major battles, their devotion and loyalty earning them honor and praise from their commanders. Some have been recognized in other ways throughout history. In October 1968, Peter Salem, an African American patriot of the American Revolutionary War, was depicted on a postage stamp, portraying his valor during the Battle of Bunker Hill.

African American genealogy can be challenging to say the least, but it is not impossible. When you know where, and more importantly how, to search, it can become less confusing. The book Forgotten Patriots, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution, identifies more than 5,000 men, either slave or freemen, who may have been patriots during the Revolutionary War. In 2010, this book was honored with the prestigious Donald Lines Jacobus Award from the American Society of Genealogists.

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library has a copy of this book, along with others in the collection that may help locate African American Revolutionary War patriots in your ancestry. The library is located at 401 State Street, and the staff will be happy to assist you in all areas of your genealogical research!

During our last "Friend-Raiser" program hosted by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, the Ninian Edwards Chapter of the DAR donated a three-volume set of books relating to women in the Revolutionary War era. Like African American research, records for women (particularly during this time) can also be hard to locate, so we are extremely pleased to be able to offer these books as part of our historic Illinois Room collection.

FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. ## Herbie's Game

Herbie's Game, by Timothy Hallinan, is a lighthearted crime fiction tale. It is about a career house burglar, Junior Bender, who is hired by a crime boss named Wattles to recover an important document that was stolen from his office safe. This list contains the names of those that Wattles uses in what he calls his disconnect, which is a very convoluted chain of communication. It is designed to ensure that the assassinations and other crimes he orders are not traced back to him. So, with that in mind, it is very important that this list does not fall into the wrong hands.

This assignment sends Junior on a wild caper where he meets all sorts of colorful characters and finds out a lot about his own past and ends up questioning the choices he has made in his life.

Hallinan is schooled in all of the great popular crime mystery authors. While the Elmore Leonard, Donald Westlake, and Chandler influences are quite obvious, there is also quite a bit of Damon Runyon in there as well.

This book is very engaging, and I think it is a great summer read; one to have on your lap at the beach or up at the lake.

VALUABLE VOLUNTEER
John Gibbons

John Gibbons started volunteering for Hayner in 2005, though he had put in numerous hours in the Genealogy Library before he became my Jack-of-all-trades volunteer.

He originally worked in the so-called "Mouse Hole," an area in Hayner's storage building, which was the old Hudson Jewelry Store next to the downtown library. We processed and discarded old books, getting ready for our big move into the Alton Square Mall library. John came down every day, Monday through Friday, to work with me and other volunteers. He kept statistics for us and processed the books.

John also volunteered to help me with Operation Soldiers. We received hundreds of donations for our soldiers overseas, which we boxed and mailed. Through the generous contributions of our community and Hayner's wonderful volunteers, we sent more than 300 boxes to the soldiers.

John then helped tag hundreds of books with sensor tags. The next big job for him was helping us move books from downtown to the new library downstairs at Alton Square. John never turned me down for any project that I needed help with.

I knew how much he loved genealogy, and with the new genealogy building, we were going to need volunteers to help at the desk. John was a perfect match. He not only helps the librarians, but he also is working on Alton parochial schools and their historical trails. He has used the Alton Telegraph to find information and pictures about schools. He has finished with St. Patrick's School and is now working on St. Matthew's School. He also has done the family histories of the Gibbons, Fritsche, Rynders, and Berghoff families. Along with the family history books, he also wrote a thesis on the legend of the Piasa Bird. These can be found in our Genealogy & Local History Library.

Now I am sure you can understand why I call John my Jack-of-all-trades volunteer. Maybe I should call him my John-of-all-trades!

John grew up in Alton, living on Virginia Avenue with his parents and siblings. He tells me he had a very normal childhood. He had a paper route, cut grass, and played in the fields of St. Anthony's Hospital. He walked to school, built model airplanes, and really enjoyed street sports. He feels lucky that his childhood was in simpler times. There were families with lots of children to play with in his neighborhood, and the kids made their own fun.

John went to St. Mary's grade school in Alton. He was a good student. He loved music and attributes his love for choral music to Sister Theona, his music teacher.

John thought he wanted to be a priest. During his youth, if you chose to go into the priesthood you started preparing in your first year of high school. He was sent to the Pontifical College Josephinum in Ohio. After seven years he decided not to become a priest.

He came back to the Alton area and spent two years at St. Louis University. He graduated in 1959 with a degree in English and a minor in philosophy. In 1990 he went to Lewis & Clark College and received a Library Technician degree. He actually interned a semester for Hayner Library.

John was in the service from July 1959 to December 1962 He was in the Reserves from January 1963 to September 1967. He is a graduate of Officer Candidate School and served as Air Intelligence Officer for Attack Squadron 42 (VA-42) at Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

John went to work for McDonnell Douglas in 1963. His jobs included editing Engineering Flight Text reports; acting as an administrator for contracts and pricing; and working in the Law Department–Government Regulations. He retired in 1998.

John married Barbara Ann Rynders in 1959. They will have been married for 55 years this coming November. They have three children, two boys and a girl. I asked John what made his marriage so special. He said that Barbara is very talented. She plays the piano, paints, sews, and has a beautiful soprano voice. He loves her energy and dedication to family and friends.

For relaxation John reads novels and works on genealogy. He and Barbara both enjoy going to the St. Louis Symphony and Alton Little Theater. One of the most special experiences in his life was singing in St. Ambrose Parish adult choir for 30 years. It gave him great joy but also gave him one of the saddest times in his life. He had to step down from the choir when his tenor voice stopped working the way he thought it should.

One of John's greatest honors was being elected president of the old Riverbend United Way. It was a position he took great pride in. I think whatever John does, whether it is work or family or volunteering in his community, he gives it his all!

I asked John what advice he would give for living a good life. He told me to know yourself, your strengths and your weaknesses. A good life to John is to have been faithful to the promises you have made and have provided for the needs of your family, all with a solid moral and religious basis.

The last thing that I asked John was what he liked about volunteering for Hayner Library. He said, "Good books, good people."

We are so lucky to have John Gibbons as a volunteer.

Select Science Books Have Arrived

The new Select Science books have arrived at Hayner Public Library! Select Science is a library program emphasizing interest and resources in the sciences with books purchased through a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library. Area educational and science organizations as well as the staff at the library all contributed suggestions for new books.

Local organizations such as the National Great Rivers Museum, Army Corps of Engineers, Alton School District, the Center for American Archeology, and The Nature Institute each contributed suggestions for books that bring real-life applications of biology, ecology, chemistry, and engineering, to name a few, that pertain to the many scientific endeavors in which the Riverbend area is involved.

According to Hayner Reference Librarian Jean Shimunek , and Assistant Director Katie Schrimpf, the Select Science books also include books on technology and engineering, math, AP study guides for math and biology, SAT and ACT math subject test books, a set of pro and con books on the future of renewable energy, a set of books on the issues of the environment, electronics, makerspace books (tinkering), and more.

Two exciting sets of books, Core Concepts, involve the basic blocks of science. Not only do they conform to Common Core State Standards initiatives, they are intriguing and well written with great illustrations and examples for projects. Shimunek expects that these books will interest not only students, but many adults.

Come to the library to explore the new books in the Select Science collection, on display throughout the libraries. Although all the books have not yet been delivered, many are available for checkout now!

These science books were purchased by Hayner Library through a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library, a Division of the Office of Secretary of State, using funds provided by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), under the federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA).

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2014, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Alton Student in PBS Show Filmed at Hayner

In August, the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library hosted a production team from PBS while they filmed an episode of their nationally syndicated television show The Genealogy Roadshow.

The subject of their filming was 14-year-old James Taylor, a sophomore at Alton High James has been involved in researching his own family's genealogy since he was eight years old, when he first started questioning his mother and father about his family's background. Over the years, through contact with extended family members and his own genealogical research, James has been able to trace his family origins back to Mali, a country in West Africa. James was picked to tell his story on The Genealogy Roadshow from over 1,000 other applicants.

In addition to the Genealogy & Local History Library, the production team filmed at My Just Desserts in Alton and at Union Station in downtown St. Louis

This program will air in November 2014. Watch the Hayner website for the exact date

DAR "FRIEND-RAISER" Open House Event

Saturday, November 1, 2014, 1:00–3:00 p.m.
401 State Street, Alton, Illinois 62002

The Daughters of the American Revolution is a volunteer service organization dedicated to promoting patriotism, preserving American history, and securing America's future through better education for children.

The Ninian Edwards Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library invite you to our third annual Open House event for anyone interested in researching their genealogy and interested in becoming a DAR member.

We will once again have experienced researchers available to help you get started or to help you conclude your search for the Revolutionary War patriot in your family. These researchers can also help guide you through the application process for joining DAR

One success story from last year's event involves Barb Hinson. She came to the event after seeing it advertised in the Hayner newsletter and hoped to learn how to join DAR. With the help of the active DAR members and research done by Barb's uncle, Ray Luken, Barb did find her Revolutionary War patriot ancestor. William Taylor served under Capt. William Fullwood in the militia of South Carolina and was a member of the Committee of Safety. Barb was inducted into the Ninian Edwards Chapter in September. Congratulations, Barb!

Admission to this event is free, and registration is not necessary. If you have questions, please call us at 462-0677, Ext. 2865 All are welcome to join us for this event We hope to see you there

Sisterhood of the Traveling Book

Hayner Library Assistant Miriam Lozano was chosen by author Lisa Wingate to take part in Wingate's advertising campaign for her new book, The Story Keeper, which is coming out in September.

Wingate calls the campaign the Sisterhood of the Traveling Book. Wingate selected people from her mailing list and created groups of five people per group (10 groups in all). She sent the book to the Big Sister for each group.

Miriam, her group's Big Sister, read it, making notations and commenting on different parts of the book. When she was finished, she sent it on to the next sister, and when all five had read it, the annotated book was sent back to Lisa. It was Miriam's job as Big Sister to make sure the other sisters read and moved the book forward so all the groups were finished prior to the September 1 deadline.

Lisa then used the stories or comments to promote her book via Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest, and other media. Lisa posted Miriam's personal story to Lisa's website, and Miriam's comments were posted to Lisa's Facebook page.

Read Miriam's story, "A Little Publishing Miracle," on Lisa's website, http://theuntoldstory.guru/

This summer, many of you commented on the flower bed of beautiful petunias that runs across the front of the Downtown Library on Belle Street. Library staff maintains these beds, but we also want to thank John Stephan, who works at Mac's Time Out Lounge, for daily watering of these flowers while he is watering the beds that Mac's has planted Thanks to John and Mac Lenhardt for helping keep Downtown beautiful!

On June 3, during a live radio broadcast by WBGZ from the Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall, the winning raffle tickets were drawn for two iPad Air tablets. Congratulations to the winners, Penny Noble and Barbara Gearing, and thank you to all our patrons who participated in the raffle!

Research shows that the more words parents use when speaking to an 8-month-old infant, the greater the size of their child's vocabulary at age 3. The landmark Hart-Risley study on language development documented that children from low-income families hear as many as 30 million fewer words than their more affluent peers before the age of 4. Hart, B.and Risley, T., Meaningful Differences in the Everyday Experiences of Young American Children (1995), Paul H Brookes Publishing Co.

Hayner Library Architect Theodore Link

When John E. Hayner decided to donate the money to build the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library, famed Alton architect Lucas Pfeiffenberger submitted a proposal. Pfeiffenberger had designed homes for many prominent Altonians, including the library's benefactor John E Hayner, and public and commercial buildings such as Alton National Bank, Garfield School, St. Mary's Catholic Church, and the Madison Hotel. However, the Library Association decided to accept plans proposed by a competing architect, Theodore Link of St. Louis

A distant cousin of Pfeiffenberger, Link is best known for St. Louis's Union Station. Link designed the main building at Monticello Seminary, now Lewis & Clark Community College in Godfrey, after a fire destroyed the original buildings in 1888 The key Link presented to Harriet Haskell, president of Monticello College, at the original dedication ceremony in 1889, is now on display in the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library. Link also designed the Harriet Newell Haskell Memorial Gate at Monticello after Miss Haskell died in 1907. The gate is said to be the first national monument erected in the memory of a woman

Several other buildings in the Alton area are also Link's work. In 1891, he designed a mansion at the southwest corner of Third and Alton Streets for Captain Henry Leyhe, who, with his brother, founded the Eagle Packet Company The mansion was torn down in 1940 to make way for an Illinois Bell Telephone Company building. Link also designed the First Presbyterian Church at the corner of Fourth and Alby, whose cornerstone was laid on July 5, 1897. Link drew up plans for a house for John E Hayner's grandson, John A. Haskell, on Henry Street in 1905 and for the Benjamin L. Dorsey mansion, later known as The Castle, on East Fourth Street in 1908.

Born in Heidelberg, Germany, in 1850, Theodore C. Link studied engineering and architecture at the University of Heidelberg and l'Ecole Centrale in Paris before immigrating to the United States in 1870. He worked for railroads in New York, Philadelphia, and Texas, before coming to St. Louis in 1874 as a draftsman for the bridges and building department of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Company The following year, he left the railroad to help draw up plans for the city's new Forest Park

In 1877 Link moved to Pittsburgh but came back to St. Louis in 1882 to open a civil engineering office and by 1886 was listed in the St. Louis City Directory as an architect. In 1891 St. Louis's Terminal Railroad Association invited ten architectural firms from around the country to submit designs for a new train station. Link and his partner at the time, Edward Cameron, won the contest. Twenty thousand people turned out on Sept. 1, 1894, to dedicate Union Station, which at the time was the largest railroad station in the world

In 1899 Link was elected a national board member of the American Institute of Architects. St. Louis had just been selected to host the 1903 World's Fair Link bought $25,000 worth of stock in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company and became one of five local architects appointed to the Fair's Committee on Architecture (there were also several out-of-town architects from New York and Boston). Link designed the Mines & Metallurgy Building as well as the Mississippi State Building. His design for the actual Mississippi State Capitol was being constructed at the same time in Jackson, Mississippi

Link made his mark all over St. Louis His buildings encompassed many styles, so it can be difficult to picture them all imagined by one architect Second Presbyterian Church (1899), St. John's United Methodist Church (1901), and the first Carnegie Library in St. Louis, the Barr Branch (1905), all boast his designs Link designed three mansions on Delmar Boulevard in University City that now make up the Theodore Link Historic District. The International Shoe Company Headquarters (1909), Link's tribute to Louis Sullivan's Wainwright Building, is now part of the spectacular City Museum.

Outside of the St. Louis area, Link designed a campus master plan and several buildings for both Washington and Lee University (1904) and Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge (1919). Link worked with Wilbur Tyson Trueblood, another St. Louis architect, on the Louisiana State University project.

Theodore Link died in Baton Rouge on November 12, 1923, and is buried at Bellefontaine Cemetery in St. Louis.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery, as well as at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 13, 2014, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue Fourth grade students from St. Mary's Catholic School, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves. The ceremony will involve a number of other participants and include musical accompaniment. It will last approximately one-half hour.

In 2013, through community financial donations, 560 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. The fund-raising goal for this year is $5600. Every $30 of contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths

Every dollar you can donate helps ensure a wreath at every veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton IL 62002 For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-474-2005. More information is also available on the Web site www wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission of "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us.

Vintage Voices

Alton Little Theater is showcasing the 13th Annual Vintage Voices tour every Saturday in October: October 4, 11, 18, and 25, with guided walking tours from 1 to 3 p.m , originating at the east gate of the Alton City Cemetery.

This year's tour, directed by Mark Hilgert (who often appears as Elijah P. Lovejoy), is aptly called "Voices of Courage" and features nine stops along the beautiful wooded paths of the cemetery, and eleven historian/ actors. Seven new actors will be making their debuts in portraying Alton's former citizens. Hilgert was successful in attracting new players in the community who love history and love Alton's history in particular.

With two exceptions, all the actors portray characters living in the first quarter of the 1900s and represent those who took up novel activities or pioneered new fields or advocated for change that furthered human rights. Some examples include Melissa Van Zant, a suffragette who traveled from California to settle in Alton and cast her vote in Illinois; Ambrose Bibb, who became the symbol of desegregating schools in Illinois; Hannah and Joachim Scarritt, who envisioned Alton and the Mississippi as "national treasures" and held the ideals of education above all else.

The characters run the gamut of amusing individuals like the "hoo-doo" sect who did anything and everything to de-haunt their homes from unwelcome spirits to Ruthie Hapwood, whose family achieved much in the literary world but who nevertheless knew heartache and disaster.

The tour includes the stories of two young people whose brief lives touched the history of our state and the nation. Emma Surgent will portray a young girl who attended the State Fair in Alton in 1856; she will be joined in looking back at Alton's role in history by a young man, Jerrell Williams, who will portray an African American soldier (Thomas Riley) who fought and died for the union he so loved. Other performers include: Jeff Pruett, Patti Kruegel, Loretta Williams, Morgan Ruden, Lynn Carter, Don Harlan, Amy Miller, John Meehan, and Jacob Henderson.

Tickets for the hour-long tour are $12 for Adults and $6 for students through high school; tickets will be available for pre-purchase at the Alton Area Regional Convention and Visitor's Bureau and WBGZ Radio after Sept. 1. Tour guests will have the opportunity to purchase tickets at the main gate of the cemetery, beginning each Saturday at 12:45 p m., and to register for a raffle for tickets to ALT's 81st Season shows and the Holiday Bonus Show, ALWAYS PATSY CLINE

Last Winter, We Parted

by Fuminori Nakamura

This is a psychological thriller by the popular Japanese crime writer Fuminori Nakamura. The plot is very reminiscent of Truman Capote's In Cold Blood in that it deals with a writer who is interviewing a murderer and in the process of doing so goes crazy The prose is very spare, which creates a cold and clinical atmosphere throughout the book.

Along with that, this book almost felt like I was reading a true crime book in that the author told half of the story through letters that the main character and the villain wrote to each other, as well as the epistles that the villain wrote to his sister

As interesting as this was, it also made the story a bit tedious, and I would not recommend this if you are looking for a fast read. It requires patience and the desire to wade through what I call minutiae. But if you are looking for something challenging, then give this one a try.

10 Things You Can Do to Raise a Reader

Parents are a child's first teachers, and there are many simple things you can do every day to share the joy of reading while strengthening your child's literacy skills.

1. Read from day one. Start a reading routine in those very first days with a newborn. Even very young babies respond to the warmth of a lap and the soothing sound of a book being read aloud.
2. Share books every day. Read with your child every day, even after he becomes an independent reader.
3. Reread favorites. Most children love to hear their favorite stories over and over again. Rereading books provides an opportunity to hear or see something that may have been missed the first time, and provides another chance to hear a favorite part
4. Send positive messages about the joys of literacy. Your own interest and excitement about books will be contagious!
5. Visit the library early and often. Public libraries are great resources for books, helpful advice about authors and illustrators, story times, and more. Make visiting the library part of your family's routine
6. Find the reading and writing in everyday things. Take the time to show your child ways that adults use reading and writing every day. Grocery lists, notes to the teacher, maps, and cooking all involve important reading and writing skills
7. Give your reader something to think and talk about. There are many different types of books available to readers Vary the types of books you check out from the library, and seek out new subjects that give you and your reader something to think and talk about
8. Talk, talk, talk. A child's vocabulary grows through rich conversations with others No matter your child's age, narrate what you're doing, talk in full sentences, and sprinkle your conversations with interesting words.
9. Know your stuff. Parents don't need to be reading specialists, but it is important to understand the basics about learning to read.
10. Speak up if something doesn't feel right. Parents are often the first ones to recognize a problem. If you have concerns about your child's development, speak with your child's teacher and your pediatrician. It's never too early to check in with an expert.

Look for new books and authors that your child may enjoy
Organize an area dedicated to reading and writing tools
Visit the library for story time and book recommendations
Encourage your child to talk about what he's read

Talk to your child, and sprinkle interesting words into your conversation.
Offer a variety of books to read.

Read with your child every day
Expand your home library to include magazines and nonfiction.
Ask questions if you're concerned about your child's development.
Decide to raise a reader!

Local Yearbooks Needed for Digital Scanning Project

The Genealogy & Local History Library has been invited to participate in the OCI yearbook project conducted by the Record Conversion Department at Oklahoma Correctional Industries (OCI) in Lexington, Oklahoma.

After hearing that high schools and local libraries were losing their historical collections of yearbooks through natural disasters, fires, and vandalism, OCI decided that it could help preserve these books and their historical content in Oklahoma. The project was so successful that now the state agency is contacting libraries in other states with offers, at no cost, to digitize the covers and every page of their yearbooks by scanning at 300 dpi, saving in a jpeg format, and then storing on a DVD. Because they are done in publisher quality, the books can be reprinted from the disk.

The Records Conversion Department has been in business for 30 years and does records conversion for every state agency in Oklahoma, including the Department of Education, Department of Human Services, Department of Labor, the Oklahoma Supreme Court, and the Attorney General's Office.

We have an extensive collection of local high school yearbooks in the Genealogy & Local History Library, but we don't have everything We would love to have a complete run to send to be digitized, and we need your help to complete our collection!

We are looking for donations of the following yearbook volumes:

- Alton High School – Tatler: 1910, 1960, 1980, 1990, 1993–1997, 2008
- Marquette High School – Explorer: anything before 1961, 1963
- Monticello Seminary College – Echo: 1944
- Shurtleff College – Retrospect: 1913–1916, 1918, 1920, 1923, 1924, 1926, 1927, 1931, 1933–1937, 1941–1949, 1954, 1957
- Western Military Academy – Recall: 1923, 1928–1935, 1950, 1962, 1969

If you would like to donate yearbooks or other historical materials for the Illinois Room, please call 618-462-0677, ext. 2865, to discuss your donation.

Get Linked!

The Hayner Public Library District has introduced a new service called "Associated Library Cards." This function will allow library card accounts to be associated, or linked, between members of the same household This relationship allows a patron to present his own card to pick up holds or renew items on accounts associated with his card. This function applies ONLY to holds or renewals and cannot be used for checking out new items.

To establish an association, the requesting patron must present all library cards that are to be associated. Cards can be associated only between patrons residing at the same residence.

Once associated (linked), it is the responsibility of the patron to request a transaction for an associated account (library staff members will not assume association, and our system does not automatically display associated accounts).

Per current fine policy, no transactions will be placed on any account that has a fine over five dollars. This applies to individuals as well as associated accounts

Associations may be terminated by presenting all associated library cards that were previously linked.

Questions? Just check with the staff at any Hayner Library location or call 462-0677.

Stephanie Munson Retires

This past December, longtime employee Stephanie Munson retired after almost 30 years of service to the library.

Stephanie has been a wonderful member of the Hayner staff and served in many different capacities. She first started working at the library in 1985 at the circulation desk. The following year she was put in charge of the bookmobile, an assignment she loved. The bookmobile would make its rounds of schools and neighborhoods five days a week. The summers were especially busy when kids were out of school. Steph remembers on many occasions putting a blanket out on someone's lawn and telling stories to the neighborhood kids.

The bookmobile was eventually disbanded due to rising costs, and Stephanie was put in charge of establishing a Homebound Program This program delivered library materials to patrons who were confined to their homes. Steph organized the program and enlisted a set of volunteers who would visit patrons every week. Equally important as the delivery of library materials was the time Steph and her volunteers spent visiting with the patrons, providing company and brightening their days. When Stephanie started Homebound, she delivered 25 items a month. When she left the program in 2005, she and her volunteers were delivering over 1500 items.

In 2006 Stephanie was put in charge of managing the volunteer program for the library district. As Volunteer Coordinator, Steph managed the recruitment, scheduling, and activities of 56 volunteers Some volunteers were active on a weekly schedule, and some were involved in special projects. Stephanie also involved herself in special projects. In 2013 she instituted a program to send books to military service men and women. She ended up mailing over 350 boxes of books overseas.

In 2014 Steph took on the job of project manager to help create the first cookbook published by The Hayner Public Library District. She solicited recipes from the community, Facebook friends, Hayner staff and board members, and even authors With the help of volunteers, she sorted and formatted over 900 recipes into a terrific book, Read 'Em and Eat (available for purchase at any Hayner Library location, $20).

In her spare time, when not working, Stephanie was often engaged as a storyteller and has entertained many audiences, children and adults alike. She also was involved with Alton Little Theater, both onstage and behind the scenes, for 15 years

Stephanie plans to keep very busy in retirement. She and her husband, Harry, look forward to traveling the country and already have a trip planned for the spring, driving from Seattle, Wash., down the coast to San Diego, Calif. Stephanie also has an antique booth at the Alton Exchange that she will continue to maintain Most importantly, however, Stephanie looks forward to spending time with her three grandchildren, Brooklyn, Soren, and Elin

Stephanie's kindness, bubbly personality, and ready smile have touched many hearts, patrons and staff alike, so we are happy to announce that she will not be fully gone from the library She intends to keep working several hours per week managing her staff of volunteers. Congratulations, Stephanie, on your retirement and great thanks for your many years of wonderful service

A Message from Stephanie...

As I look back on my 30-year journey at Hayner, the word people stands out in my mind. I have developed such strong friendships with patrons and coworkers. It is these friendships that have kept me going through the good times and the rough ones.

I have been so lucky to be able to initiate some programs for Hayner. The Homebound program is what I am most proud of. In the twenty years that I delivered to the homebound, it was the people that made it a joy to do. What better job for me than to be out and about, visiting the homebound. I am so grateful for that opportunity

I learned a lot in those twenty years, and I have many fond memories to cherish I was given a chance to develop a volunteer program for Hayner. That has been a great experience, too. We have so many wonderful people volunteering for Hayner

Thank you, Hayner Library, staff, and patrons for such wonderful years. –Stephanie

Star Wars Reads Day 2014

Star Wars Reads Day is an international event that celebrates reading and Star Wars It was launched in 2012 by Lucasfilm.

If you came out to join us for Star Wars Reads Day 2014, you were greeted by characters from the Garrison 501st Legion from Scott Air Force Base. The day started with activities ranging from designing your own X-wing fighter to battling with our homemade light sabers

Kids enjoyed a Star Wars–themed cookie from The Cookie Factory Café and had their picture taken with one of our three Star Wars–themed characters.

Paddy and Jon Lynn
Spoon River Anthology

Tuesday, March 10, 6:30 p.m.

No other literary work from Illinois has ever had the radical impact of Edgar Lee Masters' Spoon River Anthology, published in 1915 In Masters' 243 thinly-veiled epitaph-poems, people from all walks of life come forward from their graves and share compelling stories of their hopes, dreams, tragedies, and joys, not to mention their advice and warnings to those still living. The uproar that this book created because of its unique free verse style and its portrayal of characters with blunt, brutal honesty caused a scandal upon its debut. As a result, it was banned from the Spoon River area schools and libraries until 1974. The stories capture all aspects of life—irony, comedy, failure, success. These dramatized monologues portrayed by Paddy and Jon Lynn, accompanied by musician Patti Ecker, will not only reflect on the life and times of those living in 1915, but also offer universal lessons to Illinoisans living today. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

The event is being produced in part by the Illinois Humanities Council's Road Scholars Speakers Bureau, a program that provides organizations statewide with affordable, entertaining, and thought-provoking humanities events for their communities

I know that I can always count on her for many of our volunteer projects. She delivers books to The Fountains IV and also keeps track of library materials at Senior Services Plus

Jan has always been an avid reader She has been a patron of the library most of her life When her boys went to school all day, Jan decided to go back to school herself. She was working toward her associate degree in Library Science and heard that Hayner was looking for a part-time assistant librarian.

Jan was hired to work part-time in 1986. She worked part-time in many facets of the library. She worked in the children's area and at the front desk in the adult library, and you might have seen her filling in at the branch library

When Jan started at the library we still had card catalogs. You would look up the title or author or subject in a giant card catalog with thousands of cards in alphabetical order. There were no computers. You would use the card catalog and use a typewriter to write your papers for school.

Jan became a full-time cataloger about 10 years later. She worked in that position until she retired in 2001. In 2003, after being home with her retired husband all day, she decided she needed to get out more and came back to the library in a part-time capacity. She takes care of all new patron cards and overdue books

Jan is really a Minnesota girl at heart. She was born in Wadena, Minnesota, 75 years ago. Jan was an only child for seven years before her other siblings came along. She has three younger sisters and a brother. Her aunts and uncles spoiled her rotten, she says

She spent many weekends at her paternal grandparents' farm because they had her aunt, who was only three years older than Jan. She really liked to be at the farm the week the threshers came to harvest and she and her grandmother and aunt would cook for them.

Her aunts and uncles played several instruments by ear, so they had many evenings with plays and songfests Jan's parents were children of the 1930s, and both knew how to work hard. Her father always had several jobs at once. Her mother worked at the Ben Franklin store during the war Jan has come by her work ethic naturally

Jan's full name is Janice Rose Mary Kern. Her middle names were given to her in honor of both her grandmothers

Jan has three sisters; Judy, Jackie, and JoAnn, and one brother, Jim. They came from Minnesota to Illinois in 1949 when Judy was 3 and Jackie was 1. They traveled by train and met their Dad in Joplin, Missouri. In March that year her brother, Jim, was born, and a year later her sister JoAnn arrived Jan was the babysitter for her brother and sisters and even took them on her dates

Jan went to Catholic schools in Alton and Minnesota. She went to St. Patrick's grade school in Alton and graduated from Marquette high school. She says she was an okay student Her parents always made sure they lived within walking distance of schools because they didn't have a car. She enjoyed school but felt that she didn't fit in with other students. She worked after school for her tuition to Marquette, mostly in shops downtown. She dreamed of going to nursing school, but it was too expensive.

Her first job after high school was as bookkeeper at Foster's Drug store. She also assisted Dr. Pierce and worked in the Alton Children's Clinic for several years.

She married her husband, Rex, in 1959. Rex worked at Laclede Steel. He was offered a job with their riggers, and loved it. Jan and Rex felt it was dangerous. So they decided that Jan would go to LPN school at Alton High's campus, to have some backup if they needed it. After graduation she worked in Pediatrics at St Joseph's Hospital in Alton and also worked for Dr. Ray Ward and the VNA.

She and Rex hoped for a large family, but that was not to be. So they applied to adopt and within months received their son Michael They also took in foster children and were able to adopt their youngest son, Eric.

They had many fun vacations. They traveled to Florida, St Thomas, Hawaii, Minnesota, and Arizona. One road trip was 5,000 miles. They went to Oregon, Utah, San Francisco, Idaho, and Washington State

One of Jan's special memories is when Rex bought a pony and a cart. The family had many enjoyable rides down Seiler Road

Jan and Rex also liked to play golf. They loved movies, musicals, and stage productions. They attended many shows at the Mississippi River Festival in Edwardsville.

Jan's husband passed away a couple of years ago. Jan says if there is anything that is good about his passing, it is that she has a strong family relationship and really good friends to keep her busy. Of course she has her library job and the Hayner Family!

I always ask when writing biographies of my volunteers, What do you think constitutes a "Good Life"?

Jan's advice is to treat others as you want to be treated. Have a good relationship with God or your concept of a Higher Power. If a stranger makes eye contact with you, smile! She considers success in life as having a job that you enjoy and family and friends to love.

I am so blessed to have Jan in my life as a friend, coworker, and volunteer. Thank you for always looking out for me

2014 Library Card Drive

Last fall, The Hayner Public Library District partnered with local businesses in Alton, Godfrey, and Fosterburg to hold our second annual library card drive. From Saturday, November 29, to Saturday, December 6, these businesses offered a discount or other incentive to customers showing their Hayner library cards. We wanted to encourage more people to get library cards and to show current library card holders that their card is worth even more than they might have realized. ## Climb to the Stars with Hayner!

This spring, Hayner will be adding some surprising new materials to our collections for you to check out . . . telescopes!

Yes, telescopes The library has an agreement with the St. Louis Astronomical Society for the purchase of two Orion StarBlast 4.5" Reflector Telescopes Two Alton astronomers and St. Louis Astronomical Society members, Mr. Eddie Agha, staff astronomer at The Nature Institute, and Mr. Steve Sands, staff astronomer for the Watershed Nature Center, have each purchased a telescope to donate to the library collection, as has Ms. Patti Brown, Education Director at The Nature Institute, bringing the total number of available telescopes to five.

The SLAS Library Telescope Program seeks to foster scientific literacy, stimulate an interest in astronomy, and provide people who have never looked through a telescope the chance to experience the excitement that comes from discovery The program takes advantage of the public library system infrastructure to place telescopes in local public libraries for circulation just like a book.

Hayner, as a participant in this program, will be offering these telescopes to patrons to check out for a loan period of one week. Patrons must have a valid Hayner Library card and be 18 years of age or older. The telescopes will come with a zoom lens, a National Audubon Society pocket guide, and a book on constellations

A Message from the Friends of Hayner Library

Exciting news from the Friends of Hayner Library: We are letting our Friends and our community know that we are now meeting on Tuesday nights from 6:00 to 8.00 to sort books. This is a great chance for those of you who can't meet in the daytime to come and help get our donated books sorted and shelved and generally get ready for our book sales.

As you know, the money collected from book sales helps the library purchase things to help make it the best library around!

Please consider joining us on Tuesday evenings or on Monday mornings from 9:30 until noon. It's lots of fun, and you'll find friendly people who share a love of books. The Friends of Hayner Library building is located at 327 State Street, Alton.

A change of officers includes Carole Conley as President, Susan Wilkinson as Secretary, and David Zimmerman as Treasurer.

Also, we are busy getting ready for our spring book sale on May 8 and 9.

We look forward to meeting all of you at the sale and hopefully joining in to help sort books on Monday mornings and Tuesday evenings. For more information about sorting, volunteering, or donating books, please call 618-462-4396.

Food for Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only. Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

Please help our friends at the 5 A's—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702. Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Remember Mom on Mother's Day!

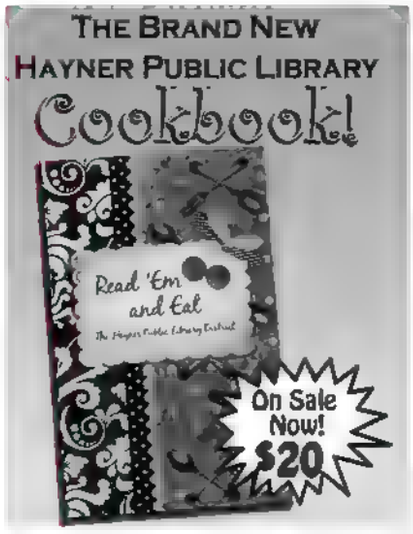
The perfect gift for the Moms in your life is a copy of the Hayner Library cookbook, Read 'Em and Eat. The cookbook features over 900 unique and delicious recipes along with helpful kitchen hints and tips. Recipes were compiled from contributions of library patrons, community members, Hayner Library Board and staff, and various authors.

This project was spearheaded by Stephanie Munson, longtime library employee, and cochaired by library volunteer Marcia Sivia. Stephanie and Marcia led a team of invaluable volunteers who were critical to the completion of the book. Great thanks and appreciation go out to Shirley Noble, Sherry Rexford, and Martha Steiner for all their hard work. Also, thanks to Hayner Library staff members Theresa McDonald, Marilyn Stewart, Michele Kelly, and Teressa Heafner for their contributions in the compilation process. A special thanks to Kate Rose for copyediting the book.



The cookbook is available for sale at all Hayner Library locations and costs $20. Proceeds from the cookbooks will go toward supplementing our material collections. It makes a perfect gift for Mother's Day, spring birthdays, or just a special treat!

A Donation That Grew

In 2004 The Hayner Public Library District was fortunate to become the recipient of an extraordinary donation from the Alton Area Landmarks Association. This donation included information on approximately 300 Alton addresses, along with a fireproof file cabinet and archival folders in which to store these wonderful historical documents. Since the very beginning of this project, the staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library has continually updated and appended additional addresses to this collection as things became available.

Of course, we don't have every street address in Alton, but our files are definitely growing larger with every addition!

Information compiled on a particular address may contain items such as newspaper clippings, photos, or a variety of documents relating to the property, business, or owner. We also have house abstracts for a few area homes. Abstracts are a wonderful resource for anyone researching the history of a house or property. They can also be a genealogical gem for someone researching a family tree. Unfortunately, locating an original abstract for your house can be a daunting, if not impossible, task, so we are extremely grateful for the abstract donations we have received over the past years.

With this collection we have also compiled an extensive index. Using the index helps locate a particular address, business, or family name quickly and easily.

In January we finished inventorying every address in each street folder, and then we began updating each street folder with articles and photos we had collected while working on the inventory. The project took 17 months to complete.

This project never truly ends, for we are continually researching and collecting new information to add.

After the inventory was completed and all the updates were added, we found that we had approximately 2,863 addresses and 258 streets in the Property Files. That is 2,563 more entries than the original 300 we received when this collection came to us for housing. It is a donation that continues to grow and serve more people with every new entry we add.

The index includes 1,149 listings for businesses in the Alton/Godfrey area, 675 entries for miscellaneous listings such as parks, churches, schools, house tour listings, Sears homes, landmark buildings, and sites listed on the National Register of Historic Places. We have listings for many properties that are no longer in existence. Properties such as the Mansion House that served as a hospital during the end of the Civil War, the old City Hall building where Abraham Lincoln gave his last speech during his senatorial debate in 1858, and the old Comet Drive-In restaurant on Broadway, where many Altonians ate their lunches during the week and took their dates on Friday nights!

We extend a very special thank you to Mr. Terry Sharp, Mr. Harold Meisenheimer, and staff in the Alton Assessor's Office who, over the years, have helped us gather information, find photos, and research numerous addresses to add to this collection.

If you would like to research your home or business, please come see us! This collection is archived in the Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street. We also have Alton City directories from 1858 to 2013, and The Telegraph newspapers have been digitized and are keyword searchable back to 1836. Both of these resources can be helpful in locating information about the homes, businesses, and families in our local neighborhoods.

If you have information, an abstract, or photos of your home or business, please consider donating copies to our property files. By doing so, you will be helping to preserve our local history while supporting your hometown library. The staff of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library will be happy to copy your originals and promptly return them to you.

Teenagers and Reading

Perhaps the teenagers in your family were once avid readers but now hardly ever open a book, or perhaps they never liked reading in the first place.

As an adult, you know that reading is important, and you obviously want to make sure that the teenagers in your life grow into adulthood with all the skills they need to succeed.

Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) suggests how parents can help teenagers decide for themselves that reading is important to their lives.

Try to avoid . . .

Before we list ways to encourage teen reading that work, here are a few tactics that don't:

- Pressuring, nagging, or bribing. Encourage teens to read, but don't hound them.
- Criticizing what teens read. Explain what troubles you about certain types of reading materials after reading them yourself. Forbid as little as possible. And whenever you can, accept differences of opinion as just that.
- Lavishing too much praise. If you catch your teenagers reading, show interest, but don't make a big deal out of it. Teens need to know that they're reading for their own pleasure—not for your approval.

Ways to encourage teens to read . . .

- Set an example. Let teens see you reading for pleasure.
- Furnish your home with a variety of reading materials. Leave books, magazines, and newspapers around. Check to see what disappears for a clue to what interests your teenager.
- Give teens an opportunity to choose their own books. When you and your teen are out together, browse in a bookstore or the library. Go your separate ways and make your own selections. A bookstore gift certificate is a nice way of saying, "You choose." Also, make sure your teen has their own library card.
- Build on your teen's interests. Look for books and articles that feature their favorite sports teams, rock stars, hobbies, or television shows. Give a gift subscription to a special interest magazine.
- View pleasure reading as a value in itself. Almost anything your youngsters read—including the Sunday comics—helps build reading skills.
- Read some books written for teens. Young adult novels can give you valuable insights into the concerns and pressures felt by teenagers. You may find that these books provide a neutral ground on which to talk about sensitive subjects.
- Make reading aloud a natural part of family life. Share an article you clipped from the paper, a poem, a letter, or online—without turning it into a lesson.
- Acknowledge your teen's mature interests. Look for ways to acknowledge the emerging adult in your teens by suggesting some adult reading you think they can handle.
- Keep the big picture in mind. For all sorts of reasons, some teenagers go through periods without showing much interest in reading. Don't panic! Time may help rekindle their interest.

Note: This program will be held in the Benjamin Godfrey Chapel on the campus of Lewis & Clark Community College, 5800 Godfrey Road, Godfrey, Ill.

Switchback returns! Two of our favorite performers on the circuit! "A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian FitzGerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to see and hear these amazing performers! Register at 1-800-613-3163

Bringing Cemeteries Back to Life
Could you possibly have the information we need?

With the generous help of two very dedicated volunteers, Bette Flactiff and Sue Williams, The Hayner Public Library District is trying to locate several old cemeteries in Madison County Hayner Library and these two ladies are working on a unique project, a project that preserves the history of local cemeteries through photography. These two wonderful volunteers are diligently working to photograph and record the inscriptions for each tombstone in every available cemetery in Madison County

When they finish documenting a cemetery, the photos and information they have collected are submitted to Hayner Library, where the data is digitally recorded and made available at no charge through a link on the library website. This project is a valuable genealogical resource that can help family historians from anywhere locate the graves of ancestors who died in our area. With your help, we can bring these cemeteries back to life. So far, these two ladies have photographed over 92,000 tombstones, and they are still going strong. They not only photograph the large city cemeteries; they also take their cameras into small rural cemeteries, and they happily trudge through overgrown patches of land just to locate family cemeteries or old church burial grounds that may have been forgotten, abandoned, or unkempt. On one excursion to find a small abandoned cemetery they had a face-off with a large bull just to get photographs of a few tombstones lying against a tree. These ladies have shown an inflexible determination to succeed with this project

And here is where we are sending out an SOS for your help!

We need information on the exact location of the following list of family cemeteries in Madison County:

ANDERSON in St. Jacob Township
BALLARD in Edwardsville Township
BARTLETT in Pin Oak Township
CRANDALL in Marine Township
DAMMEYER in Collinsville Township
FRUIT in Pin Oak Township
GULLICK in Helvetia Township
HOYT in Helvetia Township
RENFRO in Collinsville Township
RIETMANN in Helvetia Township
SEYBERT in Alhambra Township
SMART-HAGLER in Pin Oak Township
SPRINGER in Fort Russell Township
WEDER in Marine Township
WOOD in Alhambra Township
WIDICUS in Jarvis Township

Photographing and recording the information in our local cemeteries preserves their history and makes them accessible to everyone.

If you have any knowledge of the cemeteries we are looking for, especially the locations and directions on how to find them (even if they are being guarded by a bull or a bear!) we would like to hear from you. Please contact the Genealogy & Local History Library at Hayner at 462-0677, ext. 2865 We can help put you in touch with Bette and Sue so we can get these cemeteries included in this project. Even if the tombstones are no longer standing, or the area is not easily accessible, we would like to document their current status with an accurate location as a testament to those who were laid to rest in their soil

Walnut Grove Dairy Display at the Genealogy & Local History Library

Walnut Grove Dairy began in 1857 on a farm near Fosterburg called Walnut Grove. Casper and Josephine Joehl came to America from Switzerland and took up the dairy business they had known well in their native country. For generations, their descendants carried on this line of work.

The Joehl family started off selling milk door-to-door but, over time, bought out other small local dairies. In 1893, the Joehl family purchased Blair's Dairy and in 1908 purchased a retail milk business from A. A. Penning in Upper Alton and established a dairy at 818 East 2nd Street (the corner of Henry Street and East 2nd Street—now Broadway) in Alton In 1911, Walnut Grove bought a confectionery and began producing ice cream as well.

On August 27, 1913, at a meeting of the Alton Retail Milk Dealers and the city officials, plans were laid to give Alton the most sanitary milk system in the state. Three things for more sanitary milk were agreed upon:
1. More sanitary equipment; 2. All milk to be pasteurized; 3. All retailers shall use bottle milk system. Many local dairies, including Walnut Grove, had already been working toward these standards, and were ready when the ordinance went into effect January 1, 1914.

In 1914, Casper's son Meinrad Joehl and his sons Edward, Fred, and Albert moved the main office and plant to 811 East Broadway.
J. J. Wuellner & Son built the plant, the interior of which was lined throughout with white tile and white enameled woodwork. It cost $20,000 and had all the latest equipment to provide pasteurized milk in glass bottles Customers were invited and encouraged to visit the plant for a tour. Later there were also retail branches located in Upper Alton on Washington Avenue, in Alton on State Street and Central Avenue, in East Alton, and in Wood River

The refrigerating plant at the dairy manufactured all the ice needed to care for the milk but also kept the ice cream rooms at a temperature of two degrees below freezing The milk room in the wholesale department was kept at thirty-six degrees. Soon the demand for buttermilk had grown so strong that Walnut Grove bought a machine in St. Louis that made Hungarian milk, which was made out of skimmed milk instead of all cream but tasted exactly like buttermilk.

Peerless Ice Cream came in a variety of flavors, including vanilla, strawberry, black walnut, chocolate, and raspberry. And the ice cream must have been excellent, because it even influenced the politics of local organizations. In 1928, a Telegraph article mentioned that The East End Improvement Association elected Emil Schrimpf as its president after Edward Joehl, also nominated but not wanting the post, offered every member voting against him a gallon of ice cream.

By 1938, Walnut Grove had chocolate milk, bottled and canned buttermilk, sweet cream butter, cottage cheese, orangeade, and seasonal eggnog in addition to milk, cream, and ice cream

The ice cream division, Peerless Wholesale, was sold to Shearburns Ice Cream in 1955 so Walnut Grove could concentrate on their milk division. They still sold Peerless Ice Cream at their six retail locations Walnut Grove was sold to Prairie Farms Dairy in 1960, and previous owner Ralph Joehl stayed with the dairy under the new owners. The East Broadway dairy buildings were demolished in November 1965 to make space for Hoefert Dodge used car lot.

Walnut Grove worked hard to advertise their products and services on their bottles and in the Telegraph, and attributed their success to "good milk, good service, and printer's ink." Many of their bottles have survived and are highly collectible with local glass collectors.

We currently have a display of bottles, photographs, and advertisements from the Telegraph at the Genealogy & Local History Library.

Curious Cures from the Genealogy & Local History Library

I went to the drugstore yesterday to pick up cold medicine that I hoped contained something for my sinuses in one cure-all dose. What a mistake! I left the drugstore with nothing but the aches and pains I walked in with. The rows and rows of brightly colored boxes proclaiming an antidote for all my ills only added to my confusion and gave me a headache worse than the one I had before my trip to procure a cure began.

I drove home (still sniffling and sneezing) asking myself, "What happened to the old-fashioned cures my parents used during all those middle-of-the-night coughing, sneezing, and nausea episodes during my childhood? Those shrewd home remedies that made everything better so quick?" The medicine cabinet in our house wasn't overflowing with brightly colored boxes from the local drugstore. Our medicine cabinet held a thermometer (not a digital one either!), Band-Aids, tweezers, rubbing alcohol, and Dad's old rusty razors. I imagine he saved those old razors to use somehow in a home remedy situation but I was never privy to that information. I was just told they were not to be touched. Being a respectful daughter, I didn't touch them (too often).

Let's take a step back in time to see if you remember, or worse yet experienced, any of these noted curious cures that were used before all the "new & improved" over-the-counter boxes were so readily available.

Mustard as a medicinal condiment? Apparently congestion could be relieved with a healthy dose of this culinary side-kick. "Mustard Plaster" was made by combining ground mustard with water, then spreading the mixture on a cloth and laying the cloth on your chest. This was believed to be potent enough to break up and relieve the symptoms of congestion. Never having experienced this procedure, I Googled the words "mustard plaster" and sure enough, there it was. Over 900,000 results! Don't believe me? Try it!

Who hasn't had poison ivy at least once in their life? The itch from this despicable plant is supposed to be relieved by rubbing a cut potato over the rash. Has anyone ever actually done this since the discovery of diphenhydramine? I can only wonder why anyone would waste a perfectly good Idaho baking potato when the cure comes in the form of a convenient capsule or spray. Go figure.

Annoying hiccups? Grandpa mixed vinegar and warm water together, then drank this strong and sour brew. Sorry, Grandpa, but considering this stomach-turning remedy, I don't think hiccups are so annoying anymore.

Want a fever reducer with nary a pill hitting your tongue? Just cut up onions and put them in your socks. Yes, you read that correctly, no need to reread the last line. It said to cut up onions and put them in your socks to reduce fever! At this point I should have a remedy for stinky feet, but I don't. My personal advice for onion-scented toes (nothing medical about this one) is simple: soap and water! How hard was that? But wait, I do believe I have a copy of Grandma's recipe for homemade soap!

I will finish with my personal favorite, soothing a cough. Who would argue that Robitussin and DayQuil are better than a combination of whiskey and candy? I have your attention now, don't I? Haven't we all heard an old-timer talk about pouring rye whiskey over rock candy or mixing it with honey and lemon to stop a cough dead in its tracks? Well, I have to admit, I am not sure about the therapeutic effects of using this intoxicating mixture to soothe a cough, but it could quickly make you forget you were sick! Don't believe me? Just ask Jack, Jim or "Old Grand-Dad!"

I am not sure any of these cures actually worked. If they did, I can only imagine they did so because we had strong faith in the person attached to the loving hand administering the dose. I am in no way convinced we were cured because we had onions, mustard, and whiskey in the house. We were cured because we were loved!

If any of these cures made you stop for a moment and reminisce about your own personal family stories, it may be the right time to start building your family tree! You can begin your genealogy research at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library in the historic 401 State Street location. Come let us help you find your ancestors and their fascinating stories.

Hayner Library Databases Provide Help to All Ages

Hayner Library has a wide array of online resources to help teachers, students, and anyone interested in topics for research or for self-improvement. Library databases, sometimes called online resources or online databases, are organized collections of electronic information that allow you to search for a particular topic, article, or book in a variety of ways (e.g., keyword, subject, author, title). When you search one of these databases, you are not searching the Web; you're searching pre-selected material that is the equivalent of what you might find on a library shelf in print format.

Subscription databases consist of published journals, magazines, documents, newspapers, books, image collections, and more. Hayner Library has purchased subscription access to a variety of online databases. These resources are accessed online through the Hayner Library website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Why do libraries subscribe to databases?

- To help students doing research papers by providing accurate, authoritative articles on a wide variety of topics. Each article found is cited and can be converted to a selected citation style (MLA, APA, etc.), making it easy for students to copy and paste the citation into their papers.
- To offer access to thousands of articles from hundreds of journals and magazines, many more than a library could physically have on hand.
- To offer patrons a quick, easy way to obtain reliable information on topics of interest.

Hayner Library subscribes to more than 20 subscription databases. Some of these databases are as follows:

- Biography Reference Center is a comprehensive collection of full-text biographies.
- Literary Reference Center offers book summaries, author information, and more.
- Academic Search Premier offers peer-reviewed, full-text journal articles from many academic areas, including biology, chemistry, physics, psychology, and religion.
- History Reference Center offers articles, images, videos, and primary source documents on American and world history.
- Science Reference Center includes biology, chemistry, Earth and space science, environmental science, health, medicine, life science, physics, scientists, and technology.
- Points of View Reference Center provides students with a series of essays presenting multiple sides of current controversial issues.
- Auto Repair Reference Center has repair information for model years 1954 to 2010.
- NoveList K-8 Plus is a reader's advisory for fiction and nonfiction. K-8 is designed for teachers and kids. Features Grab and Go book lists, Picture Book Extenders.
- ConsumerReports.org provides the most current reviews of consumer products.
- Hobbies & Crafts Reference Center offers detailed "how-to" instructions and creative ideas for hobby enthusiasts provided from leading hobby and craft magazines.
- Home Improvement Reference Center has articles, videos, and images to help homeowners tackle home repairs safely.
- Legal Information Reference Center provides full text for many of the top consumer legal reference books and contains thousands of legal forms.

Spotlight on a Fine Alton Lady

A dedicated leader; industrious; conscientious; award winner; devoted teacher; artist; and a friend of many: these are all titles that have been conferred upon a lady who, among many other things, is remembered most for her love of proper English and of theater

Dorothy E. Colonius was born September 1, 1906, in Alton. She was the daughter of George and Minnie (Heide) Colonius Her father was a hard-working businessman who stayed active in civic and social affairs. Her mother, at the time of her death, was one of the oldest members of Grace Methodist Church and for many years had taken an active role within the church ministry Most likely it was Dorothy's parents who introduced the importance of public involvement to their daughter while supporting her efforts in becoming a strong, independent woman

Dorothy began her long and successful career during an era when a woman's seeking a profession was not widely encouraged. It was fortunate for the city of Alton that society's idea of women staying home and keeping house would not stop Dorothy or slow her down in her vocational pursuit.

Dorothy was an educated woman who attended not just one university, but three. Her years of education included studies at Shurtleff College in Alton, the University of Chicago, and the private, Ivy League, Cornell University in New York. In 1931 she received a master's degree in English. With degree in hand, she returned home and began her career, a career that included many years of supervising the Alton High School English Department.

In 1952 she was presented a fellowship through the Ford Foundation established by the late automobile tycoon. This fellowship allowed her to travel the United States touring professional, top-ranked theaters

In 1960 she was chosen and presented with Alton High School's Teacher of the Year award. It was a love of teaching that kept Dorothy active after her retirement in 1967. After many successful years at Alton High School, she returned to teach another two years at Marquette Catholic High School.

She was also deeply involved in local clubs and organizations She stayed active with the Madison County Retired Teachers Association, served as president of the Alton Women's Volunteer League, and the Upper Alton Women's Club during the '70s. She was also a frequent guest speaker for many other social clubs throughout the area.

A tireless advocate of thespianism, she will always be known as the guiding light in the establishment of the Alton Little Theater in November of 1933. Dorothy not only founded the theater, she committed herself to all areas of the undertaking. She was an actress, a producer, a writer, and also the business leader.

As each year passes into another, her many contributions to the theater will never go unappreciated. In 1972 the lobby of the Alton Little Theater at 2450 Henry Street was remodeled and formally dedicated "The Dorothy Colonius Foyer." For over 40 years she labored through countless obstacles and against formidable odds while working at the helm She surrendered her time and tendered her talents to keep the doors open and the ticket holders entertained. Today, due to Dorothy's efforts, the Alton Little Theater continues to be one of the longest-running successes of any such group in the United States.

Dorothy E Colonius died at St. Anthony's Hospital in the early morning of Sunday, September 16, 1979. She was 73. With her passing, she left a legacy that is remembered and honored each time the theater doors are unlocked and with every satisfied clap of hands

Thank You to Our Corporate Grantors!

A huge thank you is due to our corporate partners! Target, Dollar General, Best Buy, Walmart, and Monsanto continue to invest in the local community through grants to our library. Over the past year, The Hayner Public Library District has received more than $7,000 in grants for early childhood reading, youth literacy, teen technology skills, and information on healthy eating for all ages Another $6,000 has been awarded for Educational Resources in Science from the Monsanto Corporation

Target contributed $3,000 this year to the library for our program entitled "1,000 Books Before Kindergarten." This grant enabled the library to purchase more than 150 books, plus incentives and materials to encourage a love of reading early in life

Dollar General has, for the third year in a row, given The Hayner Public Library District $500 to be used for incentives for the Summer Reading Program. The theme for the summer of 2015 is "Read to the Rhythm," emphasizing music and musical themes in books and activities.

The technology purchased with a $3,000 grant from Best Buy enabled the library to purchase a computer, a large monitor, a video Go Pro camera, and video editing equipment for the library branch located in the Riverbender Community Center. Teens will learn to add music to videos this summer, and the equipment will be available for use by teens to create and edit videos for fun or educational use during regular Hayner/ RBCC branch library hours Future plans include some instructional sessions on how to use the equipment and software.

The local Walmart stores have contributed $750 toward the library's collection on health and food. Books will be purchased for children, parents, and adults on eating healthy and preventing health complications caused by poor dietary habits.

The forthcoming grant from Monsanto will be used to purchase new educational DVDs and science kits for use by teachers, parents, and homeschooled children. Many of these will be available in September.

Coming this Fall

Coming this fall to The Hayner Public Library District is a new family program entitled Armchair Traveler. Held every three months, each program will feature a different culture from around the world. ## New Display at the Genealogy & Local History Library: Upper Alton Pottery of the 19th Century

The first potters of European descent recorded as working in the Alton area were William Pinkard and William Heath. They came to Upper Alton from Ohio with their families and in the spring of 1820 began the manufacture of earthenware pottery, providing dishes, cups, crocks, and other vessels to local settlers.

By 1840, with 23 potters in operation throughout the state, Illinois had become second only to Ohio in ceramic production Potteries were generally situated near accessible clay sources on the outskirts of towns because of the unpleasant emission of kiln fumes and smoke and the risk of accidental fires Tributaries of Wood River and Coal Branch Creek served as sources of both clay and water. An exposed coal seam at the head of Hop Hollow also provided excellent clay, and firewood for the kiln could be easily obtained on local land

Most family potteries had only one kiln, a shop for throwing pots, a drying shed, and a horse-powered pug mill for preparing clay. Early potteries were operated by single families, most of whom were farmers who made pottery on the side. But as demand grew, potters began to specialize and production centers expanded.

Surprisingly, we get a glimpse of what life was like for potters in Upper Alton from Potters' Examiner and Workmen's Advocate, a weekly paper first published in 1843 and circulated in the pottery towns around Staffordshire, England Pottery production had been going strong in Staffordshire since the early 17th century, but by the 1840s things were getting more difficult.

At a time of low wages, oppressive employers, and a high rate of unemployment, the Potters' Examiner encouraged potters to emigrate to the United States by printing letters from English potters working in the U.S. describing what life was like in their new home Many Staffordshire potters settled near the Mississippi River. The existence of pottery making and the presence of other Staffordshire people in Alton, Chester, and Nauvoo, Illinois, and in St. Louis attracted other immigrants.

A letter from brothers Walter and Thomas Croxton, who were working as potters at Alton in the early 1840s, offers interesting information about their business·

> The first time we drew our kiln, I wish you had been here to have seen the sight. There was such a one that I never expected to see There were three potsellers, with their wagons, waiting for the ware, as it came out of the kiln. All the ware was drawn, packed, and sold before dinner. The weather is milder now than it was at this time last year, for we were obliged then to cease work, from the frost being so severe; but now we are as busy as we can be. Give our love to my father, mother, brothers and sisters; and tell them all, they must come to us as soon as they can for we want them to be with us Tell my father that he must not think of farming for the first twelve months after he comes here, as he will do better by potting, for we often want his assistance. If he were with us, we should do much better than we are doing, although we are in good circumstances as could be expected, from our being but young men, and in a strange land.

The popularity of the area's pottery production is very apparent in local publications at this time as well. An article on Upper Alton in the Alton Weekly Courier from March 1856 mentioned eight potteries employing 100 people, and the 1866 Gazetteer of Madison County noted that

> The manufacturing business is very considerable, particularly the potter's ware, brickmaking, etc. . . . There are from six to eight potteries in constant blast, three of them do salamander work, and one does terra cotta work; all of which is made profitable to the proprietors.

The decline in pottery production in the second half of the nineteenth century resulted from a number of factors, but one of the biggest was the abundance of glass and metal containers being produced. In the Alton area, the Illinois Glass Company had four factories with 450 employees by the early 1880s In contrast, the Alton City Directory for 1886–1887 lists only four potters.

We currently have a display at the Genealogy & Local History Library of earthenware and stoneware by the potteries Ulrich–Wietfeld (1836–1876), Isaac E. Warnack & Son (1843–1867), George Swettenham (1850–1866), Julius Wilhelms & Company (1855–1887), and W J. Mahar Stoneware Manufacturer (1875–1888) A map of the pottery locations in Upper Alton, advertisements, letterhead examples, daguerreotypes of the Wietfeld family, and an extremely rare early photograph of John Wietfeld round out the display. We also have a copy of The Potters, Kilns, and Stoneware of Upper Alton, IR 738 37 MAT, by local pottery expert Greg Mathis on the shelf for anyone who is interested in learning more about early potters of the area.

HAYNER LIBRARY VOLUNTEER

Becky Hogan has been a great asset to our Genealogy volunteers. She has researched her family heritage for many years. I have known Becky off and on for years because of her sister, Libby Kelly. Becky started volunteering for us in 2013. You can see her smiling face on Fridays from 11–2 at our Genealogy & Local History Library. She is always ready to help in many ways.

Becky was born and raised in Alton. She grew up in a neighborhood where everyone watched after all the neighborhood children. They had neighborhood picnics. The children would hang sheets on clotheslines and put on a play for everyone They served Kool-Aid and popcorn. A big treat for the children was going to Wood River swimming pool or taking a trip on the Admiral that cruised up and down the Mississippi. Becky said it was nothing to have a neighborhood Monopoly game go on for three days The children all looked forward to the Carnival at Northside Park. As teens, Becky and her friends would go to Veith's for a coke and French fries. They would go to Northside Theatre for movies or to the Temple, where dances were held for teens

Becky has very fond memories of her mother and father. Her mother was a stay-at-home mom and was a very good cook and housekeeper. Her father was a hard worker. He could make anything He was involved with Northside playground and made all the Christmas decorations for their church. They were not strict parents, but there were rules to abide by. Becky has a sister, Libby Kelly, and there is a five-year difference in their ages. When they were teens they had the usual spats among sisters She and Libby still have good times together, and she considers Libby her best friend!

After Becky graduated from Alton High School, she started classes at St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton and studied to be a laboratory technician. She worked at St. Joe's until 1962 What I find so interesting is Becky's married life She married Francis Joseph Hogan, whom she lovingly calls Bud, in 1962. They moved to Rolla, Missouri, so he could continue studying for his ME degree. Becky worked at Phelps County Memorial Hospital.

Bud graduated with his degree and was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Army. He went to Fort Belvoir in Virginia for OCS and then to Fort Polk in Louisiana. Becky worked at the Byrd Clinic and Hospital in Leesville while Bud was serving at Fort Polk. Bud was CO of the 578th Combat Engineers. In 1965 most of the base was sent to Cam Rahn Bay in South Vietnam to build airstrips and ports for the influx of American troops

Becky came back to Alton to live with her parents. She was seven months pregnant with their son, Hoagy. The baby was a year old when Bud was discharged and came home. Bud started working for Owens-Illinois Glass Their second son, Patrick, was born in 1968 In 1974 the Hogan family was transferred to Toledo, Ohio. They lived in Sylvania for six months

Again Owens-Illinois transferred the Hogans, this time to the New Orleans plant. They lived in Kenner, Louisiana. Becky thought New Orleans was a fascinating town to live in There was Mardi Gras, St. Patrick's, plantations to see, steamboat races, Jackson Square and Café du Monde One of the best things to do was to go to Tickfaw, Louisiana, and tube down the Tangipahoa River. They would tube so far down and then stop on a sandbar and have lunch

Becky became very involved with her boys' school those five years that they lived in Louisiana. The Hogan family was then transferred to a plant in Mansfield, Massachusetts, which was 30 miles south of Boston. The Hogans visited many historical sites, such as Lexington/Concord, Plymouth Rock and village, the mansions in Newport, R.I., Cape Cod, and Martha's Vineyard. They watched the Boston Marathon. Two of their favorite vacation spots were in Old Orchard Beach, Maine, and in the White Mountains in New Hampshire.

The next transfer was to the plant in Milford, Connecticut. They lived in Madison, a small town on the Long Island Sound with beautiful beaches.

Their last transfer was to a plant in East Brunswick, New Jersey. While living in Somerset, they went to New York frequently They enjoyed the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. They saw the parade for the Olympians in 1984. They visited South Street Seaport, Battery Park, the Statue of Liberty, and Times Square, where you saw it all, Becky says After an accident and rehab, Bud continued to work for Owens-Illinois, and Becky worked part-time in the Personnel Department. They lost their son Patrick in the same accident as Bud's

On their 25th wedding anniversary, Bud hired a limo and took Becky and their son and daughter-in-law to New York. Their destination was the Twin Towers With no idea of the devastation in store for the landmarks, they had dinner at the Windows on the World, which was on the 107th floor of the North Tower. Becky says the elevator ride was an event in itself. She says the view of the city is gorgeous Becky thinks that New York City is not so pretty in the daytime, but when night falls, the city buildings and the bridge all lit up are an amazing sight

The Brunswick plant was sold, and the Hogan family made one last move, back to their hometown of Alton.

Becky has three great-grandchildren: Joe, who works for the state of South Carolina; Elizabeth, who is at the University of Illinois obtaining her masters in biology; and Shaun, who is at the University of Alabama studying physics

Becky says she has had a very interesting life, and one good aspect about moving so frequently is that she doesn't collect a lot of stuff! I think Becky could write a book on how to make many moves in your life. She probably has it down to a science

Her words of wisdom are that one should think positive, laugh with others, and learn to laugh at oneself.

Thank you, Becky, for sharing your time with Hayner Library.

Discussions are going to be interesting and lively as participants discuss the good and bad plot-points, writing style of the author, characters who were liked and disliked, and anything else everyone can come up with

Even if mysteries have never been your favorite genre, read the book and come to the inaugural meeting. Limit for the book club is set to the first 15 people who respond, so don't miss out on this opportunity Call 618-462-0677, ext. 2848, to reserve your spot now!

20 More Great Quotes of Mark Twain

Mark Twain is, undoubtedly, one of the greatest writers in U.S. history, and he is also well-known for his rapier wit and brilliant quotes.

This is a list of 20 dazzling quotes of Mark Twain.

1. Always acknowledge a fault. This will throw those in authority off their guard and give you an opportunity to commit more.
2. An Englishman is a person who does things because they have been done before. An American is a person who does things because they haven't been done before.
3. Be careful about reading health books. You may die of a misprint.
4. Clothes make the man. Naked people have little or no influence on society.
5. Don't go around saying the world owes you a living. The world owes you nothing. It was here first.
6. Don't part with your illusions. When they are gone you may still exist, but you have ceased to live
7. Facts are stubborn things, but statistics are more pliable.
8. Honesty is the best policy—when there is money in it.
9. I didn't attend the funeral, but I sent a nice letter saying that I approved of it.
10. I have a higher and grander standard of principle than George Washington. He could not lie; I can, but I won't.
11. I have been through some terrible things in my life, some of which actually happened
12. I thoroughly disapprove of duels. If a man should challenge me, I would take him kindly and forgivingly by the hand and lead him to a quiet place and kill him.
13. In Paris they simply stared when I spoke to them in French; I never did succeed in making those idiots understand their language
14. It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctly American criminal class except Congress.
15. It is better to keep your mouth closed and let people think you are a fool than to open it and remove all doubt.
16. Let us be thankful for the fools. But for them the rest of us could not succeed.
17. Never put off until tomorrow what you can do the day after tomorrow
18. Often it does seem a pity that Noah and his party did not miss the boat.
19. Suppose you were an idiot, and suppose you were a member of Congress. But I repeat myself.
20. We have a criminal jury system which is superior to any in the world; and its efficiency is only marred by the difficulty of finding twelve men every day who don't know anything and can't read.

DAR "FRIEND-RAISER"

Fourth Annual Open House Event

Saturday, November 7, 2015
1:00–3:00 p.m.
401 State Street, Alton, Illinois

The Daughters of the American Revolution is a volunteer service organization dedicated to promoting patriotism, preserving American history, and securing America's future through better education for children.

The Ninian Edwards Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library invite you to our annual Open House event for anyone interested in researching their genealogy and interested in becoming a DAR member.

We will have experienced researchers available to help you get started or to help you conclude your search for the Revolutionary War patriot in your family. These researchers can also help guide you through the application process for joining DAR.

One success story from last year's event comes from Genealogy & Local History Library employee Beth Phillips. Beth did not think that she had any ancestors who fought in the Revolutionary War. They were members of the Mennonite church, a Protestant religion which teaches that men are not supposed to kill other men in war. Thanks to Beth's grandfather, who typed up a Bechtel Family History on his old manual typewriter in the 1960s, she knew her Bechtel family members all the way back to their immigrant ancestor, Georg Bechtel, a Mennonite minister in Pennsylvania. As she began searching for records of her ancestors, Beth was surprised to learn that Georg's youngest son, Isaac Bechtel, was a private in the Pennsylvania Militia! Isaac Bechtel served in the 1st Battalion of Capt. Crumrine's Company. He fought in the Battle of Brandywine Creek, in which about 300 Americans were killed. Fortunately, Isaac survived. He became a prosperous farmer and together with his wife raised a large family. Beth is grateful for his service and happy to become a member of the DAR! Congratulations, Beth!

Admission to this event is free, and registration is not necessary. If you have questions, please call us at 462-0677, Ext. 2865. All are welcome to join us for this event. We hope to see you there.

Food for Fines

Yearly, we have held a fine amnesty program, Food for Fines, in October. We will waive current fines on Hayner material if you contribute a nonperishable food item for each fine during the amnesty period.

During the holiday season, many community organizations hold drives to support centers such as the Crisis Food Center, but we often forget about helping those in need at other times of the year. We are holding this amnesty program in October to help people without waiting for the support of "holiday generosity." It may also help make Thanksgiving a happier time for families in need.

From October 1 through October 31, 2015, anyone who has an overdue item can pay his or her fine with a canned food item. Library materials must be returned with food donations, at least one food item per fine, and only Hayner materials are eligible. All food items collected throughout the month will be given to the Crisis Food Center in Alton.

Of course, even if you don't have fines, feel free to donate items to help others in our community.

Perhaps you have some Hayner materials that got lost under the couch or behind the DVD player. Now is a great opportunity to return those items to the library and avoid the fines that have accrued. Fine amnesty is a great way to support critically important community organizations such as the Crisis Food Center—and it is also a great opportunity to return "lost" materials to the library so they can be reshelved for circulation. Thank you for your support.

Sidewalk Solar Party at Hayner Library – Downtown

Remember when you were told not to look directly into the sun? Well, now you can!

With the generous help and time of Eddie Agha, Staff Astronomer at The Nature Institute, The Hayner Public Library District is hosting a Sidewalk Solar Party on October 12, 2015, at the downtown location Starting at 10:00 a.m., participants will be able to view the sun through a special solar telescope made to view the sun safely. If the weather cooperates, everyone should be able to view the sun and its many wonders, including solar prominences and dark spots. Let Eddie guide you through the special aspects of our great yellow dwarf star, the sun.

As a bonus, an attendance giveaway of solar glasses, one per family, will be handed out. Bring the whole family to see the sun as you have never seen it before! Registration is required at 1-800-613-3163, since space is limited

Armchair Traveler: Cuba

Every three months, The Hayner Public Library District will host a program entitled Armchair Traveler. Each program will bring to life a different country and its culture through the use of various devices Every presentation will be unique and may include any or all of the following· food, dancing, singers, presentations, slideshows, clothes, and memorabilia. This quarter's presentation will be centered around Cuba.

Cuba, whose official name is the Republic of Cuba, has been recently in the news as the country's travel restrictions have been eased. In June 2015, the U.S. and Cuba reached an agreement to reopen their embassies in each other's capitals, and on July 20, 2015, the embassies did reopen. However, the U.S. embargo on Cuba hasn't been lifted, but it will be relaxed to allow limited commerce, exports, and imports As the countries reestablish diplomatic relations, much more travel is anticipated to and from Cuba.

Participants are invited to join us on November 12 at 6 p.m in the Performance Room on the second floor of Alton Square as Miriam Lozano and Alicia Reilly present in skit format their memories of Cuba along with Cuban pictures and music and their families' memories Also available will be some artifacts of Cuba to view and appreciate. After the skit, there will be samples of Cuban food and drink, a talk, and a question-and-answer session.

Please join us on our armchair traveling trip to Cuba! To reserve your spot for this program, please call 1-800-613-3163, since seating is limited.

Gail Drillinger will create a "History Stop" commemorating the 50th Anniversary of the Voting Rights Act. Gail will be joined by gravestone historian John Meehan in giving guests a fascinating review of the symbols and artistry portrayed on the cemetery headstones (some of the oldest in the Midwest).

The Vintage Voices Annual Production will coincide with downtown Alton's all-day festivities and commemoration of the tour of Lincoln's casket (October 17th). Some additional ALT actors, including Amy Miller and Michael Cox (portraying Mary Todd and Robert Lincoln) will join shuttles going back and forth between downtown and the Alton Cemetery. The entire tour lasts about an hour but is divided into 18 segments, so you may listen to one or all sections depending on your interests For patrons who want to learn more about any of the topics on the tour, a bibliography of related materials in our collection is available on our spinning wooden rack. # Raffle Winner!

Congratulations to Mr. James Sievers, a library patron from Godfrey, Ill., on being drawn as the winner in the iPad Air raffle recently held by Hayner Library. The iPad Air tablet was generously provided to the library by an anonymous donor, and the raffle was held from July 1 through August 14, 2015. Thanks to everyone who participated!

Online Card Catalog and Library Account Class

Did you know you can search our website for the over 10,000,000 items available for requesting and checking out? Did you know that your library card account information is available for viewing online—and all of this from the comfort of home? If not, we can show you how.

When accessing our website, you can renew any items you have checked out, request items from any library in the system, see when your items are due, and see if an item is on hold for you, as well as many other options. To help library patrons get started, The Hayner Public Library District's own Mary Cordes, Assistant Director of Circulation and Strategic Planning, will give a "how-to" presentation on accessing your account and the online catalog, teaching you the way to do all the things listed above and more. Even if you know some or all of these things, feel free to attend, because you never know what new information you might learn.

There will be two classes with the same presentation: Wednesday, October 14, at 10 a.m. and Thursday, October 15, at 6:30 p.m., both in the Multipurpose Room at the Alton Square location. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to reserve your spot, since seating is very limited.

Wreaths Across America

Wreaths Across America is a grassroots movement begun in 1992 by Maine businessman Morrill Worcester. The organization's mission, "Remember, Honor, Teach," is carried out by coordinating wreath-laying ceremonies on a specified Saturday in December at Arlington National Cemetery, as well as at veterans' cemeteries and other locations in all 50 states and beyond. Through the wreath-laying ceremonies and other coordinated events, the organization spreads its message about the importance of remembering our fallen heroes, honoring those who serve, and teaching our children about the sacrifices made by veterans and their families to preserve our freedoms.

Thanks to local volunteers, this organization and its mission have been active in Alton since 2007. On Saturday, December 12, 2015, our community will participate in the national Wreaths Across America ceremony. The ceremony will start at 11 a.m. in the Alton National Cemetery at Pearl Street and Joesting Avenue. Third- and fourth-grade students from Eunice Smith Elementary School, with the assistance of area veterans, will participate and help lay the wreaths on the veterans' graves.

In 2014, through community financial donations, 560 wreaths were placed on gravesites in our local national cemetery. The fund-raising goal for this year is $5600. Every $30 of contributions enables the local organization to purchase three 20-inch live balsam wreaths.

Every dollar you can donate helps ensure a wreath at every veteran's gravesite. Help continue the success of this program by sending a financial donation to Wreaths Across America, P.O. Box 181, Alton IL 62002. For more information, call Margaret Hopkins at 618-474-2005. More information is also available on the Web site www.wreathsacrossamerica.org.

Support our community in carrying forward the mission "Remember, Honor, Teach." Join the whole country in honoring our veterans, many of whom forfeited their own future Christmas celebrations for us.

Community Partnerships

Hayner Public Library recently partnered with the Chatroom Barbershop & More by providing free books and library bags for their back-to-school free haircut program. In exchange for their free haircut, book, and bag, children were asked to read to owners Charles Chapman or Tiffany Carson. Children were lined up waiting to read their books for a new 'do! The program will continue next year, so check dates and times by calling 618-433-1412

Strutting Our Stuff

Lacy McDonald, Manager of the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, is pleased to announce that the historic Hayner building at 401 State Street has been chosen to be a featured destination on the Alton Area Landmarks Association's annual fall tour. The tour is scheduled for Sunday, October 11. The Hayner Building has beautiful architectural style combined with a history that began before it was ever built. This makes the building twice as interesting for anyone attracted to older architecture with a historical background.

The AALA has been sponsoring an annual tour of area homes and buildings since 1971. The Hayner building has been featured on their tour three times: in 1978, 1984, and most recently in 1997.

Five years ago the building underwent major renovations that included adding museum-style display cases to exhibit local history artifacts. The building reopened on May 21, 2011, as a Genealogy & Local History research library. Ironically, the reopening date was also the building's 120th anniversary.

Come see how the latest renovation mixed old character with new style to create some amazing changes that allow us to strut our stuff for this event!

Tickets for the annual Historic Alton House Tour will be on sale ($12 per ticket/per person) and available beginning in October at the Alton Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau at 200 Piasa Street. For more information, call (618) 463-5761. The Hayner building is closed on Sundays; a ticket will be required for touring on that day.

New Service from Hayner Library
Text Message and E-mail Notifications Now Available!

The Hayner Public Library District is now offering text message and e-mail notifications for your requests and overdue notices.

Please ask at the Circulation Desk if you would like to receive a text message or e-mail message when your requested items are ready for pickup. The staff will be happy to assist you in making this change to your library account.

PLEASE NOTE: Text message and e-mail notifications are automated. These messages are NOT sent out in "real time." The Illinois Heartland Library System software generates text messages and e-mails at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 6 p.m. daily. You will receive a separate text message for each item that is ready to be picked up or is overdue. If you sign up for text message or e-mail notifications, you will receive BOTH overdue notices AND pickup notifications this way. You will no longer receive a phone call from a staff member regarding your items ready to be picked up or overdue materials.

Note: E-mails and texts will be sent from SHARE Notifications and NOT from Hayner Library. SHARE is the automated network of libraries within the Illinois Heartland Library System.

As always, you can view your library account online at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Preparing for and Navigating College: What Do I Do Next?

The Hayner Public Library District is offering a question-and-answer session on what college-bound high school students need to do to prepare for college: What tests do I need to take? How do I apply for scholarships? What can I do to make the transition from high school to college easier? How soon should I start applying to colleges? What's the difference between a 2-year college and a 4-year university? What sort of long-term goals should I have before choosing a college? I'm in a 2-year college; how do I transition to a 4-year college? All of these questions and more can be answered in your quest to continue your education. It is a tricky field to navigate, and having extra information can make a big difference.

Dr. Brad Noble from Southern Illinois University–Edwardsville is the moderator of this session, providing guidance to those who are lost when it comes to college. He can also answer general questions about majors, especially in the hard sciences areas.

Dr. Noble earned a doctorate from Washington University in St. Louis, has won several teaching awards, and has served on many scholarship committees. Since 1996 he has been a member of the faculty in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering at SIUE, where he has taught 19 different classes, three of which he developed. He co-authored a successful patent in 2013.

This program is for high school students, current college students, and their parents, or anyone else who may have questions about college. Be prepared to take notes! This program will be held Monday, March 14, 6:00–7:30 p.m. in the Multipurpose Room at the Alton Square location. Please call 1-800-613-3163 to reserve your spot.

A Gentleman with a Zeal for Detail

John Gibbons is a generous soul with a zeal for detail. Many years ago John began volunteering at the library, graciously doing any and all things asked of him  He didn't just volunteer his time and talents; he poured his whole heart into many varied tasks

Always with a smile, John walks into the library with a calm yet vibrant cheerfulness. His laughter, which always follows his entrance, makes everyone around him feel happy

Recently, after years of hard work and an unfailing determination, John finished two large research projects documenting the history of two local parochial schools, St. Matthew and St. Patrick. John didn't just sit at a table and wait for information to come to him; he took hold of his projects and hit the road. To supplement his own research work, he travelled to Springfield, Illinois, to visit the Catholic Diocese and search through historical documents archived in their collection

John sent numerous letters to people who had been connected with the schools asking for photographs or their help in identifying subjects in photos  He spent countless hours searching through back issues of The Telegraph newspaper to find interesting stories, graduation listings, and historical tidbits about each school. He never put an end to a project without exhausting all the resources he could find, and even then he did it reluctantly. He was always in hunt mode, unhurriedly looking just a little longer and a little farther.

When John had gathered all the information and photos he could locate, he began the daunting task of organizing the copious amounts of material he had collected  He also made any needed copies, typed up the entire text, made cover pages, indexed each project, and then printed it out and put it into a large binder  He then submitted the entirety to the Genealogy & Local History Library to be added to the Illinois Room collection.

The library, recognizing John's efforts in producing such a detailed collection of historical records, sent the first binder to be professionally bound. John was so pleased with the result that, out of his own pocket, he sent the second book to the bindery. When the books were returned they were cataloged, processed, and quickly added to the collection

Over the next few months, the books were used almost every day. In fact, the staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library decided to stop re-shelving the books each night and instead leave them on the counter of the service desk because they were being requested so frequently  There were a few times the books were in use as another patron waited.

John is currently working on the history of his third parochial school project, the history of St. Mary's Catholic School

The parochial school projects are not the only work of this wonderful volunteer. John has also donated copies of his own family histories. And, yes, all were compiled by John himself. He is a man who wears many hats.

John Gibbons is a fine example of a giving heart. If there were an award for being an "exceptional human being," John would be nominated, elected, and re-elected many times more. The staff of the Genealogy & Local History Library is delighted to pat John on the back, give him a big high-five, and tell him how much we appreciate his years of service and the many charms he bestows upon us each time he walks through the door. We offer him permanent placement in our volunteer chair for as long as he wants a seat  Thanks, John!

Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps–Not Your Typical Road Map!

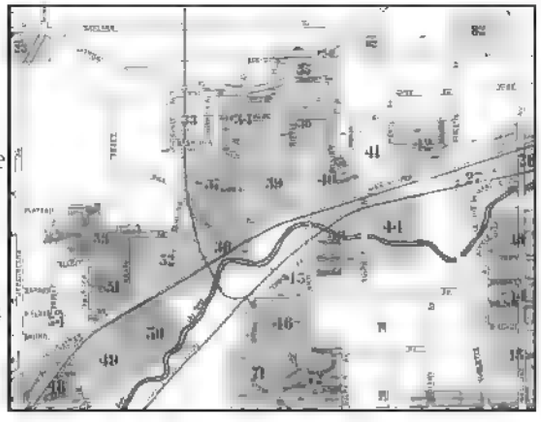
In 1867 Daniel Alfred Sanborn, a surveyor from Massachusetts, began creating a unique type of map of several United States cities. These maps were tools for helping insurance companies assess the potential risks of fire hazards for urban area buildings  This talented entrepreneur's undertaking would soon become the mapping enterprise known as the Sanborn Map Company

Today these richly detailed maps are a valuable resource for anyone interested in historical land or property research. They also are beneficial in preservation and restoration efforts  Widely used by architects, urban planners, and land developers, they can be an informative resource for anyone involved in researching individual properties, neighborhoods, or whole towns.

The maps provide an abundance of information such as building outline and size; construction materials used in the framing, flooring, and roof; the placement of windows, doors, and chimneys; street names; and house numbers. Also represented on the maps are details on the roadways such as street and sidewalk widths, boundaries, underground pipelines, wells, water mains, fire hydrants, and railroads. In short, the Sanborn Maps enable researchers to trace the architectural history of an individual building or the development of entire communities.



Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps (1867–1970) for the state of Illinois are available in digital format at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street. Come browse this database collection of historical state maps and see what you can find out about your house or neighborhood. Digital images of the Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps can be viewed and printed in just a few easy steps

Curiouser and Curiouser!

This year marks the 150th Anniversary of Lewis Carroll's classic Alice's Adventures in Wonderland*. If you dare, fall down the rabbit hole and encounter a few fun facts about this beloved book that will leave you as mad as a hatter and seeing Cheshire cats!*

- Lewis Carroll's real name was Charles Lutwidge Dodgson.
- It is said, but never proven, that the Dodo character was based on Charles Dodgson (AKA Lewis Carroll), who had a terrible stutter and would often stammer his last name· Do-Do-Dodgson.
- Alice's character was based on a real-life little girl named Alice Liddell However, unlike the character, who is blonde, Liddell was a brunette.
- The novel began as a way to entertain Alice Liddell and her sisters during a rowboat excursion The story expanded over the course of several more rowboat trips when the girls, especially Alice, persistently wanted to hear more
- The very first copy of the book was a Christmas present to Alice Liddell in 1864. A year later Lewis Carroll expanded the book and self-published it for the public
- The original book given to Alice Liddell in 1864 did not include The Mad Hatter and The Cheshire Cat. It was after Carroll expanded the story that they appeared.
- It is speculated that Lewis Carroll suffered from dysmetropsia. This rare neurological disorder, discovered in 1955, causes strange hallucinations, making the affected person feel bigger or smaller than they really are—just like Alice in the book! It is so widely believed that Lewis Carroll suffered from this disorder that it has even been dubbed Alice in Wonderland Syndrome.
- The novels were banned in China in 1931, on the grounds that "animals should not use human language." The ban has since been removed.
- The original title was Alice's Adventures Underground. Rejected titles include Alice's Hour in Elfland, Alice Among the Goblins, and Alice Among the Fairies
- The original novel was illustrated by Carroll.
- The Mad Hatter is one of the most classic characters in Wonderland Although he and the March Hare are described as being mad, his actual name in the book is only The Hatter
- The Hatter's riddle: Why is a raven like a writing desk? was never intended to have an answer. However, the most popular answer created over the years is· Poe wrote on both.
- The character name The Mock Turtle is taken from a popular dish of the time: Mock Turtle Soup.
- In film adaptations, The Mock Turtle is played by a diverse group of actors, including Cary Grant, Ringo Starr, and Gene Wilder!
- Within the 150 years since its release Alice's Adventures in Wonderland has never been out of print
- Early fans of the book included Queen Victoria and Oscar Wilde.

"Whether the thread turns out to follow the chronology of Pete's life, trace the wisdom he collected over the years and embedded into his songs, or express the values of community, environment, peace, and justice he lived, every concert is chock-full of songs everyone can sing: old classics, newer songs written late in his life, songs others wrote that he popularized, and songs I have written or revised under Pete's tutelage. ## The surprising benefits of reading before bed

We're all commitment phobes. We scan, we skim, we browse, but rarely do we read.

Our eyes pingpong back and forth from Facebook posts to open chat boxes, unclicked e-mails to GIFs of dancing cats, scanning for keywords but barely digesting what we see. Average time spent on an online article is 15 seconds

In 2014, the Pew Research Center revealed that one-quarter of American adults hadn't read a single book in the previous year.

And that's a shame because those who read consistently exhibit significantly greater memory and mental abilities at all stages in life. They're also better public speakers, thinkers and, according to some studies, better people in general.

Cracking open a book before you go to bed could help combat insomnia, too: A 2009 study from researchers at University of Sussex showed that six minutes of reading reduces stress by 68% (more relaxing than either music or a cup of tea), thus clearing the mind and readying the body for sleep.

The reasoning, per psychologist and study author Dr. David Lewis, is that a book is "more than merely a distraction, but an active engaging of the imagination," one that "causes you to enter an altered state of consciousness."

It doesn't matter if your book of choice is by James Patterson or James Joyce, fiction or fact, so long as it you find it fully absorbing.

Because when the mind is engaged in a world constructed by words, tension evaporates and the body relaxes, paving the way for sleep.

Volunteer Profile

It is funny how life comes full circle sometumes. Carol Sobotta and I have known each other for many years Her husband, Don, was my history teacher in high school. My husband, Harry, started teaching with Don his first year of teaching at Central Jr. High Carol taught with Harry for many years at East Middle School. So our lives have intertwined with each other for the last 40 years

Carol began volunteering for Hayner Library in 2009. She has a very busy life but finds her love of reading keeps her interested in our library. You may find Carol in the summer months working at our Alton Square library collecting and checking in all the summer reading books that have been brought back to the library. She volunteers in the Interlibrary Loan Department and keeps the library at Glenview Gardens replenished with fresh books

I love to ask questions about my volunteers' lives. I usually send them a questionnaire when we feature them in our newsletter. This is what I have learned about Carol.

Carol grew up in Dwight, a small community in Illinois. When she was in third grade her family moved from a farm into town. Carol had to change schools and had a very hard time adjusting to the new school Her teacher was a very kind person who influenced Carol's love for reading Carol loved to hear her teacher read out loud to the class. Her family had an old chicken house in the back yard, and Carol converted it to her schoolhouse where she bossed all the neighborhood children and pretended to be the teacher. So that is when she knew that she wanted to be a teacher when she was older

Carol was the second oldest of four children. There were two boys and two girls. Her parents expected the children to do chores around the house and to eventually earn their own spending money. Carol babysat and delivered newspapers. She rode her bike or pulled the papers in the snow with a sled. She always earned good tips. Her parents always encouraged them to save their earnings and spend wisely.

She joined the 4-H Club and learned sewing, crafts, and cooking. She was president one year and was selected at the Livingston County Fair to go to State Fair for her coffeecake demonstration. Her other activities included piano lessons, church, and various clubs in high school.

Carol loved going to school. Her grades were very important to her. She was on the honor roll all through high school and was awarded a four-year teacher scholarship to Illinois State University in Normal, Ill. After graduation her first teaching position was in Streator, Ill., as a second-grade teacher

After two years of teaching she decided to move to a bigger city. Her new teaching position was in Alton teaching first grade. The first fall her assistant principal introduced her to her future husband, Donald Sobotta. He was a high school history teacher. They were married the next spring She and Don have celebrated 46 years of marriage Don became assistant principal in various junior high schools until he resigned to pursue his dream of having his own printing business.

Carol and Don have a daughter, Melissa, who is a substitute teacher in Streator, Ill. The Sobottas have two wonderful grandsons, who are 8 and 12 years old. The boys are excellent readers and great students. The Sobottas make frequent visits to see the kids and Carol's mother, who is 96 years old and still living in her own home Carol's mother is an avid reader, and they often recommend books to each other. Carol's younger brother and sister live in Dwight, and her older brother lives in Kankakee. Her father passed away in 1994

When her daughter was in sixth grade, Carol was offered a position in sixth grade teaching language arts, social studies, and sometimes science. One of her greatest hopes was to be able to foster a love of reading in her students. There is no doubt in my mind that she got her wish Carol and her team partner, Sandy Dean, applied for a grant and started the Accelerated Reading program at East Middle School. Students earned points when answering questions about books that they read. Those points earned prizes for the students. This program is still used in middle school. This was a great accomplishment for Carol and Sandy. Carol was also involved with Young Authors, Student Council, and a drug prevention program.

After 32 years of teaching, Carol retired in 2004 She became a substitute librarian for four years in the Middle School library. She loved working in the library and joined Hayner volunteers in 2009. That was certainly a lucky day for Hayner

Besides volunteering for Hayner, Carol keeps busy with many activities. She belongs to Old Friends and New and two book clubs and enjoys cooking, gardening, and jigsaw puzzles, computer games, walking, and Zumba gold classes She and her husband are members of Messiah Lutheran Church, where she started a library and taught Sunday school for many years She and Don are Jeopardy fans and Cardinal fans. She has kept her love of reading—as Don says, when she is not doing all these activities, her nose is in a book.

Carol's love of reading brought her full circle into the lives of many children and adults in our community

We are so lucky to have Carol as a volunteer for Hayner

Thank You, Patrons!

For the month of October 2015, we ran a fine amnesty program that allowed patrons to return overdue materials and have their fines waived if the materials were returned with a nonperishable food item. Look at what we collected! This was a win-win event. Patrons were relieved of their fines, and Hayner got the overdue materials back on the shelves. All the food items have been delivered to the Crisis Food Center in Alton. Thanks, everyone, for participating.

What Makes a Cozy Just That?

Imagine your terror at finding out that Jessica Fletcher was moving from Cabot Cove to your neighborhood! Would you stay up at night just wondering when this unassuming, friendly woman was going to befriend you? Would you wonder which of your friends would be the first, and then second, third, even fourth to die? I have loved watching Jessica solve all the murders in Cabot Cove, and then, when she ran out of neighbors, have to move to New York. If you are reading this article about cozy mystery books, you probably have enjoyed watching Jessica solve her way through one community after the next. She is a prime example of a Cozy Mystery Heroine. Cozy mysteries have become a booming business. Many cozy mystery readers are intelligent women looking for a "fun read" that engages the mind, as well as provides entertainment . . . something to "look forward to getting back to " This is not to say that intelligent men don't read cozies . . . they do!

The crime-solver in a cozy mystery is usually a woman who is an amateur sleuth. Almost always, she has a college degree, whether she is using it or not. Her education and life's experiences have provided her with certain skills that she will utilize in order to solve all the crimes that are "thrown her way." The cozy mystery heroine is usually a very intuitive, bright woman. The occupations of the amateur sleuths are very diverse: caterer, bed and breakfast owner, quilter, cat fancier/owner, nun, gardener, librarian, bookstore owner, herbalist, florist, dog trainer, homemaker, teacher, needlepoint store owner, etc. These are just a few examples of what the amateur sleuth does When she's not solving crimes, that is!

The cozy mystery usually takes place in a small town or village. The small size of the setting makes it believable that all the suspects know each other. The amateur sleuth is usually a very likeable person who is able to get the community members to talk freely (i.e., gossip) about each other. There is usually at least one very knowledgeable and nosy (and of course, very reliable!) character in the book who is able to fill in all of the blanks, thus enabling the amateur sleuth to solve the case

Although the cozy mystery sleuth is usually not a medical examiner, detective, or police officer, a lot of times her best friend, husband, or significant other is. This makes a very convenient way for her to find out things that she would otherwise not have access to. . . . Do you know any caterers or dog trainers who have access to autopsy reports? I don't! (Unless you count some of my favorite cozy characters.)

At the same time, it is probably safe to say that the local police force doesn't take the amateur sleuth very seriously. They dismiss her presence, almost as if she doesn't exist. This, of course, makes it convenient for her to "casually overhear" things at the scene of a crime.

More and more, cozy mystery books are being written as parts of a series. The reader becomes emotionally involved and connected with the reoccurring characters It's almost as if the reader is "going home" to a familiar place when she reads her next cozy mystery book in a series. (Of course, publishers of these series must enjoy knowing that fans of a series guarantee the success of each book in the series. It's not uncommon for fans of a cozy mystery series to pre-order a book before it is available at the stores.)

In a series, it is important that the characters are likeable, so that the reader will want to visit them again The supporting characters are equally important to the reader It is for this reason that there are so many funny, eccentric, and entertaining secondary characters. Can you imagine wanting to read the second book in a series that has all of its characters as scummy, lowlife people, perpetrating evil deeds and being downright mean all the time?

* Cozy mysteries are considered "gentle" books . . . no graphic violence, no profanity, and no explicit sex. Most often, the crime takes place "offstage" and death is usually very quick. Prolonged torture is not a staple in cozy mysteries! The victim is usually a character who had terrible vices or who treated others very badly. Dare I say . . . the victim "deserved to die"? And there are usually connections between the victims (if indeed there are multiple victims . . . which usually, in a cozy mystery, there are!), even though the reader is not aware of the obvious connections until the amateur sleuth solves the crimes

* Sex (if there is any) is always behind closed doors. It is implied . . . at most! Two characters may go from having a late-night, romantic dinner to—fast forward—one person taking a cup of coffee up to their partner, who is enjoying the delicious luxury of sleeping in. Enough said!

Cozy mysteries tend to be fast-paced, with several twists and turns throughout each book. There are usually several red herrings to provide distracting clues to the reader. The amateur sleuth is able to sift through the clues, tossing the useless information out while analyzing the good clues. There is a lot of puzzle solving involved in a cozy mystery

The cozy mystery puts an emphasis on plots and character development. You definitely could not convert a cozy mystery novel into an "action movie" with a lot of car chases and young, gratuitously topless actresses! An expression comes to mind that could easily differentiate the cozy mystery from other types of mysteries . . . "Brains over Brawn" every time

An Exciting New Service From the Hayner Public Library District

You can now add your Hayner library card to a smartphone app for added convenience when visiting Hayner Library. Simply add your Hayner library card to the app of your choice and never forget your library card again

Please note: Photos of library cards are not valid. Our 2D barcode scanners are not capable of reading photo images of barcodes; they are programmed to read digitized barcodes. Therefore, a library card must be added to an app in order for it to be used digitally at our Circulation Desks.

Not sure which app to use? For your convenience, The Hayner Public Library District is listed as a registered "store" with Key Ring (an online card app) To use the Key Ring app, please follow these instructions:

1. Download the Key Ring app for your phone
2. Open the Key Ring app
3. Touch the plus sign (+) button at the top of the screen
4. Touch the Add Card icon
5. Touch the Allow Camera icon (you will need to do this to scan your Hayner library card barcode)
6. Scan the barcode on your Hayner library card
7. Compare the barcode number on the back of your card to the barcode number now listed on your screen to be sure the card scanned properly
8. Touch Select a Store and select "The Hayner Public Library District" from the list of merchants (you can scroll or search)
9. Be sure that the Card Has Barcode option is selected (turned on)
10. Touch Next in the upper right-hand corner of the screen

If you wish to do so, touch the Create Account icon If you wish to skip this step, touch the I'll Risk It icon Note: Creating an account will save your Hayner library card on the Key Ring app server. You will be able to access the card again should you accidentally delete the app, your barcode, or lose your phone. Not creating an account will still allow you to use the app; however, your information will not be stored on their server This means you will not be able to retrieve it should something happen to the app or your phone. You will have to add the barcode again. Creating an account will require entering your email address and other information. Again, creating an account is your own personal preference. The app will work either way

Food for Fido

April is Prevention of Animal Cruelty Month, and in commemoration of this, Hayner Library at Alton Square Mall and Hayner Downtown Library will collect pet food and supplies that will be given to the Alton Area 5 A's Animal Shelter. This no-kill shelter is completely dependent on donations and is run by a dedicated staff who work tirelessly to provide care for an overwhelming number of unwanted animals. From April 1 through April 30, if you have an overdue item, you may pay your fine with an item of pet food. This amnesty applies to Hayner materials only Library materials must be returned with the donation and at least one donation made for each fine.

Please help our friends at the 5 A's—they work so hard to care for the sadly constant stream of unwanted, neglected, or abused animals brought to the shelter. The shelter is located at 4530 N. Alby Road, Godfrey, and can be reached at 466-3702 Stop by and visit this wonderful facility, perhaps find a new BFF (Best Friend Forever). And, of course, volunteers are ALWAYS welcome.

Our Wonderful Patrons

Mary Kay Serio is our children's librarian at our downtown location. Her grandson, Anthony Serio, 19, attended Army basic training June 2014–October 2014. He was then deployed to the Middle East in February 2015 where he remained until November. When our patrons Sharon Maggart and Mary Olson found out that he was returning to the U.S. from his deployment this last November, they knew they had to do something for both Anthony and Mary Kay. Ms. Olson had the children who attend Mary Kay's Story Time help make a poster, and Ms. Maggart made a beautifully decorated booklet with pictures colored by the children, pictures of Anthony, and a picture of Mary Kay and her husband, Carmen, from whom Anthony received a great deal of support. Mary Kay, Carmen, and Anthony's mom, Jessica, took both items to Anthony's welcome home ceremony at the base, where he was both surprised and touched.

Thanks to our wonderful patrons for thinking of our employees. And thank you to Anthony for his service to our nation!

A New Patron!

Dawson McCauley came in with his mom to sign up for his first ever library card. He had been begging his mom to come to the library because he wanted to meet a librarian. Don't forget to bring in your kids for the exciting experience of their very own card!

Armchair Traveler

Exciting news! Due to the success of the Armchair Traveler program, it is being moved to twice a year, spring and fall, to make the presentations bigger and better. Also, remember the presentations are for the whole family, not just for mom and dad Please check back with the Hayner Public Library District's Summer Newsletter for all the details of the fall Armchair Traveler program!

New Book Drop

An external book drop has been installed outside the main entrance of the Downtown Library at 326 Belle Street, Alton. Hopefully this will relieve some of the inconveniences posed by the closure of the in-wall book drop downtown. For both the book drop downtown and at the mall library, materials deposited during library closed hours will be checked in for the previous day. Materials deposited during holidays will be checked in the last day of library closing Please ask a library staff member if you have questions or need assistance.

Living / Green Home
November 18, 2014
http://www.treehugger.com/green-home/why-going-library-one-best-things-i-do-my-kids-and-planet.html

My two kids and I head to the library every week, and it's one of my favorite things. I love getting a huge bag of books and feeling the excitement to get home and read them and see where they take us. It's a strong memory I have from my own childhood, and I cherish getting to repeat it with them; but the more time I spend at the library with my family, the more I realize its benefits go beyond just a bag of new books to read.

The resources libraries provide and the values they reinforce are making my kids into better human beings and helping the planet along the way

The original sharing economy

Libraries were participating in a sharing economy long before Netflix or Airbnb. There is a major environmental advantage to sharing copies of books, DVDs and other media over all of us purchasing new copies; but more than that, it's how libraries foster a commitment to sharing that is so beneficial and can carry over into the rest of our lives

For my kids, learning about how our library books are just on loan to us and belong to everyone in the community was a first lesson on how to take care of things so that they last and can be used by many people The idea of treating things as important long-lasting objects instead of disposable ones was easy to drive home when it was connected to the library books that they love checking out. It also is a great way to talk about sharing resources and how we have to think beyond ourselves

Just as importantly, libraries are institutions dedicated to the sharing of information and ideas. Our world can never progress without access to knowledge, and libraries give the public open access to books, articles, documentaries and other resources and give us all a place to gather and share them.

Community involvement and connection

Libraries are community centers, serving everyone in their area. Just visiting the library is a way to connect yourself and your family to the community you live in, but libraries offer more than that. They host book clubs, LEGO clubs, story times, puppet shows, writing camps, family movie nights and information sessions on technologies and community issues (among so many other things). They serve us, and they also bring us together and get us involved in our community

They curate special collections about our towns, cities, states and regions so that we can learn more about them and feel a greater sense of place

All of those things make a community stronger, and people who feel connected to their communities are more willing and better prepared to work for what's good for everyone. Raising my kids to be involved in the library starts them on a great path to community involvement.

Multicultural experiences

While we've taken some very long road trips with our kids, we haven't been able to do any travel out of the country with them yet. While I hope to one day be able to show them more of the world, for now their exposure to other places, cultures and ways of living often comes from the library.

Books from everywhere around the world, featuring stories and characters they couldn't meet otherwise, let them see how big and varied the world really is while also showing them how much is the same from place to place.

Understanding more about different places and cultures will make my kids better global citizens and hopefully give them compassion for all people and living things.

A lifetime of learning and imagining

At our last visit to the library, my kids picked out their usual big stack of books. The subjects ranged from how cocoa beans are made into chocolate to a duck who lost his socks. Every time they get to go and pick out books, whether they be informative or very silly, they're learning about how the world works and strengthening their imaginations. And by encouraging them to do that now, I'm hopefully starting a lifelong habit.

It's a habit I'm still engaged in. I learn from the library with an ever-changing stack of knitting books, cookbooks, nature field guides and more.

Even if you're not a bookworm, libraries offer classes on crafting and computer software for adults and host science and art events for kids to provide hands-on learning, too.

If this sounds like a very strong ode to libraries, it is. I'm a better and more-informed person because I visit libraries, and I'm making my kids into better people, too Knowing how to share, take care of things and protect resources, have a strong sense of community, understanding the world we live in and having a lifetime commitment to learning and dreaming—these are ideas I'm responsible for encouraging in my children, and libraries help me to do that. And those same ideas are pretty great for the planet too.

Note: This program will be held in the Benjamin Godfrey Chapel on the campus of Lewis & Clark Community College, 5800 Godfrey Road, Godfrey, Ill.

Switchback returns! Two of our favorite performers on the circuit! "A successful show for us is like an amusement ride—it's a rush," says Brian FitzGerald of the renowned musical duo Switchback. "Our Irish is a little more aggressive, and it's coming at you a little harder because we are coming out of small, jaunty Irish bars. There's a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of energy to our show." FitzGerald and Martin McCormack showcase a repertoire ranging from sentimental ballads to blistering honky-tonk. The duo delivers a powerful, riveting sound rivaling that of larger ensembles. They move through a variety of genres but never abandon their Celtic roots. They accompany their music with the rhythmic cadence of their dancing shoes. Don't miss your chance to see and hear these amazing performers! Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Hayner Volunteer Martha Steiner

Martha Steiner has been a volunteer with Hayner Library for three years. You will find her in the summers helping Mary Kay downtown during the Summer Reading Program. She is a great help to Mary Kay. Martha also is a volunteer I can count on for special projects.

Martha and I have known each other since our early days working with Alton Children's Theater We had a wonderful time putting on plays for the Alton area school children. She was definitely an asset to this organization.

Martha was born in the old St. Joseph's hospital, which is now called St Clare's. She was named Martha Elizabeth Chappee after her maternal grandmother, Elizabeth Schulz Wendle She grew up in North Alton on Strong Avenue, a quiet little street that was not a through street at that time. Her house was surrounded by a pasture where Mary the Moo Cow grazed. Her father and both grandfathers built their little five-room house where she lived with her parents and her older brother and two younger sisters.

North Alton was a tight-knit community where everyone knew one another and watched over all the children in the neighborhood. The kids rode bikes and played ball in an empty lot during the warmer months and sledded in the winter months. The neighborhood gang would put on plays in Martha's garage for all the parents. Refreshments served during the play were popcorn and Kool Aid.

Each day during the week she walked out to her backyard, through a gully, and across a creek to attend St. Ambrose School She graduated from grade school and attended Marquette High School. Her dad would drive Martha and her siblings to Marquette, but they had to find their own way home or walk home. Sometimes they stopped at the old Greer's Restaurant for a cherry phosphate. But most of the time she walked downtown to catch a bus to St. Anthony's Hospital, where she cleaned each day after school.

While working at the hospital she earned enough money to get her class ring. She bought it in 1967, and somewhere while cleaning the labs in the hospital she lost that hard-earned ring In 1990 she received a note from a gentleman who had found it in 1967 and put it away for safekeeping. He promptly forgot about it until 1990. He searched her name and found out from Marquette who it belonged to. Martha now has that hard-earned ring in a safe place.

Martha attended SIU-Edwardsville for a couple of years, where she met her husband, playing cards in the student union. They both quit school to get married. Martha says she and Kyle raised three absolutely wonderful and amazing children.

When it was time for their oldest child to start college, Martha decided it was time for her to pursue a degree in education She was hired in Granite City after completing her student teaching. She kept going to school until she completed her Master's degree in education. She says she was lucky enough to be able to teach for twenty-two years before retiring at the age of 62.

Martha's favorite pastime is reading. Her all-time favorite book is To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee. She has often gifted that book to young people, hoping that they will encounter someone in their lives who can instill in them the values that Atticus instilled in Scout and Jem.

Martha was excited to read Lee's Go Set a Watchman but was disappointed in Atticus's character. But she was glad to be able to read it and find relevance to life in this era and reflect on the similarities and differences of growing up in the 1930s, the 1950s, and 2015

Hayner is so lucky to have this gentle, sweet, smiling woman as a volunteer

Thank you, Martha.

Burke's Funeral Home Records

Death certificates and burial records are just two of the many vital records we use while compiling our family histories Sometime it can be a difficult process to locate them and then obtain a copy from the right source at a reasonable fee. The information contained in mortuary death records is often unobtainable anywhere else

A while back, the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library was given numerous boxes of death and burial records (including copies of death certificates) for hundreds of people who had been buried by Burke's Funeral Home in Alton, Illinois, between the years of 1956 and 1995. Unfortunately, we did not receive any records for 1961–1968.

After many hours of hard work by staff and volunteers, these records have been organized and are ready for public use A complete name index has been created and is now a part of our Illinois Room collection This index can be used to quickly identify whether we have a file on a specific name. The book is titled Index of Burke's Funeral Home Records, and the call number is IR 977.3865 IND.

If you find an ancestor's name listed on the index, a staff member will retrieve the file for that name and copy any of the materials you need for your genealogy research. (Copy fees apply.)

These donations of Burke's Funeral Home records are only available at the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at the 401 State Street location.

125 Years of the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library Building

Flames still flicker in the fireplaces. Nineteenth-century oil paintings tell the story of Alton past. Gleaming display cases hold treasures borrowed from local collectors and from the library's own cache. Visitors often ask if the library was originally a church. They're awed to discover that the building has always been a library

The Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library opened 125 years ago, on May 21, 1891. Local businessman John E. Hayner funded construction of the library in honor of his late wife, Jennie. The library association hired Theodore Link, a highly respected St. Louis architect who designed St. Louis's Union Station Railroad Depot, to design the building Link also designed the First Presbyterian Church at the corner of Fourth and Alby and both the main building (after a fire destroyed the original buildings) and the Harriet Newell Haskell Memorial Gate at Monticello Seminary, now Lewis & Clark Community College in Godfrey

The library's architecture is known as Old English, Gothic style, with a vaulted ceiling and dog-tooth trimmings. The building materials are red brick, with Alton and Bedford stone over windows and entrances, and a basement of Alton limestone. Inside, the wood is oak and yellow pine. Fireplaces with oak mantels and iridescent blue and green tiles grace the turret room and the back wall of the main room

In 1906 John Hayner's grandson, John Haskell, announced he would provide funding to build an annex to the library building. The new annex was designed by U. S. Nixon and opened to the public in October of 1907. In 1970 the adult collection was moved out of this building and into the Belle Street building. The children's collection remained in the Hayner building as the Hayner Children's Library.

On May 21, 2011, the original Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library building reopened as the Genealogy & Local History Library. Therefore, in addition to May 21, 2016, being the 125th anniversary of the building's completion, it is also our five-year anniversary. People come from all over the United States to use our collection, and our staff has corresponded with researchers in other countries as well. We are extremely lucky to have such a beautiful building dedicated fully to genealogy and local history research

In December of this year we will have a special holiday open house, and Genealogy & Local History Manager Lacy McDonald will give a presentation on the architecture and history of the building. In the meantime, check out the #HaynerGenealogyGems hashtag on The Hayner Public Library District Facebook page. We're posting 125 gems of the Genealogy & Local History Library throughout the year, one every few days. The gems will also be posted on the History at Hayner blog http://www haynerlibrary.org/history-at-hayner-blog. The Genealogy & Local History audio tour, available any time the library is open, is also a great way to learn more about the library's history in Alton, the building, the Hayner and Haskell families, architect Theodore Link, and our significant artwork.

Hometown Clubs and Societies

Social media are the proof that everyone wants to be a part of something Before Myspace, Twitter, and Facebook, we joined a church, club, or organization to stay closely connected with others who shared our interests Clubs in Alton were extremely popular as far back as the 1800s, and it seems there was a club to fit all wants or needs. The society pages of the early newspapers were brimming with small tidbit articles reporting on who was hosting card parties, serving luncheons, and organizing dances.

We are familiar with the more popular and well established clubs such as the Fraternal Order of Eagles, The Loyal Order of Moose, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows But do you know about the not-so-familiar ones? Here is a little description of a few of the not-so-familiar clubs in Alton's past.

The Silent Club and the Henpecked Club were social clubs in 1910. The Silent Club had a rule that they would not reveal the names of their members, even when they held dances and civic affairs in the public eye. The Henpecked Club was formed by men who had been deserted by their wives. It cost each man $3.40 to join.

Last Man's Club was a group of World War I veterans whose motto was "Meet until only the last man is left." The last man would inherit the club's treasury along with their first bottle of champagne that had been put inside a replica World War I bomb and used as a table decoration at their annual meetings According to the June 26, 1989, obituary of Edward Lee of Glen Carbon, he was the last member of the local chapter.

The Hard Leather Club was active in 1926 and was composed of men who had pledged against the use of profanity. If a member broke the rule, the other members were allowed to give the offender a hard punch as punishment The club motto was "No dues, lots of bruise "

Las Senoras Y Senoritas Club was formed in 1970 to assist needy American and Spanish families of the Alton area. But their talents quickly stretched, and in 1972 they were making slippers for nursing home residents and donating records to children in the state hospital. In 1974 the club changed its name to the Ladies' Mexican American Club.

Rip Van Winkle Club was a social club for married couples only. They entertained with a monthly dancing party that included a late-night dinner.

The Manless Club was a group of married women who did not allow men to attend their meetings, although the Alton Evening Telegraph newspaper reported husbands were in attendance during the club's 40th anniversary celebration in 1945

The Ladies was a social club organized in 1853. Despite the name, the club accepted both male and female members.

The Jolly Good Time Club was made up of fun, energetic members who regularly organized the most successful and well attended dancing parties, banquets, and masquerade balls in Upper Alton. In 1919, a newspaper article reported the club had been so successful that they were having trouble deciding on how to spend part of the large sum of money they had in their coffers.

The Onion Social Club was made up of Illinois Glass Company glassblowers who held annual banquets. After 18 years the club voted to disband in 1910 due to low membership. The Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library at 401 State Street has a display case of Illinois Glass memorabilia, including a glass paperweight from the 1901 Onion Club.

The Cho Cho San Club was a social club that enjoyed playing card games during their evening meetings in the 1920s and 1930s

The Loyal Tennesseans Club had only one simple requirement for membership Can you guess what that was? Members had to be from the state of Tennessee!

The Opti-Mrs. Club was organized in 1949 by the wives of the Optimist Club members The club's mission was to raise money for needy causes in the Alton area, and they were successful at it for many years

Political clubs included the Alton Clay Club organized in 1844; the Tippecanoe Club, here as early as 1892; and the Citizen's Curdie Club, established in 1899

Besides social clubs and fraternal orders, Alton had some colorful sporting clubs with interesting names too. Maybe your parents or grandparents played on a team for one of these clubs? The Hard Boiled Eggs was a bowling club that got its name because they feasted on hard boiled eggs during their meetings. The Pietown Hustlers was an athletic club formed in 1922 by members of the Upper Alton Baptist Church The Limburger Cheese Club was a sportsman's club that held banquets with limburger cheese served as part of the meal. The Wigwam Club was a hunting and fishing group that also raised pigs on an island in the Illinois River. The island was six miles above Grafton and appropriately named Wigwam Island

There was such a strong sense of pride in Alton's sports teams in May of 1917 that for the opening day of the Three Eye Baseball League the mayor issued a proclamation asking merchants to close their stores to show support. During a grand parade that included all the city officials, a National Guard unit escorted the players from City Hall to the ballpark.

All of these clubs and their histories in Alton can be researched through the Telegraph Newspaper Archive available at all Hayner Library locations The newspaper database has editions of The Telegraph dating back to 1836 It is fun to browse through the society section of these older newspapers and read how Alton citizens were keeping themselves socially active through the years!

How Do They Get There?

Have you ever wondered how that new bestseller goes from a pre-publication review to the Forthcoming List? Or how that movie you meant to see at the theater ends up as a DVD on our shelf? This progression is months in the making, and the process is executed by numerous staff members

The first step requires Katie, Assistant Director of Library Services/Collection Development Manager, to comb through hundreds of book, DVD, and music reviews in magazines, blogs, and websites. Hoping to find a wide range of genres (and not just bestsellers) for Hayner's collection, she also fields materials suggestions from staff members.

One little-known fact about this process is that Katie welcomes recommendations from the public, as well. Patrons who are enthusiastic about their literary tastes can go to our website under "Services" and "Recommend a Purchase."

Several times a week, Katie compiles a list of items for purchase that she feels, from her years of experience, will be of interest to Hayner's patrons. When the lists are ready, she sends them on to Theresa, a member of the Technical Services department.

Because these pre-publication reviews come out months in advance, we have to keep a log of our orders, and one of Theresa's many duties is to input all of this information into a spreadsheet. This helps us keep track of what items we have purchased and when they were ordered, and also helps prevent duplicate acquisitions This spreadsheet also helps Katie compile the Forthcoming List that so many patrons have come to look forward to! Following this step, the list is uploaded to Hayner's primary bookseller for pre-order

Once we have our materials pre-ordered, Tara, an acquisitions expert in the Technical Services department, adds "on-order" records to the card catalog. This process allows the public to see that we have ordered a particular item and permits them to place an early hold on it.

When the pre-ordered items finally get close to their release date and are delivered to the library, the Technical Services department springs into action again. The materials are unpacked and checked against the packing slips and are then ready for cataloging.

To make a very long and technical explanation short, cataloging is the process of generating bibliographic records for a book, DVD, or music CD, in which access points are created for finding that particular item in an online card catalog. The access points referred to are title, author, page numbers, edition, size, and subject headings

Creating and choosing the right bibliographic record to attach to an item ensures that patrons get the exact book or movie they want. For instance, there are many editions of To Kill a Mockingbird, and you may want only the first edition; or you may want to know that you're ordering the 1969 version of The Italian Job instead of the remake from 2003. Lauren, the Assistant Director of Acquisitions, Cataloging and Processing, creates or edits those bibliographic records and then chooses an appropriate call number for the item

Once this process is finalized, the piece is sent on to Theresa or Geralyn, members of Hayner's processing staff. They add identifying stamps, spine labels, and book covers, and finally create the card catalog record. This record helps the patrons and staff identify the call number, the material type, and the section of the library where the book or DVD is housed, that is, the adult section, KidsSpace, or TeenSpace.

Finally, the item goes back to Tara, who creates a barcode and adds an RFID security tag. The finished products are then sent to the Downtown and Alton Square locations, ready to be checked out and enjoyed by you!

DID YOU KNOW?

In an effort to keep the holds queue moving once the materials have arrived, Hayner participates in a book leasing program through Baker & Taylor Booksellers. Rather than purchasing multiple copies of a particular bestseller, we typically lease up to eight additional copies, depending on how large the holds list is

This approach gets those really popular items out to more of our patrons and helps to move through that list faster. Once the excitement over a title has died down and the holds queue has been fulfilled, Hayner can return all of these materials to the bookseller. This saves the District money and shelf space!

DID YOU KNOW?

Hayner has a book repair expert on staff! Geralyn saves the District a significant amount of money each year by repairing books that have been damaged. Rather than our having to replace these materials, Geralyn does a beautiful job of recovering and rebinding them!

Native Plant Garden at Downtown Library

An Alton Community Service League Beautification Grant was awarded to Hayner Library to plant the flower boxes in front of the Downtown Library. With this generous gift, Hayner Library has planted native wildflowers in the two beds by the Downtown Library entrance

Native wildflowers that grow well in our area and do well in part sun were selected for the location  You will see various wildflowers that offer different bloom times from April to September. If you are looking for flowers that do well in part sun, you might want to try these native perennials in your garden. Look for the Wild Ones® plant list posted in the garden to learn more about these plants. Also, a plant list is available inside the library along with related books on the subject of native plants.

Why plant native plants? Native plants are adapted to our climate and soils, and once established, they require very little maintenance. They provide caterpillars and other beneficial insects for nesting birds, as well as vital food for butterflies and pollinators  Natives live longer than non-native species and are naturally resistant to drought, pests, and disease.

Hayner Library is doing its part to promote biodiversity by increasing conservation awareness of native plants and their effective use in urban landscapes. So try a few natives in your garden.

The birds will love it, and so will you!

Gardening Classes for July and August

Now that the days are longer and warmer, and your garden is flourishing, it is a good time to observe the activity taking place there. Pollinators of all sorts should be busy at work, making it possible to have produce to harvest. Bounty from your summer garden also includes SEEDS for the following spring!  Learn how to harvest and store seeds over winter. Herbs will be ready to dry and preserve, and put into butters and oils

So come join us for more gardening fun at Hayner Library!

Don't Forget the Telescopes!

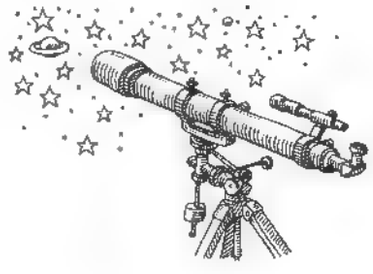
Don't forget that The Hayner Public Library District has telescopes for patrons to check out at both locations  Each telescope captures the equivalent amount of light of 250 human eyes. Each has a zoom eyepiece, which gives a range of magnifications from 20- to 60-power and provides a large field of view spanning from one degree to over two degrees. You will be able to obtain clear observations of the craters on our Moon, Jupiter and its moons, Saturn and its rings, and the brighter star clusters and nebulae.

The telescopes may be checked out for up to seven days by adult Hayner Library cardholders. Please be aware that after seven days, the telescope is considered overdue and a fine of $5 per day will be assessed. A picture ID must also be presented, and a refundable $50 deposit is required for checkout. The telescopes come with a learning kit, and we will give you an overview of how to start your moon- and stargazing. Be sure to check out some books to brush up on your knowledge, as well.

If you'd just like to see and use a telescope without checking one out, please check our "Special Events" section of the newsletter. There are two events coming up this summer and fall where you can see the moon or the sun in all their glory



Come rent a telescope today!

Mississippi Earthtones Festival 10th Anniversary

The Mississippi Earthtones Festival, co-organized by Alton Main Street and the Sierra Club, is a celebration of our river through art, music, and conservation. The 10th Annual event falls on September 17th and promises to attract thousands of people to Broadway, where the street will be closed to traffic between Alton Street (Mineral Springs Mall) and Langdon Street (Pedestrian Bridge) from noon to 10 p.m Genealogy & Local History Manager Lacy McDonald and Downtown Library Manager Penny Noble will represent The Hayner Public Library District at the event.

Lacy will share historical photographs and books on the relationship between the Mighty Mississippi and the Riverbend area. Penny will bring an Orion StarBlast 4.5" Reflector telescope and teach visitors about our telescope program. Telescopes are made available through a partnership between Hayner and The Nature Institute Astronomy Association and can be checked out from either the Downtown Library or the Alton Square Mall branch.

Lacy and Penny will also be able to sign people up for library cards at the event. Just using the library to borrow books, movies, and music CDs instead of buying them helps the environment by reducing the amount of raw materials needed to make these items. But if you want to be more deliberately green, we've got the resources for you! Reference Librarian Jean Shimunek has created lists highlighting books in our collection that deal with environmental sustainability. We have resources on everything from recycling to native plants to energy-saving home design. We will even have some of these books available for checkout from the Hayner table on the day of the festival!

The Hayner table will be up from noon until 6 p m., so please come visit us! For more information on the festival, visit the Alton Main Street website, http://www altonmainstreet.org/page/mississippi-earthtones-festival/ or the Earthtones Festival Facebook page, www.facebook.com/EarthtonesFestival.

Hellrung Family Contribution

Hayner Library has been the fortunate recipient of an international doll collection housed in its own distinctive cabinet, donated by Laura Hellrung, longtime Alton resident.

Herb and Laura Hellrung were married August 17, 1946. They raised six children in Alton and owned and operated Hellrung Construction.

The Hellrungs began traveling extensively through Europe and the Far East in 1956. It was during this time that they began to collect dolls in many of the countries they visited. Friends gave them a lovely Victorian cabinet in which Laura proudly displayed the collection She remembers how excited her grandchildren would get each time they saw the dolls when they visited.

Now in her nineties, Laura has decided to downsize, and she wanted the doll collection to be in a place where children of all ages could enjoy it. This unique collection and its beautiful cabinet are now located in the KidsSpace at Hayner Library's Alton Square location.

Genealogy & Local History Library Services

The Genealogy & Local History Library just reached its five-year anniversary, so we wanted to share an overview of services we provide here. This year is also the 125th Anniversary of the Jennie D. Hayner Memorial Library building, so make sure to check out the Hayner Library Facebook page for posts about events and the books, art, and people that make our library special.

There are some online resources available only at the Genealogy & Local History Library and some that are available at all library locations. The digitized Telegraph newspaper from 1836–2012 is accessible from any location. So is the Newspaper Archive, which has copies of newspapers from around the United States and the world.

At the Genealogy Library only, we have Ancestry Library Edition, Heritage Quest, and Sanborn fire insurance maps. Sanborn maps are large-scale plans containing data that can be used to estimate the potential risk for urban structures. This includes information such as the outline of each building, the size, shape, and construction materials, heights, and function of structures, and location of windows and doors. The maps also give street names, street and sidewalk widths, property boundaries, building use, and house and block numbers. Seven or eight different editions represent some areas. We have access to various dates in the 1800s and 1900s for all of Illinois. The earliest date for Alton is 1885.

Appointments to do genealogy research with a staff member are free! Just give us a call to set up a time.

We have a microfilm/microfiche reader, which also makes printouts. You can even bring in your own microfilm to read.

We have yearbooks from Alton High School, Marquette, Western Military Academy, Monticello Seminary, Shurtleff College, and various middle school and elementary schools. All of our high school yearbooks have been digitized, so we can provide paper or digital copies of pictures in the yearbooks. This is especially great for enlarging portraits. And the digital copies are going online soon and will be available to anyone anywhere through www.archive.org.

We provide information on properties for homeowners, researchers, and occasionally Realtors. We received 300 files from the Alton Area Landmarks Association in 2004 and now have approximately 3,000 addresses. We very much enjoy partnering with AALA, and the Genealogy & Local History Library was part of the 2015 Alton Area Landmarks Association House Tour.

We compile and maintain vertical files for many local history subjects. Often, we turn these files into books for the Illinois Room collection. They're indexed before going on the shelf so that you can find information in them the way you would with a published book.

We copy scrapbooks for our collection from local organizations like Alton Little Theater, the YWCA, and the Community Service League. If you are in an organization that keeps records, we want these from you! We're happy to make copies and return the originals. We're also always willing to give talks to various organizations, so keep us in mind if you need a speaker. The topic can be genealogy or local history related (and we take requests). We also have a phenomenal audio tour that provides stories and background information on all of our displays and artwork. It can be taken at any time in the library.

We hold in-house programs and educational classes throughout the year, like our Branching Out genealogy classes and architecture talks. We also hold events for students and have helped Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops working on Genealogy badges. In April we had classes of 6th and 8th graders from the City Garden Montessori School in St. Louis come do research for a Heritage Scrapbook project. We have created a local history suitcase for teachers (available soon for checkout from Alton Square) and will be hosting a summer workshop, Integrating Primary Sources to Teach Local History in the Elementary Classroom, offered by SIUE, the Alton School District, and the Madison County Recorder's office.

This is just a snapshot of what we work on here in the Genealogy & Local History Library, so please get in touch if you want more information about any aspect of our work (462-0677). And in December we will also have a special open house to celebrate 125 years of this beautiful building, so we hope to see you there!

Traveling evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson, who is known as the founder of the Foursquare Gospel Church, held revivals and healing services in Alton between 1920 and 1927. During one visit she was said to have baptized nearly 90 people in the Mississippi River at the foot of Henry Street.

Amelia Earhart visited the Monticello Seminary, now Lewis & Clark Community College, in October 1933. She charmed her audience with a lecture titled "The Fun of Flying" as she spoke about her experiences as a female pilot. While in Alton, she lodged at the Stratford Hotel.

Tom Mix, American film actor in the early 1900s, brought the Tom Mix Circus to Alton in May 1938. Despite heavy rains and muddy ground, the circus set up tents on Henry Street and held their evening performances to the delight of a large crowd. During the afternoon, he had attended a children's May Day party at the Elks Club.

On the afternoon of March 1, 1965, Pearl Buck, Nobel Prize-winning author, walked into the Hayner Public Library unexpectedly and hand-delivered a signed copy of her new book, The Joy of Children, to the surprised librarian, David Holt. This book is still an esteemed piece of the Illinois Room collection.

In 1974 Colonel Sanders, founder of the Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise, visited the second-grade classroom at Gilson Brown Elementary School. He gave a quick speech to the students about the importance of staying in school, and then, like a fine Southern gentleman, he graciously kissed the hand of teacher Mary Wiley before his departure.

During a presidential campaign tour for her husband, Nancy Reagan visited the Alton Catholic Children's Home and participated in a Halloween party on October 29, 1984 Local newspaper articles reported she was well received by the kids, who said they enjoyed her gentle disposition, her nice clothes, and the big car she arrived in, an Oldsmobile 98'

During the Flood of '93, billionaire Ross Perot stopped at the Alton Salvation Army on July 19. Perot donated $1 million to the organization to help flood victims He promised another million if private citizens would match the donation. Despite his efforts to avoid the press, he spoke briefly to reporters and Alton Mayor Bob Towse.

Among other famous dignitaries who have walked the streets of Alton was Zebulon Pike, the man responsible for discovering Pike's Peak in Colorado. Famed explorer and aviator Rear Admiral Richard Byrd spoke to Alton High School students in 1936 And world heavyweight championship boxer "Gentleman Jim" Corbett came to Alton in the early 20th century to square off with a local glassblower of Illinois Glass. When the two men entered the ring, they were wearing dress pants, white dress shirts, and boxing gloves.

Many presidential candidates came through Alton on campaign tours over the years. Some of these political figures included Franklin D. Roosevelt, who came in 1937. Adlai Stevenson visited in 1952 as an honored guest of Delta Sigma Chi. In 1960 John F. Kennedy spoke at Lincoln-Douglas Square. During a whistle-stop campaign in 1976 Gerald Ford made a stop at the College Avenue Amtrak station. George H. W. Bush rallied at Alton Square in 1988

President Barack Obama, while a member of the Illinois Senate, held a public town hall meeting at Lewis & Clark Community College in 2005.

Jimmy Carter never actually walked on city soil, but he cruised through the Alton Lock & Dam in the early morning hours of August 24, 1979, aboard the Delta Queen paddleboat. He greeted an enthusiastic crowd who waited along the fence surrounding the locks.

Theodore Roosevelt's first visit in 1907 was also by way of boat along the Mississippi River, but Teddy was preoccupied in the pilot house, and he forgot to wave at the shore-side crowd. Three years later in 1910 he returned to Alton by railroad. During this quick visit, he made sure to shake hands, speak to the crowd, and wave as he pulled away from the depot. It appeared he had redeemed himself in the eyes of Alton citizens

Authors and Their Pets

Five years ago, because of physical problems, I had to give up my beloved homebound program for Hayner Library It was decided that I would develop a volunteer program and write new mystery lists as well as articles for Hayner's newsletters.

During that time I would also write e-mails to authors and ask questions about their lives and books Many authors that I wrote to responded happily to my requests. We developed good e-mail friendships. Loving my English Springer Spaniel, Lulu, made me wonder how many authors had pets. So I wrote to them and asked them questions about their pets Their response was great.

Immediately I thought of mystery author Carolyn Haines. Carolyn writes a great mystery series featuring Sarah Booth Delaney. Sarah Booth Delaney is an unconventional Southern belle. Unwed and over 30, she excels as a private investigator. She's the hottest detective in Zinnia, Mississippi, but in this cozy mystery series, solving mysteries isn't all she's up against. She juggles an acting career, handsome men, and a bossy antebellum ghost.

Carolyn is a huge lover of rescued animals. She even has a cookbook from which she donates all the money made to an animal rescue group This is what she wrote to me when I asked her about her pets·

Well, you have hit the jackpot on an author with pets I run an animal rescue, and I have cats, dogs, and horses. Just like Sarah Booth, only I have MORE I am adjusting to the loss of two of my wonderful animal family members. Coal Shaft (who Pluto was patterned on) died in early February He had diabetes and a number of health issues, but he was such a huge part of my day. I miss him a lot.

Mirage, my 35-year-old horse I had from the day she was born, also died in February. She was tired. The vet thought she'd had a stroke. I have four horses, and every day when I go down to the barn to feed, I almost can't stand it Because I'm deeply involved in rescue work, I know the hardships of loving animals. Especially those who have not had a good start in life. But those hardships are off-set with so much love and joy.

Today, I have 9 dogs, 8 cats, and 4 horses. At my age, this is enough. But I take care of them myself every day (with a little help from my friends when I must be out of town). They set the rhythm for my day. I get up and feed Kinky, the old, old kitty, then the horses, then the dogs (if I feed the dogs first they like to run to the swamp at the bottom of my pasture and go hog wild). The day is sectioned into writing, reading, and doing things with different animals. I love this It keeps my day sane, and by bedtime, we're all ready for sleep.

If you are a pet owner, please, please spay and neuter your pets It's healthier for them and for you And please never buy a dog or cat There are dozens of breed specific rescues and tons of wonderful mixed breed pets at local shelters or rescues. If owners would only spay and neuter, in a few years, there would not be the suffering there is now for unwanted pets.

Thank you, Ms. Haines.

Volunteer Biography— Rosemary Lynn Ruedin

Rosemary Lynn Macias was born at St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton, Ill. She grew up in Godfrey in a small house on the corner of St Ambrose Drive and Walter Street. At this time there was only farmland surrounding their home. While she was growing up she was able to watch the Beltline, later renamed Homer Adams Parkway, being built. She also was delighted to watch the new St. Ambrose School, church, and community center being built right across the highway from her house

She lived in a six-room house with her parents and her older brother and younger sister. She played dolls, rode her bike, and played ball in her neighborhood. In the winter months the children would go to an ice pond across the field and ice skate.

Rosemary graduated from St Ambrose grade school and attended Alton High School She was in the Office Occupation program. In this program she went to school a half day and worked the afternoons in an office at Rock Spring Golf Course as a secretary After she graduated from high school, she went to work at Alton Banking and Trust, later known as the Wedge bank.

She met her husband, Richard Ruedin, in high school, and four years after Richard graduated from college they were married. They raised their son and two daughters in the Alton area and are very proud of them. They also have eight adorable grandchildren who make being a grandparent a wonderful job, she says

Rosemary worked as a secretary at St. Ambrose School for 14 years. She retired in 2001 to take care of her mother. After her mother passed away and the children were gone, she missed the schoolchildren. She needed to fill that void in her life.

We were lucky enough to get her 12 years ago. She asked if she could help with story times. She was welcomed and has been loved by many. She looks forward to Mondays and Thursdays, seeing all the children come as babies and watching them over the years graduate to kindergarten.

Rosemary has some favorite hobbies and activities. She loves to crochet afghans and loves reading, especially biographies. Her favorite was about Princess Diana. She felt that Diana's life was very exciting, but troubling too.

Her favorite activity is traveling to Chicago and Paducah to see her grandchildren.

We are so very proud of Rosemary and grateful for her thousands of hours volunteering with the children of Hayner Library patrons

Bless you, Rosemary
